MADDEN'S ACTS CALLED ILLEGAL ON HOUSE FLOOR

Efforts to Influence Congress Flayed.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The arrest and prosecution on criminal charges of J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations board, was demanded on the house floor today.

J. Warren Madden.

Madden was accused of violating the criminal code prohibiting the use of government funds to influence congress. The house committee investigating the administration of the Wagner labor act has presented detailed evidence that labor board officials organized campaigns to flood members of congress with protests against cuts in appropriations and proposed amendments to the act.

The committee announced it would seek a ruling from the attorney general on the question whether Madden and other officers of the board violated the law by their acts.

Hoffman Makes Charge.

However, Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] went before the house to charge that Madden's own testimony convicts him of violating the law. He quoted from the record to support his assertion that Madden had not only attempted to influence congress but had besought others to lobby in behalf of the board.

Hoffman cited the criminal code which forbids the use of money appropriated by congress to pay for personal service, telegrams, telephone calls, or letters intended to influence members of congress for or against legislation or appropriations.

The provisions of the law also were read to the investigating committee, with the comment by Committee Counsel Edmund Toland that he did not charge the board or any of its employés with violating the law—that it was up to the committee to decide that.

Fine and Prison Possible.

Toland said a violation of the statute is a misdemeanor, punishable by a $500 fine, a year's imprisonment, or both.

Chairman Howard W. Smith [D., Va.] of the committee said the inference that the board and its staff had violated the law would be withheld from the record for the present while the committee awaited the attorney general's ruling.

Only a few minutes later Hoffman obtained the floor in the house and quoted answers made by Madden concerning his lobbying activities.

"This testimony discloses," Hoffman told the house, "that Chairman Madden, forsaking his position as administrator of the law, sought to become a creator of legislation, a preserver of legislation.

Points to C. I. O. Tieup.

"The testimony shows he attempted to influence members of the American Federation of Labor to revolt against their leadership and to appear before a senate committee in opposition to amendments to the national labor relations act.

"Chairman Madden is not an impartial administrator. He is an advocate of the C. I. O. He is a lobbyist whose time is paid for by congressional appropriations. Is there any reason why he should not be subject to the law?"

In the committee hearing the lobbying accusations against Madden shared attention with charges by Counsel Toland that Madden had attempted to "blackjack" employers by recommending that government contracts be withheld from firms accused of violating the Wagner act.

Toland submitted letters Madden had written to the treasury's procurement division in which the NLRB chairman sought to influence the division to withhold government contracts from firms whose cases had come before the labor board.

LOOKING FORWARD TO SPRING IN THE BALKANS

New Donation Spurs Wesley Hospital Work

Trustees of Wesley Memorial hospital announced yesterday that George Herbert Jones, founder and former president of the Inland Steel company, has made a new gift of 20,000 shares of Inland Steel stock to the hospital fund. The gift, valued at $1,660,000 on yesterday's market, will enable the trustees to proceed this spring with construction of the new 20 story hospital on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university.

George H. Jones.

Mr. Jones, who celebrated his 84th birthday Jan. 25, made his latest gift two months ago. It brought his contributions to the hospital to approximately $3,000,000. The new hospital will cost between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000.

Unit of Medical Group.

The new hospital will be affiliated with the university. It will rise at Superior street and Fairbanks court as a unit in the University's medical group, which already includes the university's medical school and Passavant hospital.

The new hospital, which will be among the larger ones in Chicago, will have more than 400 beds—100 more than Passavant. The old Wesley hospital, at 25th and Dearborn streets, has 250 beds.

The new structure is to be built in the shape of a Maltese cross, to gain the utmost sunlight. While there will be ample provision for charity and low cost treatment, the hospital will include three room apartments with kitchenettes for those desiring such accommodations.

Foundation Built 2 Years Ago.

The foundation and substructure were built two years ago. The work then was halted because of shrinkage of the value of the stock Mr. Jones had given.

Mr. Jones came to Chicago from England when 15 years old, shortly before the Chicago fire in 1871. He worked as a clerk for an iron firm.

In recent years he has given large sums for philanthropic work. Despite his age he goes to his office daily.

LILY BIG SORREL HORSE ASKS DIVORCE—WANTS HER CATTLE BACK, TOO

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 13 (AP).—For the first time in the history of the Alberta Supreme court here, an Indian has filed a petition for divorce.

Lily Big Sorrel Horse seeks a divorce from Big Sorrel Horse, who has denied her claim that they were married according to blood tribal rites. Lily, in her petition, said that after the marriage she entrusted him with the management of a herd of her cattle.

Her petition is based on charges of desertion and adultery. She also has demanded the return of her cattle.

THIS TELLS WHEN AND WHEN NOT TO SPEAK RUSSIAN

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 13 (AP).—The Russians can't tell Maj. Frank B. Hayne, American military attaché here, a thing about the fury of a Finn with his dander up—the major got a first hand sample tonight.

Maj. Hayne, until a few months ago assistant military attaché in Moscow, bumped into a Finnish lieutenant during the blackout and absentmindedly apologized in Russian. The lieutenant, just arrived on a brief leave from the Summa front, hauled off and landed a haymaker on the major's jaw.

Someone intervened quickly, explained the major's identity, and the reason for the Russian phrased apology. The lieutenant apologized profoundly. The major rubbed his chin ruefully.

HOTEL ENGINEER CAPTURES PAIR LOOTING HIS HOME

George Jordan, chief engineer of the Congress hotel, last night caught two burglars when he and his wife returned to their home at 8512 Dante avenue. Noticing a side window was open, Jordan went next door, called the police, then picked up a gun in his garage, and entered the house thru the rear door. The burglars, Lee Austin, 19 years old, of Henrietta, Okla., and Michael Cooney, 24, 6256 Cottage Grove avenue, were piling up clothing and silverware. A third man escaped thru the front door. Jordan held his prisoners until the arrival of Burnside police.

Vote for Ouster of K. C. Mayor, 8 Councilmen

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 13 [Special].—The once powerful Pendergast machine took a drubbing today as clean-up forces drove to a smashing victory in a special election to rid the city hall of bossism.

Unofficial returns from the city's 462 precincts gave 95,855 votes for the ouster of all city elective officials to 17,235 votes against their ouster.

The election ratifies a charter amendment providing for the termination on April 17 of the terms of office of eight members of the city council, the mayor, and two municipal judges. They were elected two years ago to serve four years.

It was the termination of a fight which began last April 12, when H. F. McElroy, Boss Tom Pendergast's city manager, resigned on the eve of exposure of Pendergast's participation in funds syphoned out of the city's treasury thru contracts.

Boss in Federal Prison.

Pendergast, for 13 years the unchallenged czar of the municipal government, is serving a term in federal prison at Leavenworth for violation of the income tax law.

As a result of today's vote, an election will be held April 2 on a full ticket of new officers. Leaders of the United Campaign committee, which sponsored the charter change, hope for complete eviction of the machine from municipal affairs.

The north side vote, usually top heavy, was light, substantiating reports from James Pendergast, Boss Tom's nephew and heir apparent, that no fight would be made on the amendment.

Look to New Campaign.

Observers speculated that the machine either intended to contest the election's legality or to wait until April to do battle in the hope the fused forces of Republicans, Independent Democrats, and business men will split in the scramble for office.

But the antimachine forces say there will be no discord. They plan tentatively to select a Democratic candidate for mayor and an equal number of Democrats and Republicans for the council seats.

In contrast with the Pendergast [Goat] faction's indifference, the Joe Shannon [Rabbit] faction of the once well knit Democratic machine was out in full force working for an amendment to put the city firemen under civil service. It was defeated.

SENATE PASSES FINN LOAN BILL; GOES TO HOUSE

Vote Is 49 to 27; Foes Warn of War Peril.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The senate today passed the Roosevelt administration's bill to provide additional government loans to Finland, China, and other countries. The vote was 49 to 27.

The controversy over government assistance for Finland, one of the hottest political potatoes that has engaged the senate in years, now goes to the house of representatives. Abhorrence of communist Russia in the house, enhanced by revelations of the Dies committee on un-American activities, is expected to insure passage of the bill by an overwhelming majority.

Doubles Revolving Credit.

The measure increases the revolving credit limit of the Export-Import bank from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 for the purpose of financing exports of agricultural and manufactured articles other than arms, ammunition, and implements of war.

Loans outstanding for the benefit of any one country, hereafter authorized, may not exceed $20,000,000 at any one time. Of the additional credit authorization Finland is expected to receive at least $10,000,000 and China is to receive the limit of $20,000,000.

Passage of the bill by the senate followed impassioned debate in which the proposed assistance for Finland was assailed as an unneutral act and a dangerous step on the road to war.

Fear Effects of Precedent.

The desire on the part of many senators to help Finland was complicated by the fear that loans to that country might be used as a precedent for credits to Great Britain and France. As Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.] declared, it was "a contest between the heart and the mind."

The senate roll call was paradoxical. Some senators who were most enthusiastic in their support of the administration's neutrality revision legislation last fall voted against the lending bill, while such advocates of neutrality and nonintervention as Senator D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] and Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] voted for it.

Finnish Aid Is Key to Debate.

Altho the administration contemplates loans not only to Finland and China, but to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and several South American countries, the senate debate was concerned almost exclusively with the question of aiding Finland.

Supporters of the bill based their argument solely on the help it will provide for Finland in her struggle against communist aggression.

Senator William H. King [D., Utah] denounced the "colossus of bolshevism" which, he said, is threatening to extinguish liberty, not only in Scandinavia, but thruout the world. "When justice is assailed anywhere in the world it suffers everywhere," King declared.

Senator Wallace H. White [R., Me.] contended that this country has every moral and legal right to assist Finland "in writing its epic of civilization."

George Opposes Loan.

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chief opposition speaker, said it was not a question of what this country might have a moral and legal right to do, but whether it wants to take a step in the direction of war.

Senator George was one of the authors of the administration's neutrality act of 1939, which repealed the arms embargo provision of the previous law. The heart and soul of that legislation, he declared, was the prohibition of credits to nations engaged in war. He conceded that the restrictive provisions of the neutrality act do not apply, because the law has not been invoked with respect to Russia's undeclared war on Finland.

"But, Mr. President, is the United States to violate the very essence and spirit of its own neutrality act, and may it do so with impunity?" Senator George asked. "When a great country asserts its right under neutral law, the law of nations, it takes on its shoulders the correlative obligation of meticulously abiding by the law of nations."

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] told the senate that "we al-

WELLES' PEACE TRIP SCUTTLES PEACE AT HOME

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Page 2.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—A diplomatic and burocratic storm burst today upon the Sumner Welles expedition in search of a basis for restoring peace to Europe.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is furious because he was not consulted by the President on the project and because Undersecretary of State Welles put the scheme over without the knowledge of Mr. Hull.

William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, and Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, are seething with indignation because the dispatch of Mr. Welles to report on conditions in Europe is a reflection upon their ability to perform this function for which they were appointed and which they supposedly had been performing to the satisfaction of the President.

Welles Takes to His Bed.

Altogether on the eve of the departure of the expedition on the Italian liner Rex on Saturday there are a lot of high dignitaries here who are barely on speaking terms with each other. And as the storm roared around his well turned and distinguished figure Mr. Welles disappeared from the scene and was last reported in bed with a severe cold.

It was Mr. Welles, it appears, who conceived the scheme of a European junket to prospect for peace. He opined that there is peace in them thar hills across the ocean and he set out to get a grubstake. So he slipped across Executive avenue and in thru the back door of the White House and in thru the back door of the President's office and laid his great dream before "Missy" Marguerite A. Le Hand, Mr. Roosevelt's personal secretary, who is rated to have more influence in the throne room than any one else, save Mrs. Roosevelt. If "Missy" recommends anything it gets done about 99 times out of 100.

Approved by "Missy."

Mr. Welles outlined his peace junket which would take him to Rome, Berlin, London, Paris, and way stations to conduct soundings of chiefs of government on the possibilities of a compromise that would end the war. "Missy" thought it a grand idea and glowingly laid it before the President. Mr. Roosevelt, who was in a most receptive mood for a new peace drive, beamed and called in Mr. Welles and commissioned him on the spot to set out upon the 'great adventure.

Forthwith Mr. Roosevelt announced the project to the press. That was the first Mr. Hull heard of it—and did his pale face get red? He called in Mr. Welles and expressed his feelings most forcibly. Mr. Hull apparently thought the incident was a reflection upon him and that Mr. Welles had gone behind his back to do this deed. According to one version, the real phrase that was wafted thru the transom with the pronounced accent of a Tennessee feudist was "stab in the back."

Ambassador Bullitt Irritated.

Ambassador Bullitt arrived in Washington the day Mr. Roosevelt announced the Welles expedition. The news upset his well known equanimity and sangfroid. He had a session with the President which was not so pleasant as expected. The ambassador evinced irritation that Mr. Roosevelt should think it necessary to send a man to Paris to do what the ambassador is supposed to do and to try to get the lowdown on the situation in a few days which it has taken the ambassador months to acquire.

The President sought to mollify Bullitt, emphasizing that the project signifies no lack of presidential confidence in the ambassadors. Mr Roosevelt explained that he thought it would be valuable to have the impressions of a single observer who would be able to fit together all the parts of the picture, only a portion of which is seen by the ambassador at his post.

Kennedy Puts in Complaint.

Ambassador Kennedy, upon hearing of the Welles junket, lost no time in getting to Washington from Florida. He had an audience with the President today. He complained of ill treatment in the vein of Mr. Bullitt's protest.

What made Kennedy all the madder is that Welles, like himself, hails from Boston, where they live on opposite sides of the track socially. On Kennedy's side of the tracks those on Welles' side are considered top lofty stuffed shirts. Kennedy felt a lot like resigning then and there, but the President calmed him down.

Kennedy will sail for England Feb. 24 and Bullitt will take a trans Atlantic Clipper back to his post, so that both will be at home when Welles reaches London and Paris. Each ambassador promises to give Mr. Welles an interesting visit.

ASK QUICK HELP AS REDS ATTACK WITH NEW FURY

Call 13 Day Battle World's Greatest.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIIPURI, Finland, Feb. 13.—Fierce Finnish counterattacks have resulted in the recapture of all strategic forts occupied by the Russians during the furious 13 day struggle on the Karelian isthmus, the Finnish high command announced tonight.

A few outlying machine gun nests are the only former Finnish positions remaining in soviet hands, the Finnish command said, adding:

This was the first time the Finns had admitted they had "withdrawn" from some of their fortified positions. Late Sunday, it was said, the Finnish troops had fallen back slowly in the Summa sector.

"This often happens in battles of such fury," an officer said.

[Russia's military communique last night said that 23 more Finnish forts were captured on Tuesday, for a total of 84 of these positions taken in the last five days. The Russians insisted that Finnish counterattacks, altho conducted by large forces, had been thrown back with heavy losses.]

Call for Quick Help.

The Finnish high command statement said that the struggle on the isthmus "surpasses in intensity even the most strenuous battles of the world war." It said thus far Finnish resistance is unbroken, but called on "civilized nations of the world" for quick help.

The high command statement said:

"The fighting on the isthmus surpasses in intensity even the most strenuous battles of the world war. An enormous amount of material, planes, infantry, and artillery, has been used. The enemy tries to use every weapon at his disposal, but despite this the Finnish resistance is still unbroken.

"Achievements of Finnish troops are extraordinary. Figures, best of all, give us an indication of the [Russian] expenditure in the Summa sector alone.

Fight with Long Knives.

"The expenditures of shells is no less than 300,000 in one day. This has been going on for several days.

"The Russians have used very good troops.

"For instance, last night there was intensive hand-to-hand fighting in which the Finns preferred to use puukos [long hunting knives].

"Air activity was more intensive than on any previous day on the isthmus [today]. Hundreds of planes were over our front positions.

"As for losses, according to conservative estimates the soviet lost at Summa 30,000 to 50,000 men [presumably including wounded] during three or four days including today, and 200 tanks destroyed. There are enormous heaps of dead Russians before our lines.

70 Ton Tank Crippled.

"It may be mentioned that a 70 ton tank was disabled. It was caught and crippled and returned to its own lines, but it cannot be used again.

"The series of battles here may be called something like the 'Summa miracle,' comparable to the Somme and Verdun, but nevertheless, despite the fact that the soviet men are falling by the thousands and tens of thousands, that's why we need help in all forms—men, material, especially airplanes.

"Thus far the Finnish army is able to hold its own, but we really rely on civilized nations of the world to relieve us in this situation."

Russian bombers today made new and savage attacks on Finnish cities behind the lines. The center of Porvoo, pleasant little seat of Finnish culture near Helsingfors, was gutted by flames from incendiary and explosive bombs. Tonight 28 buildings were burning in the town's business district.

Bombs Fall Near Church.

Lahti, Heinola, Sortavala and Viipuri, too, were raided, but up to midnight details of casualties were undisclosed.

Two hotels, one motion picture theater and a number of homes, including those of five doctors, were destroyed in the bombing of Porvoo, once a town of 7,000 population. The streets were littered with blasted pieces of furniture and other household effects. The equipment of two dentists' offices was scattered about.

Bombs fell all around the 14th century church, one of the sights of Porvoo, and also hit a few feet from the statue of the Finnish national poet, Johan Ludwig Runeberg, author of Finland's national anthem. The church escaped damage, however, and only a few chips were knocked out of the monument.

Seventeen Russian bombers flew over the town at 6,000 feet, raking it with high explosive bombs; then wheeled around and dumped their cargoes of incendiary bombs.

Push in Three Sectors.

Answering assault with assault, the Finns reported successful advances in three of the most bloodily contested isthmus areas: The Summa sector, the shore of Lake Muola and at Taipale, on the western shore of Lake Ladoga.

Other accounts of the day's successful operations—there were no reports of losses—listed the forced retreat of a Russian detachment across the frontier near Raate, east of Suomussalmi, where the Finns cut up two enemy division six weeks ago.

Among the frozen Pitkaranta Islands, on the northern shore of Lake Ladoga, a Russian column of 100 sledges was "smashed" as it attempted an advance.

The Finnish Communique.

Tonight's Finnish high command communique said:

"LAND: On the [Karelian] isthmus enemy attacks continued unabated thruout Feb. 12, in the Summa sector, on the Muolajarvi-Punnusjarvi isthmus and at Taipale. The attacks were repulsed and our forces made several successful counterattacks. At least 23 tanks were destroyed. [This brought to 767 the number captured or destroyed in the war.]

"Northeast of Lake Ladoga all enemy attacks were repulsed. Two enemy tanks were destroyed. Among the Pitkaranta Islands the greater part of an enemy column consisting of 100 sledges was destroyed. At Alitajoki our patrol and skirmishing activity was successful.

"In the Kuhmo sector the enemy's attacks were repulsed and his special detachment was dispersed. Our forces captured several enemy machine gun nests.

"At Raate on Kuupasjarvi an enemy detachment advancing to the west was driven back beyond the frontier. On other parts of the front, the usual patrol and skirmishing activity.

"AIR: In addition to encounters in the air on Feb. 12 our aircraft carried out reconnaissance flights and bombed enemy columns and gun positions. In the war zone the enemy concentrated his air activity both on the isthmus and northeast of Lake Ladoga on the front lines and their vicinity.

"Our fighter planes and antiaircraft guns shot down four enemy planes, according to verified reports. In addition there was one doubtful case."

SENATE PASSES FINN LOAN BILL; GOES TO HOUSE

ready are on the road to war, having bought shares in the war in Asia and having made purchases of stock in the war in Europe." He referred to the loans of $25,000,000 and $10,000,000 which the Export-Import bank already has made to China and Finland, respectively.

Reynolds said he stood with Senator King in his condemnation "of communism and of that murderer—the greatest murderer the world has ever known—Joe Stalin." But it is the duty of this country to destroy communism at home before attempting to fight it anywhere else, he said.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], another supporter of the administration's neutrality revision legislation, assailed the foreign loan bill. He said he sympathized with Finland and the other small European countries that have been destroyed by brutal aggression.

Recalls Previous Involvement.

"Beyond this sympathy, however, is a more controling objective, namely: To keep the United States of America out of any more foreign wars," said Senator Van Nuys.

"My recollection of conditions preceding our participation in the last world war are still vivid. I am convinced that if we loan millions of dollars to belligerent European nations, or nations which later may become involved, it is only a matter of time until we shall be sending men as well as dollars to foreign shores. That was the way we edged into the last world war. To this I am adamantly opposed.

"I do not conceive it to be the function of the United States to refinance, revamp, or police the world. My every thought and act shall be to keep our men and our money out of the European and Asiatic vortexes."

DUCE AND CIANO WILL RECEIVE ENVOY WELLES

ROME, Feb. 13.—Sumner Welles, United States undersecretary of state, who is coming to Europe on a fact-finding mission for President Roosevelt, will see Premier Benito Mussolini and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, during his stay in Rome. This was arranged today by Ambassador William Phillips, who had a talk with the foreign minister.

No date was fixed for the two meetings since the time of Welles' arrival depends upon the British contraband control and its delay of the liner Rex at Gibraltar.

Since Welles will see Mussolini, it is believed he is certain to be received by Adolf Hitler in Germany.

NORTH CHICAGO FIGHTS U. S. PLAN TO CLOSE STREET

The North Chicago city council last night adopted a resolution opposing the government's intention to build a fence across 2d avenue in order to fence in all of the Great Lakes Naval Training station reservation. Six industries, for which the street is a vital highway, have objected to the plan. Two have threatened to move and a third has announced it will close if the road is fenced.

Two weeks ago Rear Admiral W. C. Watts notified the council that the fence would be constructed in July because of the President's declaration of a limited emergency. The fence will inclose the roadway and land to the north which was ceded to the government in 1918. Admiral Watts said it was necessary to keep out trespassers.

The council members last night adopted a resolution urging congress to pass an act returning this property to the city. Copies were ordered sent to Illinois senators and representatives.

Back Door Diplomacy

Sumner Welles, named by President Roosevelt to make peace junket to Europe, is the object of anger in Washington, where his superiors and others are embittered because he slipped scheme over without their knowledge.

Margaret Le Hand, the President's secretary whom he calls "Missy." It is said that Welles first sold his scheme to "Missy," whose recommendations are usually accepted by the President.

FINNS WITH STOP WATCHES PACE TIDE OF BATTLE

Gauge Speed of Own Men, Then Guide Artillery.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIIPURI, Finland, Feb. 13.—Thus far the 13-day battle on the Karelian isthmus has been a contest between a stop watch and an alarm clock.

Paavo Nurmi, while running his races in America some years ago, glanced at his stop watch occasionally and moderated or accelerated his stride, enabling him to win.

The Finns have introduced the stop watch in the defense of their country. On the front I noticed that most of the officers wear stop watches. Thru intricate tables on the dials of the watches they can time artillery fire. They know how soon a battalion of combined ski and cavalry men can arrive at a threatened point. They know how long it will take a regiment of Russians, not equipped with skis and following skidding and lurching tanks thru knee deep snow, to arrive at a point where they can be covered by Finnish artillery fire.

Introduce Calm Tactics.

Just like Paavo Nurmi, the officers of the Finnish army are fighting methodically and calmly and with the same qualities of brains, heart, and touch which Hannes Kolehmainen and Nurmi introduced into marathon running.

Finland's battle of the Marathon is now being fought on the Karelian isthmus. Just as the Persians failed in their attempts to invade Greece, so the Finns believe the Russians will fail in their attempt to invade Finland.

The Mannerheim line, a Finnish officer explained, had not been broken and there was no danger of its breaking. He said he thought a mistaken impression existed abroad about the Mannerheim line, that it was not a single line of defense but rather a deep zone of fortifications which, in the opinion of the Finnish general staff, not even the Red army will be able to penetrate.

Attack Leningrad's Railroads.

Finnish officers said the present battle is an attempt of the Red army to gain a victory against the Mannerheim line which will force the Finns to withdraw some of their forces from the north where, since the beginning of the war, several Russian divisions have been destroyed and other divisions are now in serious danger because of the interruption of traffic on the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad.

If the Finns receive more planes Leningrad will be in danger. The Finnish aviation already has attacked the railroads entering Leningrad. The population of Leningrad and its industrial district is larger than that of all Finland. It depends entirely upon the railroads for food for its inhabitants and coal and raw materials for its many industries. Its main rail connection is with Moscow.

Finns Run Trains at Night.

Finnish railroads are continuing to function efficiently and Finnish troops are being replaced on all fronts, including the isthmus, without a hitch. This is exceptional in that all train service in Finland now is carried on at night. Altho the severest battle of the war has been raging for 13 days on the isthmus, all Finnish railroads are continuing to operate with only slightly more delays than usual largely because of the number of hospital trains bringing casualties back to the main military hospitals.

Even tho the Russian losses have been estimated at 20 to 1 compared with the Finns', Finnish hospitals now are overflowing with casualties from the isthmus battle.

Mystery Figure

JEAN OWEN.

Ira J. Owen, consulting industrial engineer, disclosed yesterday that his daughter, Jean, 19 years old, disappeared New Year's day with Gerald Valentine Butler, 19. Owen said he believed the couple had eloped.

Miss Owen had attended Rockford college. She went on a round of New Year's eve parties with young Butler. At midnight they returned to the Owen home at 349 Hawthorne lane, Winnetka, wished her parents a happy new year, and started out again. A search was begun when she failed to return home by morning.

Owen said that a young man who had attended New Trier High school with Miss Owen and Butler reported that he lent them $10 and saw them board a bus. Owen said he believed they went to Indianapolis and later went west. Butler spent his boyhood in Winnetka. He later moved to Denver, Colo., where his father is in the insurance business, but returned to Winnetka for the holiday season.

"We all knew Butler as 'Windy,'" said Owen. "He is a supersalesman and must have high pressured Jean into this."

VATICAN DEFINES TAYLOR'S STATUS AS AMBASSADOR

Holds He's Not Personal Envoy of Roosevelt.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13.—Myron Taylor, whatever his official title may be, will be considered just as much an ambassador to the Holy See as the representatives of the other nations, according to a Vatican jurist who today completed a study of the diplomatic precedence and procedure involved. A similar conclusion has apparently been reached in Vatican circles generally.

It is argued that Taylor, who was named by President Roosevelt for duty at the Vatican, will have to present credentials without which it is not possible to accredit any kind of diplomatic agent, even an extraordinary and personal one. According to international law, all diplomatic agents are named by the sovereign [in this case the head of the state, President Roosevelt] and therefore, they have a public character.

Personal Status Disputed.

Hence, the fact that Taylor has been named personally by the President does not distinguish him from other diplomatic agents who, in representing their states, also represent their sovereigns personally. Since Roosevelt cannot as a simple American citizen send a representative to a foreign sovereign, he can send Taylor here only thru his position as President of the United States.

Diplomatic agents, it was pointed out, are sent not by governments but by sovereigns or heads of state, and a change of government does not necessitate a renewal of the credentials. Only a radical change of régime, it was said, can bring that about, which means that from the legal viewpoint, Taylor could remain accredited to the Holy See even after Roosevelt ceased to be President.

Letter Might Curb Authority.

Moreover, even if Roosevelt be considered as head of the government, rather than head of the state, it would not change the official and public character of the diplomatic agent, it was said. The only distinction that can be made, it was declared here, is to give the letter of credence a particularized form.

For instance, the state seal ordinarily used might be omitted. The letter may not be made known to the pontiff in advance, as is customary. It also is held possible that it may, contrary to custom, specify a limitation of powers, denying Taylor the right to conclude or sign any agreements in the name of the United States.

Latvia to Sell Property of Repatriated Germans

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 13.—Germany today ratified an agreement concerning the disposition of goods left in Latvia by German nationals, who have returned to the reich. The Latvian Credit bank, it is stated, will take over all these goods to sell them. The property left behind by the Germans includes 1,800 houses in Riga alone. Proceeds from the sales, it is stated, will be transferred to Germany in accordance with provisions laid down in the Latvian-German negotiations.

BRITISH TRAWLER AND 4 NEUTRAL BOATS ARE SUNK

Big Unidentified Vessel Founders Off England.

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—The British admiralty today disclosed that Germany's sea warfare resulted in the loss of at least five more ships—a British trawler and four Scandinavian vessels.

It was also announced that a large unidentified steamer foundered off the coast of Norfolk and was floating bottom up tonight. A lifesaving craft which had been at sea six hours found two of the ship's lifeboats and picked up a number of survivors from them.

Survivors of the trawler Togimo, 290 tons, reached the Irish coast after spending 28 hours in an open boat. They reported a German submarine sank their ship by firing more than 20 shells. One man was killed and three were wounded.

Another Trawler Wrecked.

Another of the fishing fleet on which the British rely to supplement their imported meat supplies—the 226 ton trawler Gurth—was wrecked on the east coast. Her crew of nine was saved.

Other victims of German attempts to isolate Britain by undersea boats and mines, surface raiders, and aerial bombings, were:

The Norwegian freighter Nidarholm, 3,482 tons, which went to the bottom after a mine or torpedo explosion.

The Norwegian motorship Snestad, 4,114 tons, which sank after a mine or torpedo explosion en route from Oslo to Philadelphia.

The Swedish steamer Orania, 1,854 tons, torpedoed in the North sea Sunday. A British warship picked up ten survivors, but fourteen others were missing.

Saves Crew of Swedish Ship.

The 3,927 ton Swedish freighter Dalaro, sunk by a mine or torpedo off the Irish coast yesterday. Her crew was saved by the Belgian trawler Jean de Wanil, but the captain was reported killed.

The British admiralty called for 10,000 more fishermen volunteers to combat Germany's war on shipping. Since the war started 10,000 fishermen already have entered the navy.

The admiralty announced the capture of eight German submarine sailors, but gave no details. This brought to 16 the number reported captured within 24 hours.

British Ship Flashes SOS.

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The British freighter Brodwall, 3,385 tons, sent out an SOS from the Mediterranean early tonight which was picked up here by Mackay radio.

She reported, without giving details, that she was in distress and required immediate assistance, giving her position as latitude 41.22 north, longitude 6.6 east. Thus, it appeared she was somewhere in the region of the Island of Sardinia.

CICERO TRUSTEE IS DEFEATED IN PRIMARY VOTE

With only one position on the two tickets being contested, the Cicero primary election drew slightly more than a third of the town's 37,000 voters to the polls yesterday to nominate tickets for the April 2 election. There were 14,037 votes cast.

Edward Grisko defeated Felix Zdrojewski, the incumbent 7,565 to 1,770 for the nomination for trustee on the Democratic ticket. Edward Backofen ran third with 644.

George Stedronsky, president of the town, was renominated on the Democratic slate. Other Democratic nominees and their vote total: for town clerk, Anton J. Krupicka, 10,240; collector, Jerry J. Viterna, 10,182; supervisor, Leo Kasperski, 10,272; assessor, Henry R. Schwarzel, 10,059.

The Republican ticket: for president, Frank E. Svoboda, 2,963; clerk, John C. Stoffel, 2,818; collector, Jerry Dolezal, 2,909; supervisor, Frank A. Marek, 2912; assessor, Frank Christensen, 2,905; trustee, Jerry A. Holecek, 2,874.

You'd think, what with valentines, paper hats, favors, table decorations, dolls, appropriate dresses, candy, and flowers, there would be nothing new to mark a lady's vanity on St. Valentine's day. But it took the Illinois Hairdressers' association to puncture that bubble. Yesterday their style committee came up with a new hair arrangement, suitable for a long bob. It's a heart, fashioned by interweaving black hair with natural blond, and pierced by an artificial arrow.

PREPARE DANZIG, GDYNIA FOR USE OF GERMAN ARMY

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The commander in chief of the German army, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, today inspected the garrison of Danzig and the former Polish naval base at Gydnia, now called Gotenhafen.

Because the port of Gotenhafen would be the obvious starting point for a German expeditionary force if the western powers attempted to intervene in the Russian-Finnish war, this move by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's army chief was regarded here as a warning to Great Britain and France to keep their hands off Finland and the Scandinavian countries.

It was considered significant that Von Brauchitsch's visit coincided with reports in Berlin that a force of British volunteers is soon to go to Finland's aid.

Inspects Construction.

The German commander viewed "military reconstruction work" in Danzig and Gotenhafen. He later addressed troops assembled on the barrack grounds of the former Bodyguard Hussars, the ex-crown prince's former regiment. Von Brauchitsch then proceeded to Neustadt, in the former Polish corridor, where a German garrison has been stationed.

That Germany is not neglecting any military precautions in the east despite the fact that the bulk of its land forces are massed opposite the Maginot line can be seen from today's "Wehrmacht," the official organ of the German armed forces.

This periodical discloses that a force is being built up in Slovakia, recruited from among 160,000 members of German minority groups living in Slovakia. These units are claimed to be entirely composed of German nationals. They form part of the Slovakian army which is, to a large extent, under the control of the German military.

Not Alarmed by Moves.

The arrival of Australian and New Zealand forces at Suez, therefore, is regarded without alarm in German military circles. They argue that in view of Germany's strong military position in the east, the western powers could not afford to launch a drive in the southeast, for instance, thru Rumania—even if Rumania were willing to permit British-French forces to land at Rumania's Black sea ports.

An attack by British-French forces under Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander in chief of the French near east forces, on the Caucasian front also is believed by the Germans to be doomed to failure, because of the difficulties of the terrain. British-French-Turkish air attacks on Russia's most vulnerable spot, the oil wells of Baku, would be more likely than not to call forth German assistance, it is generally believed in Berlin.

Germans Prepare

The chief of the German army yesterday inspected the fort at Danzig and the naval base at Gotenhafen (1), presumably as a warning to France and England to keep out of the Finnish-Russian war. Germany is also taking military precautions in the east, building up a force of 160,000 in Slovakia (2).

Predicts Landing Soon.

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—Tancred Borenius, secretary of the commission which in 1919 notified the powers of Finland's independence, today declared there was "every reason to believe a German expeditionary force would land in southern Finland soon."

Speaking to the British and North American Luncheon club, Borenius said that skilled German officers were serving with the soviet forces in Finland and that a German expeditionary force soon would "stab the country in the back as was done in the case of Poland."

Borenius, Finnish born but long a resident of London, declared that, contrary to popular belief, the spring thaw would help Finnish defenses. He quoted Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim, Finland's commander in chief, as saying that "in the spring I will mobilize Finland's 70,000 lakes in defense of the nation."

ECONOMIC WAR DEALS BALKANS A SEVERE BLOW

Standard of Living Sinks to 1918 Level.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 13 (AP).—Economic warfare by Europe's belligerents has struck a staggering blow at the pocketbook of the average family in the Balkans.

Among the small neutral nations in this backdoor of Europe, the standard of living, never ample even in prosperous years, is reported by economists to be sinking to the levels of 1918-1919.

Meatless days, gasoline rationing, coal shortages, and adulterated bread are the more obvious signs of how war is pinching these countries, which are still at peace.

The Hungarian or Jugo-Slav or Rumanian can tell of hundreds of ways in which the purchasing value of his paycheck is being streamlined to what he fears may soon be its vanishing point.

Prices Jump 400 Per Cent.

Altho this neutral area is predominantly agricultural, food prices have gone up 10 to 400 per cent since September.

Imported luxuries always were beyond the reach of the average person and their complete disappearance in wartime has made little difference to the masses. But their coffee and tea now cost more than double last summer's price.

Meat, bread, and vegetables are increasingly expensive. A laborer shoveling snow in Budapest's streets finds his day's wages of 70 cents will buy just 11 eggs. Egg prices have more than trebled.

Riot for 36 Cents a Day.

A Jugo-Slav snow shoveler in Zagreb gets 36 cents. Two hundred staged a riot there the other day because there were not enough jobs of this kind to go around.

Consumers in all southeastern countries complain about the high cost of living. Leather is scarce, and even resoling an old pair of shoes makes a dent in the family budget. All clothing prices have soared.

With coal bins being converted into air raid shelters, it is a constant battle to replenish the small fuel supplies one is able to lay in week by week. Commuters never know from one day to the next whether they will have transportation because the fuel shortage causes scores of trains to be canceled overnight.

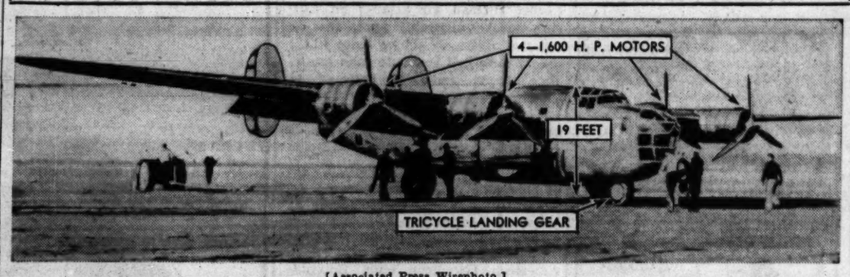
Factories Feel Pinch.

During the coldest weather, many schools closed for weeks because of the coal shortage. To save paper, newspapers have reduced their size. Factories dependent on raw materials have slowed production to a snail's pace or shut down.

The textile industry is one of the hardest hit because it is impossible to obtain steady supplies of American cotton thru the British-French blockade.

Count Paul Teleki, premier of Hungary, recently said the neutrals would have to carry still more of the brunt of the war and that their real privations have yet to come. The average family fears he is right.

United States Army Air Corps' Newest Bomber



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The XB-24, after trial flights at San Diego, Cal. The plane, larger than the present "flying fortresses" has speed of more than 300 miles an hour, a range of 3,000 miles, and carries four tons of bombs. It is 64 feet long and has a wing spread of 110 feet. It is all metal, built by Consolidated Aircraft corporation.

PACT BRINGS NO RUSSIAN TRADE, BRITONS TOLD

Commons Gets Report on 3 Months' Deals.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Sir Andrew Duncan, new president of the board of trade, was asked in the house of commons this evening what commercial transactions had taken place between Britain and Russia in the last three months.

Sir Andrew Duncan.

It was pointed out that publication of particulars regarding Britain's trade with certain countries had been suspended since the war began. In regard to an agreement with the soviet trade delegation concluded last October for the exchange of timber against rubber and tin, Duncan said he was informed that it had not yet been found possible to exchange the commodities contemplated in that agreement. He added that shipping difficulties were responsible.

Council to Push Trade.

Sir Andrew declared that the immediate task of England's new export council would be to assist the organization of export trade with a view to maintaining it as a vital part of the country's war effort.

Four of the members of the council have agreed to devote their whole time to the work of the council and are serving without pay. One of the main functions of the council will be to help coördinate the activities of export traders.

Welles to Be Welcomed.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, asked by Arthur Greenwood, Laborite, for a statement on the forthcoming visit of the American undersecretary of state, Sumner Welles, said that the government was ready to welcome him and take him fully into its confidence with the object of assisting President Roosevelt to form an estimate of the present situation.

The prime minister recalled that Welles, who will sail for Europe next Saturday, will visit Italy, France, Germany, and Britain, and that any statement made to him would in the strictest confidence be communicated by him only to the President and the secretary of state.

Britain Buys Turkish Tobacco.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 13 (AP).—British representatives were reported today to have concluded a contract for the purchase of $4,000,000 worth of Turkish tobacco annually, with the possibility of a further substantial increase. The British ministry of supply also was said to have contracted for 5,750 tons of dried raisins and figs.

Undergoes Tests

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 13 [Special].—The army air corps' newest bomber, the XB-24, made successful trial flights over San Diego. The all-metal ship, built by Consolidated Aircraft corporation, is larger than the present "flying fortresses." It has a speed of over 300 miles an hour, a range of 3,000 miles, and carries four tons of bombs.

Nominee for Irish Envoy Post Is Roosevelt Guest

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—David Gray of Florida, who was nominated last week by President Roosevelt to be United States minister to Ireland, was a guest of the President at the White House today. Gray, who is an uncle by marriage of Mrs. Roosevelt, will be the sixth member of the Roosevelt family, including the President himself, in government service. His nomination is expected to encounter no opposition in the senate. A native of Buffalo, N. Y., Gray maintains a legal residence in Sarasota, Fla.

BRITISH AIRMEN BATTLE BOMBER OVER THE THAMES

LONDON, Feb., 13 (AP).—The air ministry tonight announced that three British Spitfire fighting planes made "effective hits" on a German Heinkel bomber at the mouth of the Thames river despite fading light today in a 14,000 foot dive attack.

"Daylight already was fading when three British fighters sighted a raider a thousand feet above them," the communique said.

"When the raider saw them, he at once began a long twisting dive toward a patch of clouds far behind him.

"The three Spitfires followed, firing in turn as they dived. As fast as the raider eluded the fire of one, another was ready to take up the attack. Several bursts of fire took effect."

The communique said the German plane last was seen "heading eastward into the clouds and darkness."

A Copenhagen broadcast said that four British airmen adrift on a rubber float in the North sea had been picked up by a Danish vessel and transferred to a British warship.

FRANCE SETS UP POLICE WATCH ON SOVIET EMBASSY

Charges It Is Linked to Outlawed Communists.

PARIS, Feb. 13 (AP).—A French special police detachment began a watch over the Russian embassy tonight, disregarding the conventional immunity that diplomatic representatives of one country enjoy in another.

The foreign ministry said the watch had been set because of the embassy's connection with the outlawed communist party in France.

Authorities declared that the placing of the guard at the embassy building in the Rue de Grenelle was an action no more severe than regulations imposed by the Russians on the French embassy in Moscow, where visitors sometimes are questioned, searched, and even photographed.

Soviet-French Rift Widens.

Observers noted that the French acted as Germany and Russia drew closer together and relations between Russia and France became cooler.

The soviets protested last week against a police raid on the Russian trade office here. France rejected the protest. Yesterday the Germans and Russians announced completion of a new agreement intended to speed trade between them. French officials were inclined to see political as well as economic importance in the pact.

Germans Attack Outpost.

On the western front, despite intense cold, a German infantry unit was reported by the French to have tried unsuccessfully to overpower a section of French defenses near Luxemburg.

"East of the Moselle [river] an enemy raid, preceded by trench mortar and artillery fire, failed completely," said tonight's communique of the British-French high command. "Infantry and artillery fire on the Rhine. Aviation activity during the middle of the day."

Nothing "Special," Says Berlin.

[The German high command reported yesterday: "No special events."]

British reconnaissance planes were reported by French sources to have flown over northwest Germany and to have been attacked by German pursuit ships. All were said to have regained their bases in France.

SWEDEN JAILS 3 PROMINENT MEN ON SPY CHARGES

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 13.—Three socially prominent men, including Donald W. Beach, a 39 year old Briton, were arrested tonight on spy charges. The others are Ted Lindh, 45, said to have been born in England, and Sven Erik Hansson, 57, a ship broker of Oexeloesund, one of the principal Baltic ports for the iron ore exports for Germany.

The trio, whom police say have confessed, will be tried in secret Wednesday.

AUTOMOBILE engineers talk a lot about car weight — and with good reason.

They know that riding qualities begin with enough road weight to hold you steady on your course—they know that weight is often another measure of size—above all, they know that weight means substance, strength, durability.

So it's interesting to note that this trim Buick SPECIAL gives you more weight per dollar than almost any other car you can buy.

With all its husky straight-eight power—power that's like velvet because engines are balanced after assembly — with all its room, and style, and comfort — this Buick still has one of the lowest costs-per-pound of any car on the market.

And nowhere else will you find valve-in-head power, all-coil springing, torque-tube steadiness and Buick's plussage in accessories at the figures that apply to the SPECIAL.

So if a little extra money is keeping you out of a Buick, take another look at those dollars.

They buy more car to begin with. More size and more substance.

They buy some six dozen new 1940 features, including many an "extra."

And you'll get most of them back in longer life and higher trade-in value —not to mention your fun and solid satisfaction!

BRITISH FORM BIG COLONIAL ARMY IN THE NEAR EAST

More Anzacs Trained for Service in War.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Feb. 13.—Great Britain is building up a great colonial army in the near east, it was reported here today following the arrival in Egypt yesterday of the first expeditionary forces of Australia and New Zealand. It was estimated that the Anzac troops numbered 30,000.

Other units will be added to these forces. These units will sail when their training is completed and until Australia and New Zealand each have a minimum of two divisions in the field.

Details of Trip Bared.

Some of the details of the 10,000 mile trip from the Antipodes to Suez were disclosed after the Anzacs had disembarked. Leaving here Jan. 6, the New Zealanders went to Australia where they were joined by the first Australian units to go abroad. The troops were strongly convoyed on the voyage, their protection including one of the most powerful warships of the British fleet.

The manner of the departure of New Zealand's expeditionary force was different from that of 1914. Sentiment was sacrificed for efficiency. There were no farewell parades, blaring bands, crowded docks as the troopships pulled out. The men marched thru the capital one day, then returned to camp. Later they were taken to the docks by train. The soldiers embarked and troopships moved away.

The expeditionary forces traveled in a different manner than did the Anzacs in the world war. The men of 1914 were crowded on merchantmen. Ships carried more than 1,000 men and hundreds of horses.

Troops Ride in Luxury.

One of the ships of 1940 carried only 1,100 men tho it has passenger accommodations for 3,000 persons. The troops rode to war in luxury.

It was expected that the Anzacs would go to Egypt. When it appeared that Italy might line up with Germany, Britain and France intended to give Australia and New Zealand the task of mopping up Italy's Ethiopia, invading it from the east. With Italy out of the war, the troops will receive more training in the near east, recruit to full strength, and be given lacking equipment. After that it is believed they will be used against the Germans if there is any move into the Balkans.

Britain and France, it is said here, have completed plans to act in conjunction with Turkey if the Nazis start anything in the Balkans, or if Russia widens the war. The Anzacs will take part in the fighting if hostilities break out in that region.

Benefits Are Cited.

The benefit of sending the Antipodeans to the near east is obvious. It means the British have less troopships to send thru waters menaced by U-boats. Australia and New Zealand do not have to ship their men so far and risk them in narrow seas. The British empire is taking advantage of its scattered position to link each unit with the nearest theater of action.

The Antipodeans are now forming part of that empire reserve which former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha predicted in the house of commons last March. This reserve, to lessen the calls on the fleet for escort duty, was first included in the two divisions stationed in Palestine, divisions of two brigades each of four battalions.

The near east force is regarded as a separate army, with its own reserves and free to act any where within the radius of British interests in that part of the world.

It is the intention to use Indian army troops largely in this new force, according to reports here, as they are believed to be equal to the Italians, and possibly to the Russians. They would not likely be employed against German units. Indian troops largely have been used outside of India even in peace time.

Australians and New Zealanders are specially suited to service in the near east because they come from a climate approximating that of the Mediterranean zone. They would be less likely to crumple under the strain of the climate than British troops.

Australians in Palestine.

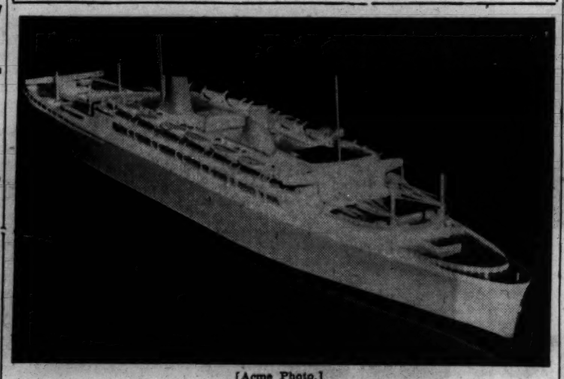
Bids Asked on Convertible Liners



[Acme Photo.]

Model of a liner on which bids are being asked by the United States Maritime commission. The ship, planned for use in the Pacific ocean, is to be designed in such a manner that it can be converted into a fully equipped aircraft carrier.

Details Made Public

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13 (AP).—The Maritime Commission made public today details of two giant trans-Pacific liners, capable of being quickly converted into aircraft carriers, which it plans shortly to place under contract.

They will be 759 feet overall, with a beam on the water line of 98.2 feet—larger than any ships ever built in an American yard.

Intended for operation between San Francisco and the orient, the luxury liners will have a displacement of 35,500 tons and speed of 24 knots. They will carry 1,000 passengers and a ship's personnel of about 500.

The commission called the design "unique," adding that construction of such ships had never before been undertaken in any country. Bids for construction will be opened May 7.

British Hunt 'Meateasies,' Run by Bootleg Butchers

LONDON, Feb. 13.—British officials are on the lookout for "meateasies," run by bootleg butchers who have been killing animals secretly at unauthorized slaughter houses in an attempt to beat the government's meat control. The maximum penalty for bootlegging meat is two years imprisonment and a fine of $2,000.

TRAPPING OF NAZI BLOCKADERUNNER TOLD BY ADMIRAL

Wakama Found by Plane; Sunk by Warship.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 13 (AP).—The story of the British navy's quick pounce upon the richly laden German freighter Wakama as she tried to slip thru the South Atlantic blockade yesterday was told today by Rear Admiral Sir Henry Harwood, commander of British forces in the South Atlantic.

Rear Admiral Sir Henry Harwood [above]; map locates scenes of Wakama and Graf Spee sinkings.

After she left Rio de Janeiro Sunday night, he said, the Wakama was sighted Monday and ordered to surrender by a British scouting plane. Overhauled by a British cruiser, the Wakama was set afire by her crew and finally sunk by the cruiser as a menace to navigation. The warship rescued the crew.

Sir Henry—who won his knighthood recently as commander of the British forces which trapped the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee—indicated the apprehension of the Wakama had been easy.

Admiral Sails as "Passenger."

Sir Henry was in the vicinity at the time aboard the cruiser Hawkins as a "passenger." The cruisers Shropshire and Dorsetshire also were in the region, presumably about 50 miles off Cabo Frio, east of Rio de Janeiro. One of them—Sir Henry would not say which—overhauled the Wakama.

"I didn't see the Wakama burning," he said, "but I know she burned and sank because of a communication I received from the other cruiser. I understood they finished her off so she would not menace other shipping."

After stating that the 3,771 ton Wakama had first been sighted by a scouting plane—the Shropshire and Dorsetshire each carry one—Sir Henry added:

"The plane did not attack; it simply gave the word to give up."

Then the cruiser closed in. The Hawkins, the commander said, made no move.

Orders Ship "Taken Care Of."

"We were in communication with the other cruiser. She located the Wakama and asked for instructions. I said, 'You take care of her; we are going on to Rio de Janeiro.'"

The cruiser picked up the Wakama's 10 officers and 36 men from lifeboats to which they had taken after firing their ship. The Hawkins came on here, arriving last night.

Sir Henry denied reports published here that the Hawkins had sunk the German freighter Wolfsburg, which sailed from Recife Feb. 3 and has not been reported.

Eight Ships Try to Run Blockade.

The Wakama was the eighth German merchantman to leave a Brazilian port in an attempt to run the blockade this year. One, La Coruna, which left nine days ago, "apparently escaped the British cruiser awaiting her offshore," Sir Henry said.

The other vessels were the Uruguay, which left Recife with foodstuffs shortly before the Wakama sailed from Rio de Janeiro; the Konigsberg, Sao Paulo, Bahia, Santos, and the Wolfsburg.

[In London the Evening News said six German merchantmen had left Vigo, Spain, Feb. 10 in an attempt to reach Germany in a dash thru the British blockade. The ships took refuge in the Spanish port at the outbreak of the war. They were listed as the Wangoni, 7,848 tons; Orizaba, 6,937; Waheke, 6,937; Arucas, 3,369; Rostock, 2,542; Morea, 1,927.]

Her Driver Wins

[Acme Photo.]

MERLE OBERON.

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—Merle Oberon's chauffeur won a court ruling today that her insurers must pay the £5,000 [about $20,000] damages and court costs which the movie actress unexpectedly gained from him as a result of an automobile accident March 16, 1937.

Miss Oberon sued Edward J. Bundy, driver of the other car, for personal injuries, but Sidney J. Digby, her chauffeur, was made a defendant when the other driver blamed him. Holding Digby negligent, the court dismissed Bundy and made Digby liable for the damages.

REFUSES TO CALL ON JAPS IN U. S. TO EXPLOIT ISLAND

Arita Says Act Would Harm Relations.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Feb. 14, Wednesday (AP). — Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told the Japanese diet today there are "200 odd" unsettled cases of damage to American interests in China. In listing the cases, he said, there are 149 American protests over aerial bombings, 73 because of other damage or temporary use of American properties and 10 or more arising from commercial restrictions.

TOKIO, Feb. 13 (AP).—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita today turned aside a suggestion that Japanese emigrants be recalled from North America to help exploit Hainan, Japanese occupied island off China's southern coast, and the Netherlands East Indies.

Arita told parliament that it was doubtful whether such a course could be followed "for fear of worsening Japanese-American relations," but that the government would cooperate with Japanese emigrants wishing to settle elsewhere.

Last week Arita said Japan had no territorial designs on the Netherlands' possessions, but wished to expand her commerce with them.

[Large scale Japanese emigration to the United States was ended by the gentlemen's agreement of 1907, but in 1930 the United States had a Japanese population of about 140,000, about half of them born in America.]

Arita's settlement today replied to a question from Rekichi Kita, member of Minseito, the leading political party, whether Japanese would be recalled to work for "exploitation of the natural resources of Hainan and the Netherlands East Indies."

POLISH MOVIE EXHIBITOR WINS DELAY OF TRIAL

Boles Patzkoski, 32 years old, 2040 Humboldt boulevard, who was arrested Monday night on a charge of exhibiting without a police permit a moving picture of the German invasion of Poland, was granted a continuance yesterday by Judge Mason S. Sullivan in South State street court.

Patzkoski, an employé of a real estate concern and head of the Polish American Citizens' league, which sponsored the film, asked the delay to allow him time to hire a lawyer.

Lieut. Harry M. Costello of the police film censorship detail arrested Patzkoski in a hall at 3310 Morgan street, where 500 men and women of Polish descent were viewing the film.

RED CROSS AIDS FOR POLES FREED BY BRITISH NAVY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—Eight shipments of medical supplies and clothing for Poland have been released by the British contraband control and are en route from Genoa, Italy, to Cracow, Poland, the American Red Cross announced here today.

The Red Cross previously had sent $25,000 worth of medical supplies to Poland for the benefit of the sick and wounded. The original shipment was bought in Europe. The Red Cross has spent $397,434 for Polish relief and sent 50,000 garments donated by various chapters since last October.

The Independent Commission for Polish Relief, Inc., with headquarters in Chicago, headed by Chauncey Mc Cormick, of Chicago, is campaigning for funds for Poland from its New York headquarters. The commission plans to supply food and clothing for the destitute in Poland to supplement the medical aid given by the Red Cross. Herbert Hoover is a member of the commission's executive committee.

Admiral Stark Criticizes Neutrality Zone.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Boosting its economy efforts to the $270,000,000 mark, the house appropriations committee today recommended a reduction of $111,000,000 in President Roosevelt's navy budget.

Admiral Harold R. Stark.

Even with this slash, however, the navy would be provided during the coming fiscal year with nearly a billion dollars under the navy appropriation bill as submitted to the house by the committee today. The President had demanded an appropriation of 1 billion 78 million dollars. The committee recommended cutting that figure to approximately $967,000,000.

The committee's decision was reached after hearings in which Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, was a witness.

In previous appropriation bills the committee and congress have approved economies totaling $159,000,000. If the committee's reduction in the navy budget is upheld in the house, congress will be well past the halfway mark in its attempt to save the $460,000,000 which the President has urged shall be raised by new taxes.

Reduces Battleship Outlay.

The navy bill as submitted to the house cut $7,750,000 from the sums recommended by the President for two new 45,000 ton battleships and two new cruisers. The committee allowed enough money to proceed with plans for the two battleships but recommended against actual laying of the keels until it could be determined if ships of 50,000 tons or more might not be advisable.

"The committee is of the opinion that definite advantages will be secured by making the new capital ships and the additional cruisers not equal to, but superior to, any pending foreign construction," the committee declared.

Mr. Roosevelt today announced that he had signed a measure appropriating $252,000,000 to defray costs of the so-called neutrality patrol in the Atlantic. The President ordered ships to duty in that patrol last September under an emergency proclamation.

Stark Discourages Limits.

The patrol has been attacked in congress as a futile and extravagant gesture costing the nation a quarter of a billion dollars. In testimony before the appropriations committee made public today, Admiral Stark was revealed to have criticized as futile the attempt to establish any form of neutrality zone.

Representative James G. Scrugham [D., Nev.] asked Admiral Stark about the advisability of a congressional resolution establishing some boundary beyond the three mile limit which this country would pledge itself to defend.

"It is doubtful if the world at large would willingly submit to what it might consider high handed procedure on our part," Stark declared. "If we failed diplomatically to obtain international acceptance of our contention, we would either have to give in or fight to put it over."

ASSERTS NATION DOES NOT NEED MORE HOSPITALS

Venice, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Vacant beds in present hospitals were cited to the American College of Surgeons today as proof that government construction of additional hospitals to serve the poor is not necessary.

"From 1928 to 1938 there was an increase of 61,987 hospital beds in the United States of America," Dr. E. J. McCormick of Grand Rapids, Mich., said in an address. "In 1938 there was an average daily census of 132,454 empty beds in general hospitals.

"Mortality in states where the population has lower incomes among so-called poor people has been advanced as an argument in favor of government medicine, but no amount of physicians and the building of additional hospitals will substitute for the lack of food, clothing, and housing.

"Give the people of these localities health education, proper and decent food, clean homes, toilet facilities, and shoes and decent wages and the incidence of malaria, hookworm, and pellagra and other diseases will decline."

Benld Man Gets Hershey's State Committeeman Post

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13 (AP).—George Sprinkel, Sangamon county Democratic chairman, tonight announced that Joseph Rizzi of Benld has been named Democratic state committeeman from the 21st district to succeed Harry B. Hershey, Democratic gubernatorial candidate. Sprinkel said the selection was made today at a meeting of county chairmen of the four counties comprising the district, Sangamon, Christian, Macoupin, and Montgomery.

HORSE AND BUGGY DOCTORS NEEDED, PHYSICIANS TOLD

Dr. Cutter Hails Services of Old Practitioners.

The virtues that made the horse and buggy doctor a healer, confidant, and family counselor are needed anew in the medical profession, the Congress on Medical Education and Licensure was told yesterday in the Palmer House by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

"The doctor who lacks humanity rates about 10 per cent of par as a counselor when some member of the family is ill," he said.

Dr. Cutter spoke on the need of more careful selection of medical students in order to counteract tendencies of the public to regard the profession with less confidence than in earlier days.

Finds Medicine Is Puzzled.

"Today medicine is puzzled," Dr. Cutter said, "not because our techniques have not advanced but because public appreciation of our efforts has dropped, at least in some quarters. It has been said that our group now is accorded less respect and less understanding than at any time in the last two generations.

"We may say there is no place in the healing art for sharpness, shrewdness, or those tricks of trade which may make for success—with but few, let us hope—in the commercial world. But how can we be sure that we are not swinging too far to the acid side, curdling the milk of human kindness?

"If the student lacks sound moral worth, we may be guilty of indorsing with a diploma a menace to society."

Bedside Manner Needed.

In analyzing the human qualities that command the confidence of patients in a physician Dr. Cutter said that the fashion of laughing at the "bedside manner" had done real harm to the profession.

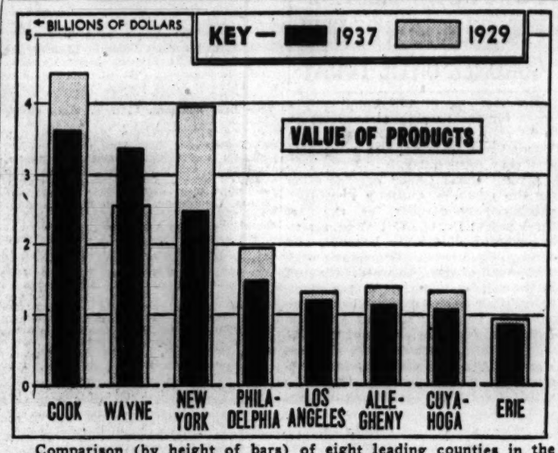
"Quite too much satire," he said, "has been directed toward 'a good bedside manner.' The attributes of a gentleman reflect themselves in conduct, and we all agree that there is no excuse for the occasional blunt, even brutal, approach to those who are in pain. Our physician should be blessed with those traits of heart and mind that will lead his patients to the certain knowledge that he is personally concerned and that he will leave no stone unturned for their recovery."

Refugee Plan Recommended.

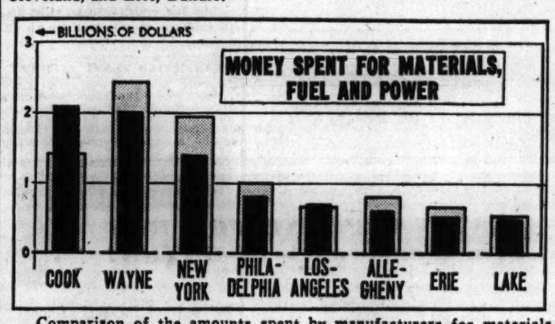
A program for resettling European refugee physicians in the United States was recommended by a committee of doctors. The committee's report urged placing the physicians in areas where doctors are needed. The report was presented by Dr. Joseph H. Pratt of Boston, Mass., and Dr. Irving Graef of New York before the federation of state medical boards.

"Altho no nation has been as hospitable to these persecuted people as the United States," the report said, "restrictions by various states have prevented their proper distribution to meet admitted medical needs. Their concentration in cities is undesirable, and they know it and are eager for any opportunity to practice their profession in communities which may find them acceptable."

Chicago Leads in Manufactures



Comparison (by height of bars) of eight leading counties in the value of manufactured products in 1937, compared with 1929. The counties named are identified with the following industrial centers: Cook, Chicago; Wayne, Detroit; New York, New York; Philadelphia, Philadelphia; Los Angeles, Los Angeles; Alleghany, Pittsburgh; Cuyahoga, Cleveland, and Erie, Buffalo.



Comparison of the amounts spent by manufacturers for materials, fuel, and power in the eight counties leading in that respect in 1937 (black bars) and 1929 (gray). Lake refers to the Gary and Calumet industrial district.

FACTORY OUTPUT OF COOK COUNTY BIGGEST IN LAND

Cook county has recaptured its 1929 position as the industrial leader among the nation's 3,070 counties, it was disclosed yesterday by the department of commerce. The department's report indicated that industries in the county in 1937 produced more goods in terms of dollar value than those in any other county in the United States.

The county lost this position in 1933 to New York county when it placed second in the value of goods produced. The 1937 comeback, however, fell short of the 1929 mark. The value of manufactures in Cook county in 1937 dropped 18.1 per cent to $3,647,765,127 from $4,453,116,631 in 1929. The 1937 production, however, represented an increase of 108.1 per cent from $1,752,799,778 in 1933.

Factories Spend 2 Billions.

Manufacturers in the county in 1937 spent $2,053,143,015 for raw materials, power and fuel. This was the second largest expenditure among the nation's counties. Wayne county, Mich., ranked first in manufacturing outlay with $2,104,398,259.

Cook county, however, was first in manufacturing expenditures in 1933 with $907,756,383 and in 1929 with $2,429,193,130.

The commerce department's study of county industrial trends was based on the biennial census of manufactures from 1929 thru 1937. It compares industrial statistics for 1929, the peak of prosperity, with those for 1933, the depth of the depression, and with those for 1937, the latest year for which census reports are available and tabulated. A new census of manufactures for 1939 is now being taken.

Compares Purchasing Power.

The analysis of the statistics was intended to reveal comparisons of consumer and industrial purchasing power in the different counties in the United States. The study showed that one-fourth of the total value of products manufactured in the country or $15,350,767,000 was concentrated in only 8 counties.

These leading counties in the order of their position were Cook county, Illinois; Wayne county, Michigan [Detroit]; New York county, New York; Philadelphia county, Pennsylvania; Los Angeles county, California; Alleghany county, Pennsylvania [Pittsburgh]; Cuyahoga county, Ohio [Cleveland], and Erie county, New York [Buffalo].

REPORTS DENTAL ILLS RESPOND TO X-RAY THERAPY

Dr. E. H. Grubbe Talks to Chicago Society.

A new approach, that of X-ray, in the treatment of dental infections, was reported yesterday before the Chicago Dental society by Dr. Emil H. Grubbe.

Dr. Grubbe, known as the father of X-ray therapy, brought it into being on Jan. 29, 1896, when he exposed the cancerous breast of a woman to X-rays. Since then he has experimented endlessly with it. In this, his latest study, he found X-rays to be efficacious in 15 diseases of the mouth, ranging from gingivitis [swollen gums] to halitosis.

7,000 at Annual Meeting.

All dental or oral infections, without exception, are of bacterial origin, he pointed out in a paper read before some of the 7,000 dentists, technicians, and students attending the society's 76th annual midwinter meeting held in the Stevens hotel. In curing these infections, he said, the only problem worth serious study is the bacteriological problem. This is the field of X-ray.

"Up to now," he said, "the dental profession has not urged X-ray as therapeutic, yet for many years X-ray has been used, with impressive results, in treating carbuncles, sinusitis, tonsilitis, mastoiditis, adenitis, and other infections. Why not infections of the mouth?"

New Cleft Palate Operation.

Dr. James Barrett Brown of St. Louis, assistant professor of clinical surgery at Washington university, reported the perfection of a new surgical technique for the correction of cleft palate. By this technique the palate is corrected in a single operation, rather than a series.

He described the operation as a closure and elongation of the palate without the necessity of skin grafts. It makes it possible for the cleft palate patient to overcome almost entirely his characteristic speech defect.

TROOPERS SAVE 2 NEGRO WOMEN SEIZED BY MOB

Officer Hurt in Battle with Crowd of 1,000.

Snow Hill, Md., Feb. 14, Wednesday (AP).—Five state troopers overtook a crowd estimated officially at 1,000 at nearby Stockton, Md., early today and in a brief mêlée rescued two Negro women who had been dragged from the Worcester county jail here several hours earlier.

The women had been taken into custody yesterday for questioning in connection with the slaying Sunday night of Harvey W. Pilchard, Stockton farmer, and the wounding of his wife.

The rescue party started immediately for Delaware, about 50 miles away, and announced the women would be taken to Baltimore for safekeeping.

Trooper Beaten on Head.

Sergt. W. H. Weber of the state police was painfully injured when the rescue party clashed with the crowd, Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor announced at Annapolis. The governor said he was told that Weber, battered on the head with a club, managed to load the women into an automobile and drove away.

Police said the women were not mistreated and that the crowd bought them food and clothing in an effort to get them to tell about Pilchard's slaying.

The crowd dispersed after the rescue and police indicated the situation was under control, with reënforcements ordered by the governor arriving.

Report Mob Member Shot.

It was reported one member of the crowd was shot in the leg and another suffered head injuries.

The governor also announced that two Negro men who had been taken into custody had been moved from the jail at Salisbury to some undisclosed place.

The crowd first gathered at the jail here yesterday afternoon, apparently believing that the men who slew Pilchard were in custody. They dispersed after Sheriff J. William Hall assured them that he had no prisoners there except the two women and proved it by permitting members of the mob to go thru the jail.

Later in the evening, however, the throng returned, battered in a window, attached a rope to a cell block door, ripped it from its fastenings, and seized the two women.

Early in the evening the crowd, noisy as it stood about the lawn of the jail here, had battered in a window, attached a rope to a cell block door, and ripped it from its fastenings.

The women then were placed in automobiles and taken to Stockton, where the crowd was met by the police detail.

Supreme Court Upholds Father's Fight for Son

The Illinois Supreme court ruled yesterday that John J. Whalen of 7430 Peoria street shall have sole custody of John Jr., 3½ years old. The child's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheehan of 845 West 54th street claimed John Jr. after his mother died. The child had been living recently with his father.

MARGINS OF BENEFIT

By CALEB

ONE OF my friends is by way of being an Original Thinker. He likes to take situations apart; to shoot at them mentally from new angles. He enjoys pushing ideas inside out, or viewing them in reverse . . . We had been talking, for example, about big and successful enterprises as targets for popular criticism. "It is to laugh," he snorted, "when you consider the one most important thing that these petty vilifiers of great corporations overlook in their calculations.

"I mean," he continued, "the margins of benefit that such institutions bring to their communities. The enormous and invaluable civic, social, cultural and ethical by-products, as it were, of their normal operations; margins that spread out into, and enrich, their environment far and wide—sometimes to distances, and to degrees, that are unpredictable.

"Suppose, for example, the efforts of Marshall Field as a merchant had resulted in failure? How many margins of benefit to his time and place would such a negative outcome have eliminated? There would have been, perhaps, no Field Museum, no Shedd Aquarium, no Field Garden Apartments, no Merchandise Mart, no Field Building, no world-famous department store—to say nothing of the splendid enhancements of municipal greatness represented by the successcareers of other men like Shedd, Selfridge, Simpson, and Higinbotham, whose fortunes flowered from his own.

"Trade triumphs of such giants as Field—and the 'big business' that eventuates therefrom—produce these priceless public advantages inevitably. You couldn't prevent them from happening if you would. In plain truth, the progress of culture, education, science, research, invention, philanthropy, in America, has been tremendously advanced by the possibilities here, as in no other country, for manufacturers and merchants to amass wealth from the success of their varied undertakings.

"Marshall Field's primary purpose was to be a capable merchandiser. He wanted to have a store of his own. He finally accomplished it. But, being as able at selecting associates as he was in handling commodities, the possibilities of that purpose multiplied; the personal side soon exhausted itself. Field's success expanded into innumerable contributions to public affairs. What started and grew as a business became a constructive social force, a community energizer—a tremendous power for city building and beautifying.

"In that sense, every successful and public-spirited business is more than a business. Its margins of benefit, in fact, are one of Trade's incalculable contributions to contemporary civilization and progress."

MAYOR TO INVITE REPUBLICANS TO CONVENE IN CITY

Leads Group to National Committee Meeting.

Mayor Kelly and a group of Chicago representatives will leave today for Washington determined to persuade the Republicans to hold their national convention here. The Republican national committee meets on Friday to select the convention site.

The mayor, successful in bidding for the Democratic convention, asserted that he would do all in his power to persuade the Republicans that Chicago is a logical choice for their gathering. It was a moot question, however, whether the mayor would use the same financial lure.

Carries No Financial Pledge.

At the last minute Mayor Kelly won over the Democrats by pledging that the city would underwrite $150,000 for convention expenses. Yesterday he said Chicago would not take part in any financial bidding before the Republican committee, which has indicated in the past it is not interested in bidding. Spokesmen for the Association of Commerce, however, said it was expected that the city "may prove willing to raise a reasonable sum."

According to word from Washington, Chicago will have to compete with Philadelphia, Atlantic City, San Francisco, and St. Louis. The strongest competition is expected to come from Philadelphia, which is said to be prepared to offer $200,000.

Other Points Aid Chicago.

Three points, other than financial, are expected to aid Chicago's envoys. G. O. P. leaders are mindful of the pivotal political situation in Illinois and nearby states. They may fear that middle west opinion might be influenced by having the Democratic convention here. And they recall that in the 1932 crisis both parties met in Chicago.

Accompanying the mayor will be Hill Blackett and Bertha Baur, national Republican committeeman and committeewoman for Illinois; William J. Kelly, Chicago industrialist, representing Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Association of Commerce, and William J. Hennessy, manager of the association's convention bureau.

RECESS IN SLUSH FUND QUIZ TAKEN BY GRAND JURY

The Will county grand jury's investigation of the Illinoisans, the agency collecting Democratic state campaign funds, recessed yesterday until tomorrow. A number of former guards at the Joliet penitentiaries have testified that they were told to contribute to the slush fund despite their status as civil service employés.

"Too Pretty"

MRS. CALLA FORTIN.

Mrs. Calla Fortin, 24 years old, testified yesterday that her husband, Policeman Verne Fortin of the Kensington station, was extremely jealous of her good looks. This domestic situation led to quarrels, and then to blows, her attorney, Victor Frohlich, told the court. Judge Rudolph F. Desort awarded her a divorce on the ground of cruelty. Mrs. Fortin, a former vaudeville dancer, will get their home at 11824 Eggleston avenue by terms of an out of court settlement.

MAYOR STUMPED; ASKS WHAT TO DO WITH EXTRA CASH

Queries Taxpayers on $500,000 Surplus.

Montclair, N. J., Feb. 13 [Special].—The taxpayers of this Essex county town were engrossed today in the pleasant quandary of what should be done with a $500,000 surplus in the town treasury.

Each of Montclair's 8,500 taxpayers received a letter from Mayor William E. Speers asking for an opinion on whether all of the savings should be applied against next year's tax levies, or if some should be used to reduce the town's bonded debt.

The town was set upon its successful course four years ago when citizens threw out a political machine and drafted four business men to the city commission.

Commute to Own Offices.

The four, including Mayor Speers, are Republicans, and like many of the town's 42,000 residents, commute daily to New York business offices. The fifth member of the commission, James J. McMahon, is a county Democratic leader.

The new commission found the municipality virtually bankrupt. Tax delinquencies had soared to more than $1,000,000, pushing the tax rate higher every year. Improvements were stagnated by the empty treasury.

Onto this scene came the business men's commission. Operating on the theory that a "penny saved is a penny earned," the commissioners put into practice common sense policies that had proved successful in their private enterprises.

Town's Debt Cut $1,685,000.

In four years they reduced the town's debt by $1,685,000. They reduced the tax levy by $746,000. By favorable refunding operations they wiped out bank debts of more than $1,000,000. They restored to city employés pay cuts amounting to $150,000. Relief was paid on a cash and carry basis. The city's 1940 tax bill will be $3,243,000, a decrease of about $500,000 from 1939.

ENGINEERS UNION DEMANDS PARLEY WITH LAUNDRIES

Members of the Independent Union of Operating Engineers, unaffiliated, at a meeting last night at 1016 North Dearborn street, appointed a committee empowered to call a strike unless the Chicago Laundry Owners' association agrees to negotiate wages and hours.

The committee, headed by Edward S. Marshinski, president, and Oscar Salenger, attorney for the union, will meet today in Salenger's office at 105 West Madison street.

Marshinski said this action was taken after the owners failed to reply to letters asking for a conference. The union is a rebel offshoot of an American Federation of Labor union. It claims a membership of 700, 200 of whom are high pressure steam engineers employed by large laundries.

DEMOCRATS DROP SEIF AND MAKE A PLACE FOR BRAND

Former City Treasurer to Run for Sanitary Trustee.

The Democratic organization has dropped Sanitary Trustee George Seif, former alderman, and will slate former City Treasurer Gustave A. Brand in his place for the April 9 primary, it was learned yesterday.

Edward J. Barrett.

Petitions bearing Brand's name and those of the reslated trustees, James M. Whalen and Joseph T. Baran, were placed in the hands of the ward committeeman.

Seif's troubles are said to be organizational and not entirely because of his support of State's Attorney Courtney in the 1939 mayoralty primary. Furthermore, the organization wished to have a strong German name on the ticket and Brand is well known and respected in German-American circles.

Seif is also of German descent, but the organization seemed to feel that Brand would be a better vote getter.

Barrett Still a Candidate.

On the state front, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett repeated yesterday that he is still a candidate for a third term despite the fact that he was dumped by slate makers from the so-called Democratic harmony ticket adopted in Springfield Saturday. Barrett said 50,000 persons had signed his petitions in 48 hours and that he would go into the primary "with both fists swinging."

Barrett was supplanted by John C. Martin of Salem, congressman at large and former state treasurer, who has been classified as a follower of the Chicago organization.

While Barrett was making his announcement, Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, in Springfield, issued a statement that was interpreted to mean he would accept reslating as lieutenant governor despite his desire to run for top spot on the ticket.

Others File for Primary.

On the Republican side, Edward T. O'Connor of Peoria, a state committeeman, filed petitions for the nomination for attorney general a few minutes before a Chicagoan, Attorney George Landon, 110 South Dearborn street, also announced for the post. Other Springfield listings of filings by candidates in the Chicago area follow:

CONGRESS—1st district—Republican, Richard E. Parker, 1138 West 95th place, Chicago; 6th district, Republican, Daniel J. McLoraine, 842 South Wesley avenue, Oak Park; 7th district, Republican, James J. Ripley, 1124 N. Parkside avenue, Chicago; 8th district, Republican, Edmund Lagona, 1214 N. Bell avenue, Chicago; Leopold Lagona, 1942 West Division street, Chicago; Phillip Koczorowski, 1057 N. Marshfield avenue, Chicago; Louis Slowik, 717 N. Racine avenue, Chicago; 9th district, Republican, T. McCormick Hartford, 1122 N. Clark street, Chicago.

DELEGATE TO CONVENTION—8th district, Republican, Leon C. Welkowicz, 1540 Chestnut street, Chicago; John Kozlowski, 1433 Chestnut street, Chicago; John Wach, 1016 Erie street, Chicago.

ALTERNATE DELEGATE—8th district, Republican, Stanley Godsicki, 1035 N. Marshfield avenue, Chicago; Adam Jesak, 1757 Augusta boulevard, Chicago; 13th district, Augusta boulevard, Chicago.

No announcement has been made yet by State Treasurer Louie E. Lewis, who was placed on the Democratic slate for congressman-at-large, but has said he didn't care to go to Washington.

INJURED IN MATCH PLANT ACCIDENT.

POSTPONE MEETING FOR SELECTION OF NEW CORONER UNTIL TODAY

The meeting of the Cook county board for the naming of a successor to Coroner Frank J. Walsh, who died Monday in California, was postponed yesterday until today.

Among those under consideration for the post are Anthony Prusinski, chief deputy coroner for the last three years; Dr. Ole C. Nelson, assistant warden of County hospital, and John A. Szumnarski, Democratic committeeman of the 35th ward. Clayton F. Smith, county board president, named four others who are being considered. They are Richard Frohlich, Democratic committeeman of the 15th ward; State Representative Carmen Vacco of the 17th district and Democratic committeeman in the 20th ward; Christ A. Jenson, 40th ward Democratic committeeman and purchasing agent for the board of education, and County Commissioner Fred Fischman. Whoever is selected will serve until the November election.

On the advice of Assistant State's Attorney William J. Touhy no death certifications are being signed in the coroner's office pending the appointment of Walsh's successor.

East Paterson, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP).—Reputedly it was a haunted house, but four Clifton boys thought it would be fun to explore. They climbed to the attic, where they found the body of a man identified as Peter Lischinsky hanging from the rafters. Police listed the death as a suicide.

OREGON KEEPS UP ITS ENTHUSIASM FOR 'TOM' DEWEY

Crowds Greet Candidate at Every Train Stop.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

La Grange, Ore., Feb. 13.—Oregon continued its welcome to Thomas E. Dewey today as he took the Oregon trail back east. At Pendleton and La Grange crowds swarmed down to the station. At Baker Dewey was welcomed by a crowd gathered in a snowstorm, which set up a shout as he appeared.

Court was adjourned at The Dalles this morning while officials trooped down to the station to get a glimpse of the gang busting district attorney of New York. Dewey spoke from the rear platform of his train.

At Pendleton, a 10 minute stop, Dewey addressed a crowd of 2,000, some of whom had driven 50 miles to get a glimpse of the racket buster. La Grange turned out 2,500 strong as the train steamed in for a 10 minute stop. A microphone was set up for radio broadcast.

Crowds Shout, "Atta Boy."

With western informality, Dewey was introduced as Tom Dewey, and the crowds echoed shouts of "Hiya, Tom; atta boy!"

In this brief talk Dewey stressed the "capital erosion" phrase he developed in his Portland speech last night. From the response, the phrase and its meaning seem to have caught on out here as did the "soil erosion" phrase when the New Deal began using it.

In his speech today Dewey reiterated his onslaught on the New Deal for not balancing the budget.

"Seven years of bungling of the nation's financial housekeeping," he said, "have cast a blight on the nation. The urgent need today is to restore competence in our national government.

Discusses Misery and Taxes.

"When an astronomer makes a miscalculation in terms of billions of light years it may mean nothing more than that Halley's comet will be along Tuesday instead of Thursday.

"But when the federal government regularly miscalculates its finances in terms of billions of dollars, it is a symbol of a deeper, even more widespread incompetence. Such incompetence means misery, lack of jobs heavier taxes, and the eventual undermining of the nation itself.

"That is why the American people are thru with fuzzy minded theorists; that is why the American people this year will replace them with an administration which will appoint to public office competent, practical men of capacity and experience."

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a story printed in last Saturday's TRIBUNE, it was incorrectly stated that Attorney Roy R. Phillips of Elgin was a son of Darwin L. Phillips, Elgin contractor who died Friday. Roy Phillips was one of the three brothers of Darwin Phillips.

A story in yesterday's TRIBUNE about a fire which destroyed De Koven hall, St. John's military academy's three story administration building and dormitory in Delafield, Wis., said the building was without fire escapes. Col. Roy S. Farrand, president of the school, said every second and third floor room occupied by a cadet had a folding steel ladder beneath the window. This ladder could be dropped outside in case of fire.

ROOSEVELT WILL DODGE ILLINOIS 3D TERM STAND

Plans to Be Fishing on Withdrawal Date.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt will be at sea fishing Feb. 24, the last date on which he can withdraw his name as a Presidential candidate from the Illinois state primary.

At his press conference today Mr. Roosevelt said he will leave the White House tomorrow for a 10 day fishing trip in southern waters. He declined to say what ship he will use or from which port he will leave.

However, it is expected that the cruise will be made in the Gulf of Mexico and that the President will board a naval vessel in Florida, probably Pensacola or Tampa.

Chance to Evade Decision.

The fishing trip will allow him to sidestep committing himself on the third term issue in Illinois. He can leave his name on the ballot against Vice President John N. Garner, who has filed in Illinois, by letting the last date for withdrawal pass while he is at sea.

The President's name was entered in the primary by the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago. In the past candidates usually have accompanied such filings with declarations of intention to run. Mr. Roosevelt has not done so while Garner has.

A challenge of the legality of the Roosevelt filing on this ground is expected to be parried at Springfield by the state's Democratic bosses with a ruling by the board controling the primary election that a declaration of intention is not necessary.

Asked to comment on the Illinois and Wisconsin primaries, Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know a thing about them. Garner also has entered the Wisconsin primary and the President's name has been entered.

Conferences Abandoned.

Garner's filing in Wisconsin and Illinois, it is believed here, has led to the break up of a capitol feature—the President's Monday conference with the big four of congress—Garner, Speaker William B. Bankhead, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn.

Every Monday morning the President is in Washington during sessions of congress, the group has met to discuss the progress of the administration legislative program. Yesterday only Rayburn was invited.

Mr. Roosevelt dodged questions about the 1940 campaign. He said two delegations of Pennsylvania politicians told him a lot of things yesterday, but he didn't tell them anything. Neither would be comment on the Massachusetts situation which may find him pitted against his political right hand, Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

80 NEW CHICAGO POLICEMEN TAKE SERVICE OATHS

Eighty new policemen were sworn in as members of the department yesterday by James McSweeney, police secretary. Francis Fallon, whose father and grandfather were Chicago policemen, became the sixth Fallon brother on the force. Another new officer, Ray Stringfellow, is the son of Policeman William K. Stringfellow, shot to death by bandits in 1936. Attorney John E. Sullivan, who was also sworn in as a policeman, said he felt that the force offered greater security than the law profession.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13 (AP). — Artie Shaw, the band leader, and Lana Turner, a motion picture actress, flew to Las Vegas, Nev., and were married at 4 a. m. by Justice of the Peace George Marshall.

Artie Shaw and Lana Turner in Los Angeles after marriage. [Assoc. Press Wirephoto.]

Miss Turner, a Wallace, Idaho, girl who has been rising in pictures in the last year, gave her name as Julia Jean Turner. The bride is 19 years old. Shaw is 30. It was the first marriage for Miss Turner and Shaw's third.

Associates at the studio, where Miss Turner and Artie appeared in "Dancing Co-ed" six months ago, expressed surprise over the marriage. They recalled that they didn't get along at all, and were about the most unharmonious pair that ever worked together.

MERCHANTS MAP NORTH STATE ST. WIDENING PARLEY

David Mayer Jr., president of the State Street council, said yesterday that the council would meet within the next 10 days to discuss proposals for widening State street north of the river from Kinzie street to Chicago avenue. The council plans to recommend a widening plan and submit to the city its suggestions for financing it, Mayer said.

"The council appears to be overwhelmingly in favor of widening north State street so that it will not be a bottleneck approach to the new State street bridge now under construction," Mayer asserted.

The city's present plans, which have been approved by the Illinois highway department, call for widening the roadway from 38 to 51 feet by narrowing the sidewalks from 14 to 7½ feet. The North Central association has proposed a revival of the 1931 widening project which contemplated a roadway of 88 feet and 13½ foot sidewalks.

RALPH E. CHURCH ENTERS G. O. P. SENATORIAL RACE

Bases His Appeal for Votes on Record in House.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Congressman Ralph E. Church of the 10th Illinois district finally decided late yesterday to enter the Republican race for United States senator. He said his personal desire was to remain in the house, where he has served six years, but that "in a time of such national crisis it would be totally selfish for me to consider my own preference."

Ralph E. Church.

Church enters the primary against Wayland Brooks of Chicago, who has joined forces with Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville, one of the three leading candidates for governor.

The Evanston congressman circularized Republican leaders and workers thruout the state in a form letter last November and said, in his announcement, that he had received "an unparalleled response."

Cites His Record in Congress.

This fact, he said, "plus strong recent pressure for a new, undefeated, and experienced candidate, for the sake of victory in November, has convinced me that the people believe my first call is to run on my record as a candidate for the United States senate."

Church said he might make a more detailed statement later.

"I shall not, however," he added, "indulge at any time in any promises, political or otherwise. A man's record of past performance is more formidable and more persuasive than any future promises, no matter how eloquently given. Nor shall I, at any time, merely utter platitudes and state a platform of generalities to express my attitude on any issue.

Stays at Task in House.

"Be it on questions regarding unemployment, neutrality, national defense, business encouragement, labor's rights and welfare, agriculture, social security, or any other problem, I need not speak. My record is there—a record indelibly written during 16 years in the legislature at Springfield and nearly six years in congress."

Church pointed out that he had never missed a roll call since he went to Washington and proposed to keep that record. Thus, he said, he won't be campaigning while congress is in session.

"I shall not leave Washington to campaign except by flying home over the week-ends when congress is not in session. I shall remain at the national capitol fighting to protect and advance the interests of every man, woman, and child in Illinois. That is my duty and I must perform it. I do not consider this any handicap. I definitely believe that Illinois, even in a senatorial campaign, prefers action to words."

A hot race for Church's seat is expected in the Republican primary between George A. Paddock, Evanston member of the Cook county central committee, and State Representative Drennan J. Slater. Slater already has filed for the post and Paddock has told friends he would announce if Church decided to run for the senate. Several Democratic leaders are backing John Haderlein of Chicago for the Democratic nomination.

SHAKEUP IN SIX WARDS URGED IN G.O.P. VOTE QUIZ

Drastic action must be taken at once in the 1st, 11th, 20th, 24th, 29th, and 32d wards, the Republican subcommittee investigating election frauds reported yesterday to the county central committee. They are among the wards in which the committee "finds reason to be dissatisfied regarding the activities of the Republican organization in elections."

The dissatisfaction is based, the committee said, upon the recent voting history of the wards, the number of vote fraud cases originating in them, and a written report, recently published, which was made by Fred W. Blaisdell of the Better Government association.

Arnold R. Baar, Harold J. Clark, and E. F. Mansure, compose the committee.

Daniel A. Serritella is G. O. P. committeeman of the 1st ward, William S. Finucane of the 11th, Ald. William V. Pacelli of the 20th, Paul W. Rothenberg of the 24th, Samuel O. Shaffer of the 29th, and Cisimir Corny of the 32d.

ARMOUR AND C.I.O. PACKERS REACH LABOR ACCORD

A memorandum agreement between Armour & Co. and the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was announced last night after months of negotiations. While it involves no basic wage or hour changes for the 7,000 employés in the Armour plant here the pact provides for the retention of seniority and vacation rights thru periods of unemployment up to one year and other changes in working conditions. The period in which vacations may be taken was extended one month, making it April 1 to Oct. 31; the company and the union agreed on a grievance settlement plan and it was provided that every employé who works Monday and Tuesday of any given week would be guaranteed work or pay equivalent to 32 hours in that week. Van A. Bittner, chairman of the P. W. O. C., said negotiations for similar contracts at 13 other Armour plants would be taken up next.

Republican Wins Special N.Y. Congressional Election

Malone, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP).—Clarence E. Kilburn, Malone Republican, emerged victorius tonight in a special election to succeed the late Wallace E. Pierce, Plattsburg Republican, as representative from the 31st congressional district. With only 22 scattered rural districts yet unreported, Kilburn led his Democratic opponent, M. Henry McGillic, Massena, by 14,957 to 6,185. Kilburn, in a pre-election statement, asserted he was "not in the least in sympathy with the New Deal."

N. Y. JURY INDICTS TWO FOR RELIEF PRINTING GRAFT

Tammany Chief and State Official Named.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—William Solomon, powerful Tammany leader, and Charles H. Mullens, assistant state controler, today were indicted by the New York county grand jury for extortion, bribery and taking unlawful fees in connection with state printing contracts. They were accused of sharing $34,833 in graft.

Indictment of the Democratic leader and the state official was the culmination of a lengthy investigation conducted by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey into the letting of juicy state printing jobs. Those in which graft payments allegedly figured were for the state relief and social welfare programs.

Lehman Begins Own Inquiry.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, facing a major scandal in the state government, last week announced his own inquiry into printing contracts. He placed Frederick E. Crane, a Republican, retiring chief judge of the Court of Appeals, in charge.

Solomon and Mullens were arrested during the day at Dewey's office. Details of the charges were made public by Murray Gurfein, head of the rackets bureau in the prosecutor's office, in the absence of Dewey who is in the west campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination.

After surrendering to Gurfein, Solomon and Mullens were booked at a nearby police station and thence taken to police headquarters where they were fingerprinted. Afterward, they were arraigned before Judge George L. Donnellan in General Sessions court, where they pleaded not guilty and each was released in $10,000 bail.

It was the second time in two days that Solomon had been mentioned in a criminal connection. Yesterday Max Rubin, a state witness at the flour trucking racket trial of Louis Lepke Buchalter, named Solomon as the recipient of $1,500 in extortion money collected to call off a shake down strike.

Solomon a 3d Term Leader.

Solomon, a devotee of the Roosevelt administration and a leader of the third term movement in New York City, has been closely associated with Tammany Boss James J. Hines, chief patronage dispenser for the Washington régime in New York City. Hines was convicted by Dewey as political fixer for the policy racket, and is appealing the case.

Mullens, a nominal Republican, was in the controler's office when Mr. Roosevelt was governor, as well as during Lehman's administration.

There were seven counts in the indictment, six for felonies and one for a misdemeanor. If convicted the two men would face a possible sentence of 60 years in prison and fines of $27,000 each, with an additional indeterminate sentence on the misdemeanor.

Printing Company Named.

Mullens was alleged to have received the $34,833 graft payments from one Charles C. Walsey, president of the Burland Printing Company, Inc., which has enjoyed nearly a million dollars worth of printing contracts since 1933.

The indictment charges Mullens was aided, abetted, counseled, commanded, and induced by Solomon.

Shortly after Dewey's office disclosed its action against Solomon and Mullens it announced that Walsey, president, and Julius Weinstein, treasurer of the Burland company, had been indicted in connection with their personal state income taxes for 1937. It was charged that they filed their incomes as $16,600 and that they should have been given as $46,600. Weinstein pleaded innocent. Walsey will not be arraigned for several days because of illness.

C. I. O. LEADERS TURN UP FOR BIOFF HEARING

Governor Weighs Chicago Extradition Plea.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 13 [Special].—The hearing on a plea for extradition to Chicago of William Bioff today drew rival A. F. of L. and C. I. O. factions into the fight over the motion picture union leader. Bioff is wanted in Illinois to complete a six month sentence for pandering. Gov. Culbert L. Olson heard the Chicago plea and the counter arguments of Bioff's attorney for two hours, and then took the matter under advisement.

Included in the C. I. O. delegation, which wanted to see Bioff hustled back to Chicago on the 17 year old charge, were: Harry Bridges, alien director of the C. I. O.'s west coast maritime union, who recently escaped deportation on the charge that he is a communist; Tom Mooney, who served 20 years of a life sentence for the preparedness day bombing in San Francisco and who was pardoned last year by Gov. Olson; Henry Schmidt, waterfront labor leader; Estolve Ward, chairman of the Bridges Defense league; J. V. Burke, secretary of Labor's Nonpartisan league in California, and Herbert Resner, attorney for Mooney and the C. I. O.

To Study Legal Points.

At the close of the hearing Gov. Olson said he wanted time to determine the points of law involved, particularly whether Bioff actually is a fugitive from justice as charged in a brief filed by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney of Cook county, Illinois.

Olson also said he wanted to find out whether Bioff, boss of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employés, an A. F. of L. affiliate, has rehabilitated himself as contended by his counsel, Michael Luddy.

Lieut. Charles Egan of the Chicago police told the governor that his department did not know until last November that Bioff had not completed his pandering sentence. When informed that this was the case, Egan said, the department took steps at once to have him returned. The contention that Bioff is a fugitive was supported by Albert F. Gangerle, deputy attorney general of California.

Insists Bioff Is No Fugitive.

Luddy told the governor that Bioff is held in high esteem by 12,000 members of the theater and stage union in Hollywood, and insisted that his client was not a fugitive because he had lived in Chicago for 14 years after sentence was passed and no attempt was made to put him in jail.

Gov. Olson told the C. I. O. delegation that if he decides further hearing on the rehabilitation issue is warranted he will give them a chance to present arguments in support of their contention that Bioff is a menace to labor.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

George Orr, 39 years old, was found dead last night in the garage at the rear of his home, 4020 Monroe street, asphyxiated by fumes from the motor of his automobile, which was still running. Police were unable to determine if Orr's death was an accident or suicide.

JURORS SELECTED TO TRY BOWEN IN MANTENO CASE

Official Attacks Charges of Epidemic Blame.

A jury of eight women and four men was completed last night to hear the case of A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare who is on trial in Circuit court at Kankakee on malfeasance charges growing out of the typhoid epidemic which cost 53 lives at the Manteno state hospital last summer.

A. L. Bowen.

The last eight jurors were selected at a special night session ordered by Judge William V. Bartley of Joliet, who is presiding at the trial. He said bickering among attorneys had delayed the trial and the extra session would save $250 in fees for a new panel of 50 prospective jurors that was to have been called today.

Women All Housewives.

The women on the jury are all housewives. They are Mrs. May Lyne, Momence; Mrs. Eva Turner of Essex, Mrs. Pearl Denault of route 2, Kankakee; Mrs. Dorothy Winkel of Herscher, Mrs. Anna Einfeldt and Mrs. Stella George, Kankakee; Mrs. Beatrice Bergeron of Bourbonnais, and Mrs. Dorothy Hagenow of Manteno. The male jurors are Edward Cloonen of Irvin, a trucker; Clarence Mershon of Kankakee, a telephone company construction foreman, and two farmers, Nels Wells of Momence and Clair Mann of Bourbonnais.

Twenty-three of the prospective jurors in the panel were examined. Two were excused for cause and nine on peremptory challenges, four by the state and five by the defense.

Bowen's attorneys launched an attack upon the bill of particulars prepared by State's Attorney Samuel A. Shapiro of Kankakee county as the trial was called.

Amend Mistreatment Bill.

The indictment in which Bowen was named contains three counts, charging malfeasance, mistreatment of a patient, and "palpable omission of duty." Yesterday morning Bowen's counsel—John Mayhew of Kankakee, Hal M. Stone of Bloomington, and Harold Trapp of Lincoln—contended the wording of the bill of particulars was not clear.

They particularly objected to the clause concerning alleged mistreatment of the patient, Mrs. Emily Dalton, who was one of the first victims of the epidemic. Judge Bartley ordered Prosecutor Shapiro to clarify the wording of the bill. The court then upheld the amended bill over objections of Mayhew, who moved the mistreatment count be quashed.

Bowen was indicted Nov. 21 by a grand jury which investigated the typhoid epidemic at the state hospital near Kankakee. As state welfare director, Bowen is overseer of 26 public institutions.

Two Others Face Trials.

Indictments also were returned against Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, suspended director of the hospital; Mrs. Lillian Williams, dietitian, and Dr. D. L. Steinberg, assistant to Hinton. The Steinberg indictment was quashed and the other defendants were granted separate trials. The trial of Bowen is the first.

Bowen was denied a change of venue from Kankakee county, but did obtain a change in judges, from Judge Luther B. Bratton of Kankakee to Judge Bartley.

The charge against Bowen, Dr. Hinton, and Mrs. Williams is a misdemeanor. On conviction they could be fined up to $10,000 and would also face removal from office. Bowen and Dr. Hinton were accused of failing to enforce changes recommended to correct pollution of the hospital water supply. Mrs. Williams was alleged in the indictment to have countenanced insanitary kitchen conditions.

5 CHICAGOANS FLEE MANTENO; 1 RECAPTURED

The detective bureau was notified last night that five Chicagoans escaped from the Manteno state hospital in Kankakee county. One of them, Anthony Spola, 25 years old, 907 South Aberdeen street, was captured a few hours later by a hospital patrol. The others are John McGoldrick, 26, of 6125 Kenwood avenue; George Williams, 39, of 1239 Argyle street; Robert Taylor, 24, colored, 1047 West 14th street, and Russell Crump, 20, colored, 4641 Langley avenue. All had been sent to the institution since Jan. 1. They escaped by lifting out a window in the receiving unit, according to Dr. Walter H. Baer, acting managing officer.

Accused Slayer

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Marie Wolff, sister of slain man.

A jury qualified to inflict the death penalty was completed yesterday before Judge Joseph A. Graber in Criminal court to try Carl Hubert Erickson, 25 years old, for the murder of Herbert Wolff, 30, which he planned as a perfect crime. Nine of the jurors were women.

Wolff, who lived at 2008 Cleveland avenue, was shot to death last Sept. 28 in a garage at 145 East Grand avenue where he worked as night attendant. Erickson, who had previously held the job, and who had taken Wolff and his wife into his home when they were penniless after their marriage, established an alibi at the time, but confessed to police Dec. 19.

Erickson said in his confession that he had managed to leave his room while a friend, George McKenna, slept, and that he went to the garage, killed Wolff, and returned to bed without awakening McKenna, who originally vouched for his alibi. Erickson's intelligence quotient in a test at the Criminal court behavior clinic was reported to be the highest ever attained there by a person charged with murder.

WITNESS AVERS HE HAD TRYST WITH EX-WIFE

Appears Against Man Held for Her Death.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13 (AP).—The former husband of Mrs. Doris Dazey testified today that he spent a night with her shortly before her marriage to Dr. George K. Dazey, who is accused of killing her.

Dr. George K. Dazey.

The witness, Alex B. Sparks of Portland, Ore., said he came voluntarily to testify for the prosecution in Dr. Dazey's trial for the murder of his wife. Mrs. Dazey was found dead in the family garage Oct. 3, 1935, and her death then was called suicidal.

Says He Visits Home.

Sparks testified he kept a love tryst with his former wife in a La Jolla hotel on July 26, 1934. Hotel records were offered in evidence to substantiate his testimony.

He said he was with her in her Santa Monica home a few days later. The state contends Mrs. Dazey's son, Walter, now 5 years old, was born as the result of this association and that this fact was the motive in the alleged murder.

The state contends the physician rendered his wife unconscious and placed her in their garage, where she was asphyxiated by automobile exhaust fumes.

Nurse Is On Stand.

Frances Hansbury, a nurse formerly employed by Dr. Dazey, was another witness today. She testified that Dazey boasted of committing a perfect crime.

"One night he was intoxicated and sent for me," Miss Hansbury told the jury. "All I could get out of what he said was: 'Why did I do it?' He was afraid he had said something, and came to see me next day with a strange look in his eye and wanted to know what he had told me the night before.

"When I insisted that he had told me nothing, he twisted my arm and pushed his thumbs in my eyes. He began to call up at all hours of the night and tell me to start saying my prayers, threatening to kill me. Finally he said he would fix me the same as he did Doris."

FIND 1,000 POLICE ARE MEMBERS OF CHRISTIAN FRONT

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—New York's police moved today to protect themselves against any possible disciplinary action resulting from the fact that 1,000 of the 19,000 members of the force had acknowledged membership in the Christian Front at one time or another.

Members of the Patrolmen's Benevolent association, after hours of debate, instructed their officers to defend the constitutional rights of the 1,000 Christian Front members in the event of departmental action against them.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine recently sent all members of his force a questionnaire ordering them to indicate on it whether they had been or were affiliated with the Christian Front, the German-American bund, or any communist, Fascist or subversive group.

DISMISS HOLLAND SUIT FOR LIBEL IN O'HARE KILLING

Court Throws Out Judge's Plea for $250,000.

A $250,000 libel suit, an outgrowth of the assassination of Edward J. O'Hare, front man for the Capone gang, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court.

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland sought the amount in damages from Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court and Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission.

Judge Fisher made an oral decision which required more than an hour for him to deliver. He found that statements in letters exchanged by Judge Sonsteby and Cahn, after the O'Hare slaying Nov. 8, did not libel or slander Judge Holland.

Business Dealings Revealed.

After O'Hare was killed Judge Holland was found to have been a business associate of O'Hare, who was president of the Sportsman's Park race track and was involved in numerous real estate deals. The crime commission then asked that no more cases be assigned to Holland pending an investigation of his conduct by the Chicago Bar association.

Justice Sonsteby issued the order, relieving Judge Holland and also Municipal Judge Eugene L. McGarry from duty. McGarry was indicted on charges of malfeasance in office and of conspiracy to accept false acknowledgments in bond matters. The indictment was quashed.

In dismissing the libel suit Judge Fisher said it is the right of every citizen to complain of the conduct of any office holder.

Finds Public Interest at Stake.

"In this case are involved matters not only of public convenience but also of great public interest," he said. "We are living in an age when the fundamental liberties we regard as sacred are being challenged thruout the world. Courts thruout the land have been examining and re-examining the basic rights of the people. Some of the courts have come to the conclusion, and correctly so, that the fundamental rights upon which all the others are dependent are the rights of free speech and freedom of the press."

While ruling that Holland had no libel case, Judge Fisher held that Justice Sonsteby's action in not assigning cases to Holland was wrong.

"Judge Sonsteby had no power to leave Judge Holland unassigned," said Fisher. "He had the discretion to determine what assignment should be made, but not to remove him from office, even temporarily. But that alone can be righted elsewhere, and not by this form of action. Mandamus would be the proper remedy."

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

A VICTORY FOR PREJUDICE.

In the latest of its decisions the Supreme court appears to have laid down the rule that the courts of this country must go much further than they have gone in accepting findings of fact by the labor board. The Circuit Court of Appeals in the Fifth circuit had thrown out a decision of the board on the ground that the finding of fact upon which the order was based was the product of mere suspicion, unsupported by substantial evidence. Mr. Justice Black, speaking for a unanimous Supreme court, said the facts were what the labor board said they were.

The court expressed these opinions in a labor board case, but presumably they would apply equally to the findings of numerous other administrative commissions. The nature of these tribunals is therefore of more than casual interest. It is perhaps unnecessary to point out that they combine in themselves the functions of prosecutor, judge, jury, and executioner, and can therefore seldom be suspected of impartiality. It is equally important to note that the members of these administrative boards are chosen, almost without exception, for political reasons. So far as the labor board is concerned, the Smith committee has established the fact that the board is prejudiced and that its leanings are precisely what might be expected in view of John Lewis' contribution of $600,000 to the Democratic campaign fund.

Accordingly, if anything resembling liberty and equality before the law is to be preserved in this country, it is of the utmost importance that the work of these star-chambers be subjected to at least as thoro a scrutiny as is given the work of the lower federal courts by the higher courts. Mr. Black's opinion indicates all too plainly that greater credence will be given to the finding of a prejudiced administrative tribunal, operating under the most informal of procedures, and not subject to strict rules of evidence, than would be given to the findings of a court of law, presided over by a judge who holds office for life, and has been trained to confine his decision to evidence given under the strictest of rules.

It is not as if the findings of the administrative courts were of little or no consequence. The fact is that these tribunals have the power to impose regulations and penalties which can ruin a business upon which thousands may depend for their livelihoods. To give this power to zealots and subject them to only a minimum of restraints in the operation of their will is to invite a tyranny.

The decision handed down on Monday can hardly fail to have its repercussions in congress. It should lead at once to insistence upon an amendment of the Wagner act, subjecting all the findings of the labor board, both of fact and of law, to the critical examination of the federal courts. Other amendments of the act are desirable, but if agreement on them cannot be reached they can wait. No time should be lost in rescuing this country from a venomous labor board, prejudiced against large numbers of employers, all unorganized labor, and more than half of the organized labor movement.

The decision should call attention again to the proposals contained in the Walter bill to subject all the regulatory commissions, boards, and administrators to the rule of law. The growth of administrative law in this country has progressed so far and so rapidly of late that the time is overdue when these agencies must in turn be regulated. Unless that is done this country will shortly find itself fully Nazified, with the will of the executive as the law of the land.

ZONED FOR CASTLES IN THE AIR.

As director of the Metropolitan Housing council D. E. Mackelmann is primarily interested in rehabilitating Chicago slums and preventing good neighborhoods from decaying into slums. A leading barrier to progress in this field, he says, is Chicago's absurd zoning code.

As assessor of Cook county John S. Clark is the city's leading expert on real estate values in fact as well as in law. Only recently he, too, denounced the zoning code, terming it by implication a fraud on real estate owners and purchasers. In making his quadrennial reassessment of property Assessor Clark found it necessary, in order to arrive at true values, to weed out fictitious values based on zoning classifications. They attributed to property potentialities that it did not possess outside the minds of the drafters of the zoning code and the real estate speculators who influenced them.

Mr. Mackelmann gave some figures which demonstrated just how far the castles-in-the-sky boys distorted the present zoning code. The least profitable use for real estate, generally speaking, is as a site for single family homes. Only six square miles of Chicago are so zoned, but there are 28.2 square miles actually occupied by single residences. That means that the homeowners on 22 square miles have no protection against the depreciation of their property thru the erection of stores, factories, or apartment houses on adjacent lots.

On the other hand, there is more than twice as much land zoned for apartment house, commercial, or industrial use as is actually in use for each of these purposes. It has been said that the whole population of Chicago could be housed in the skyscraper apartments for which a limited area on the north side is zoned—if any one were foolish enough to build the skyscrapers.

Unrealistic zoning did have its share in stimulating uneconomic building, but its worst effect has been in giving property owners delusions of grandeur regarding their holdings. Normal development of property has been retarded because owners have waited in vain for the city's growth to catch up with the grossly extravagant expectations of the zoning code.

GUARDING AMERICAN PEACE.

It is to be recalled that in the first stages of the other world war Great Britain and France felt grateful for the assistance given them by access to the American markets. The governments and the people of these two warring countries professed to appreciate the benevolent neutrality of the United States and said nothing about America's obligation to humanity. They were glad that congress had not imposed embargoes on war supplies. They thought that America was friendly and helpful in permitting the purchase of much needed materials from American factories and from the American farmers.

Americans weren't then censured or condemned for making money out of other peoples' wars, nor were we then told that other peoples were fighting for us. The other peoples did not think so at the time. That was when most people in Europe thought the war would be necessarily a short one and that there must be a decision in 1915, and surely by 1916.

When Mr. Wilson consented to lift the governmental objection to the floating of the war loans in this country, the British and French thought that this again was a friendly act, but other sentiments were gaining force as the battlefield losses increased and as German victories on the eastern front became more impressive and more disturbing. By late 1915 and early 1916 friendliness had disappeared from British and French public opinion. All the warring nations by then were deeply wounded, the casualty lists were appalling, and a different construction was put upon help the American free markets and money had given.

By this time we were being called war profiteers, cowardly shirking our duty to civilization and humanity. These sentiments had also been expressed over here by persons of divided loyalty and overpowering foreign sympathies, and by people who thought that the American stake in the war was precisely what the British and the French then said it was.

It is to be expected that this development of sentiment will be repeated if the war in the west becomes a savage one, breaking out of the stalemate in which it has been frozen for over five months. We have again opened our markets to the French and British. The question this time was not of placing an embargo on, but of taking one off, which was done. And it was done to help the British and the French. That was regarded at the time as an act of benevolent neutrality. It is true that we have protected ourselves this time by a measure which Mr. Wilson in his day had defeated. The administration forces were successful in killing the McLemore resolution seeking to prohibit American citizens from traveling on the ships of belligerents.

Mr. Wilson wouldn't have that. He said it was a surrender of rights which honor forbade and which recognized the right of Germany to violate international law in its submarine campaign. Now American ships are forbidden to enter the war zone and American travelers are under restrictions. It will be more difficult to raise a diplomatic crisis with present day Germany, but the emotional crisis is still ahead of us. It will develop as the war turns savage. Then it may be expected that we shall hear violent criticism of our unwillingness to take up the burden as we did before.

The people didn't know in 1916, when Mr. Wilson was campaigning for reelection with the slogan "He Kept Us Out of War," that he already had agreed, and had so expressed himself to Sir Edward Grey, that if Germany would not consent to a just peace America would intervene with an army. He was then, as was explained to the British and French governments, waiting until he could unite the American people to support whatever decision he made. The war must seem to be forced upon the people by events.

Unless peace is made before this war becomes one of great slaughter and great uncertainty, Americans must be prepared to resist strong emotional forces which will be released against them. They were swept away before and they might be again if sentiments prevail over their reason.

BUT WHY CALL ITSELF AMERICAN?

[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

In voting to depose communists and Nazis from positions of leadership in its organization the American Civil Liberties union has not decided to clean house in earnest. For that would mean barring such agitators from membership also.

The new rule applies to "those who support dictatorship in any country." Friends of Stalin and Hitler are not mentioned specifically, but the description covers their case.

Simultaneously with this action, Dr. Ward, chairman of the Civil Liberties union, steps down, tho not out. He was also head of the American League for Peace and Democracy which folded up last week, unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

After his admissions before the Dies committee he was plainly disqualified to hold office in the Civil Liberties union under its new regulation. The league, as he confessed, regularly received financial contributions from the communist party.

Its tie-up with a party devoted to extolling Stalin and his works was plainly shown. Dr. Ward appeared as an apologist for the soviet régime. The case against him is clear.

But communists and Nazis may still belong to the rank and file of the Civil Liberties union. Why, then, does it cling to the "American" in its name? For there is nothing American about an outfit that welcomes to its membership supporters of Stalin and Hitler.

UTTERING PECULIAR CRIES.

We learn from the cablegrams that "Anzac" troops have landed at Suez, shouting "cooee," and that this is Australian for "yippee." Let's go into this matter more thoroly:

"Cooee," says our battered old dictionary, is a peculiar cry uttered by the Australian aborigines to attract attention, and is also in common use among the white population. The first syllable is much prolonged; the second is staccato and shrill. It has a quality which carries to surprising distances.

"Yippee," however, has not broken into the dictionary. It is a peculiar cry uttered by American delegates to conventions, usually in taverns and cabarets, to indicate enthusiasm or drunkenness. It does not carry much farther than a bouncer can throw a delegate, say from the brass rail to the revolving door.

"Augustus," a biography of the first Roman emperor, was, we believe, the last [1937] of many books written by the late governor general of Canada—John Buchan, Lord Tweedsmuir. The last words in that admirable work of classical scholarship were:

"When this expert in mechanism observed the craving of great peoples to enslave themselves and to exult hysterically in their bonds, bewilderment would harden into disdain in his masterful eyes."

LEAP YEAR VALENTINE.

Today Dan Cupid should have been
Up betimes, and busy, too;
He should have sharpened all his darts,
And tested if his aim be true,
And then, on arrow tipped with gold,
Have sent a valentine to you.

But now the rascal's fast asleep;
He won't wake up; it's nearly nine!
His quiver's in the corner there,
But knotted shut with crimson twine.
So I can't wait for him to help—
Please, won't you be my valentine?

Or shall we just exchange our hearts, love pawns in Cupid's trade vocabulary, and each go individually our solitary way, not deign to disarrange the whole of life for love? Or is that what you have been thinking of? My heart is whole, jewel-tone red, preserved in pristine shape, with mechanism meant for singing. You doubtless guess I'm flinging it at you. CAN SEX HORMONES IMPROVE HEARING?

DEAFNESS is such a social and business handicap that no one should surrender to its advance without a struggle. Recently the observation was made that one of our efficiency destroying maladies having to do with gradual loss of hearing—otosclerosis—may be combated with sex hormones.

What is this derangement and how does it behave? Something occurs within the delicate aural machinery which sooner or later renders certain parts powerless to function. The inflammatory changes—which appear early—are unaccompanied by any detectable soreness or other symptoms. Eventually, however, plaques of new spongy bone are deposited in various sections of the middle or the inner ear. At first flexible and resilient, there may be no signs of trouble—but between the ages of 20 and 35 [the active sexual period]—a few beginning bad weather signals may be noted.

Women are affected more frequently than men and occasionally the first disturbance will be tinnitus [ringing sounds]. One side is always worse than the other and some indication of increasing dullness of hearing may be measured by the mounting volume of "roaring." Now and then victims will complain of sensations of numbness about the head, and vertigo—which is characteristic of Ménière's disease—may be observed.

Should one notice poor sound perception—progressing for months or years—one may well be aroused with at least mild concern. It is then high time to utilize every possible remedy against what otherwise may be a chronic disability. While the origin of the disorder may be based upon some metabolic imbalance, infection can usually be ruled out. It is important, however, to place the body in the most favorable position possible, with adequate vitamin feeding and the usual hygienic régime designed to raise resistance. The suggestion as to gland therapy is not only illuminating but points to a positive causative factor—namely, some deficiency in the internal production of the sex tissues.

A report by Bernstien of Leeds, England, details the management of a number of cases with hormones. First of all, hearing tests were given and accurate records were made so that no psychological element could be involved. A total of 56 persons were treated—with decided amelioration in 31 and no benefit in the remainder.

Here is a striking example of what may be accomplished. A young man, aged 25, suffered from persistent "noises" in both ears with steadily increasing trouble in the left. He had observed the symptom for about three years. Apparently his derangement was hereditary, as his mother had been stone deaf for more than a decade. His drums were normal and no change occurred after opening the Eustachian tubes. This latter procedure was adopted to rule out a catarrhal condition.

The patient was then given 12 injections of 20,000 units of estrone at weekly intervals. At the end of three months the buzzing had practically dissappeared and hearing was more acute. At this time the whispered voice could be distinguished via the left ear at six inches and in the right at 12 inches. Renewed treatment with another hormone occasioned a recurrence of all the undesirable symptoms. A return to the first type of medication brought rapid improvement and, after 11 months, all bell ringing had ceased and the whispered voice could be understood at four feet with the left ear and two with the right. Since stopping the injections, a tiny amount of the chemical has been taken by mouth and all the ground gained has been held.

While all the cases cited did not terminate as favorably, yet relief was substantial in three out of five of these patients. The conclusion seems warranted that there may be some connection between sex secretions and the hearing defect—the out of balance state being rectified by the administration of the substance of which the individual is in need. Apparently these subjects have been followed long enough to show that permanent restoration may be maintained with small quantities of the lacking compounds.

STIFF, SWOLLEN FINGERS.

J. B. writes: My fingers have been giving me trouble for two years. Whenever I do any work—especially in cold weather—they swell up slightly and I can't bend them. What can be done about this condition?

REPLY.

Among the many causes that should be investigated are: Arthritis, neuritis, circulatory disturbance, etc. A careful examination is suggested. You may aid the circulation with exercise and heat. Soaking the parts in hot water for 20 minutes morning and evening will dilate the blood channels and increase the flow.

BATH ITCH.

A. G. writes: About five or ten minutes after a bath—even tho I dry myself thoroly—I develop an annoying itch. What causes this trouble?

REPLY.

Your skin is sensitive to some chemical in the soap or the water. If a good grade of castile is available, give it a trial. Many find that an ointment—such as cocoa butter, rubbed into the skin thoroly—is helpful.

DR. WIRT'S TESTIMONY.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—The Tribune's editorial of Feb. 8, "The Men Who Went to Dinner," reviews the 1934 brain trusters' dinner and Dr. Wirt's testimony in the investigation that followed. The brain trust derided his account of the plans then being laid, and at that time the citizens of this country were so smug in their belief "that it can't happen here" that Dr. Wirt was discredited. If he were alive today he would find even more accomplished than was predicted at that 1934 dinner, and done so insidiously that the public still hasn't fully awakened.

Here's a wish that you may make a front page reproduction of Dr. Wirt's testimony and also the denials of the New Dealers regarding it.

Gary is a great industrial center, and with Dr. Wirt's prominence as an educator, no doubt they were planning, if possible, to have him in their ranks.

A LEAK IN THE DIKE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The moral of the story about the little Dutch boy who, when discovering a tiny break in the dike, stopped it from spreading by putting his finger in it until help came, should be applied to Finland's position today. Finland is that little Dutch boy and unless immediate help is given, communism will engulf Europe—yea, even the world. For with Russia's manpower and resources combined with German technique what won't they be able to accomplish! Considering the impending dangers, immediate aid should be given to Finland. Billions would not be too high a price to pay for freedom for ourselves and the world. B. A. Sterling.

A CREDIT TO THE FORCE.

Wilmington, Ill. Feb. 2.—I wish to call attention to the traffic policeman, badge No. 7472, who upon my request for information courteously and pleasantly directed me correctly to my destination. LADIES' CHOICE.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Why not a campaign to have leap year day, Feb. 29, declared a national holiday, the ladies to take the men out on that day and entertain them with dinner, show, nite club, etc., and foot all the bills?

Do you think it has possibilities? At least the men could get one evening's heigh-ho free. Kiernan.

DO YOU THINK HE'LL STAY FOOLED?

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Yesterday's "Gasoline Alley" cartoon, showing Skeezix doing the work and Wilmer getting the credit for it, is a classic. The world is full of Mr. Wumpies being fooled by Wilmers, and apparently there is nothing the Skeezixes can do about it but bear it in silence. Another Skeezix.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—It seems to me the Chicago board of education should help the taxpayers by eliminating all the nonessential and bluff courses from its high school curriculum. Studies like community civics, careers, salesmanship are all based on little or no knowledge on the part of the teacher and much gassing and looking wise on the part of the students—all this at great cost to the board of education and the taxpayers.

The "careers" is one of the latest additions to a list of courses that teach nothing. Teachers of French or drawing are suddenly placed in a position to advise students what careers are best suited to their individual tastes and talents. A man or woman who has had no experience in anything but school teaching presumes to give expert advice on the professions of medicine, law, engineering, art, or various phases of business. To make it quasiscientific, they give their students various standard tests that are supposed to indicate for what field each individual is best fitted. It is enough to see the tests and know the instructors who give them to realize what a farce and sinful waste of public money it is. To cover up their ignorance these "experts" in "vocational guidance" occasionally bring in a doctor or a lawyer to address the class, but of course it takes more than a talk from a doctor to assure a boy that he should pursue a medical career. The "vocational guidance" which is a part of the "adjustment system" in our public schools is merely high sounding fakery.

Likewise courses in salesmanship are given by people who never sold a spool of thread. What they don't know about salesmanship would fill volumes.

About the biggest joke that bears the name of a high school course is "community civics." It consists of class discussions and answering questions such as "What does a policeman do? What are the duties of a fireman? How does the milkman help his community? or What do you do to help your family?" Needless to say, in a "community civics" class the students are more intelligent than the teacher because they have more firsthand information concerning the functions of the policeman, fireman, and the milkman, and have been prattling about them from their baby days.

UNITED STATES OF EUROPE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—And now there is talk of a United States of Europe. Will this proposed federation of nations really be democratic in spirit? If so, can the capital be in Berlin, Rome, or Leningrad if the majority of this federation vote that way?

Germany with its 90 million and Russia with its 180 million people make a powerful voting combination. These two nations have three times as many voters as France and England together. If this new United States of Europe is to be truly democratic and honest, the same as our own United States of America, every person of voting age must be given the privilege of casting a ballot.

Will England and France permit this new capital to rule their colonies and possessions as they are now ruled by London and Paris? I doubt it. This whole plan smells bad. Two decades ago we were told of a similar plan, the league of nations. Skeptic.

How Our States Got Their Names

33. OHIO.

Ohio was named after the Ohio river, and historians say the Indian word from which it derives meant "beautiful" or "beautiful river." Ohio, some sources say, became a state on March 1, 1803, altho there has been some argument over the exact date, since congress did not pass a formal act of admission.

Ohio state seal. In foreground are bundle of arrows [left] and sheaf of wheat. In background sun is rising over mountains.

Ohio has been called the Buckeye state and the Modern Mother of Presidents. There are a number of buckeye trees in the state, and one theory as to the nickname's origin is that the Indians referred to an early army officer as "Big Buckeye" because of his tallness. Ohio has furnished the country with several Presidents. The Ohio state motto was "An Empire within an Empire," but this was dropped in 1868 and the state now has none. The state flower is the scarlet carnation, the bird the cardinal, and the tree the buckeye.

RIGHT TO PROPERTY.

Hinsdale, Ill., Feb. 6 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. How is it possible that three members of my family can have our family home deeded to them when I paid for the home?

2. According to the law, are they entitled to it?

3. According to the information which I have received the home was deeded to these three members of the family by my father on his deathbed; since I am his, or, rather, was his favorite child, I believe that he was induced to sign the deed. [I was in Chicago at the time and the home is in Rockford, Ill.]

4. Doesn't property, automatically, go to the wife on the death of the husband? My mother was living at the time, but the estate was put under the guardianship of a neighbor. Four months ago my mother passed away and the estate fell into the hands of the three members previously mentioned.

5. I have no knowledge of my mother signing [co-signing] this deed, but if she did I know that she was unaware of what she was signing. Mother could neither read nor write English, and I was her favorite son, as well as my father's. It isn't that I am mercenary or grasping, but I feel profoundly that the estate wasn't left according to my mother's or father's wishes; considering the fact that I paid for the home, it seems unfair that I should be left wholly out. W. R. B.

1. One way that it might be possible would be that the title was originally in some other member of the family, and that the circumstances attending your payments were such that your payments should be regarded as gifts to the owner. This would place the owner in a position to give the property to other members of the family arbitrarily.

2. Depends on additional facts.

3. Your chances of setting the gift aside on the ground of undue influence or lack of mental capacity would seem good enough to warrant a personal interview with an attorney.

4. Depends on whether there are other heirs and on other facts that are not before us.

5. If your mother did not sign, then the conveyance would be subject to her dower interest.

BLAMES TRIAL ON REFUSAL TO PAY EX-PROSECUTORS

Bootlegger Says He Bribed Them Twice Before.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Frank Hodorowicz, a convicted bootlegger, told a federal court jury yesterday that he paid a former United States assistant district attorney $800 to fix one case and $500 to fix another. But after he refused to pay $1,000 to fix a third case because "it was too much money," he was found guilty and sentenced to a year in the penitentiary.

Hodorowicz testified for the government at the trial of Daniel D. Glasser and Norton I. Kretske, former assistant United States attorneys, and three others on charges of operating an alleged case fixing ring in the District court here. The Hodorowicz testimony was the first in which actual payment of money to either of the defendants was described.

The trial which entered its second week yesterday is being heard by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone of Madison, Wis. The other defendants are Attorney Alfred Roth, Anthony Horton, colored, a professional bondsman, and Louis Kaplan, an alcohol peddler.

Tells of Contacting Kretske.

Hodorowicz is the eldest in a family of five brothers, four of whom have been convicted as bootleggers. He lives at 11822 Michigan avenue and operates a hardware store a few doors away.

After his brother, Pete, and his nephew, Clem Dowiat, were arrested in September, 1937, while tending a still at 120 East 118th place, Hodorowicz testified, he went to see the defendant, Kretske. The latter by that time had resigned from the district attorney's staff and was in private practice.

"I asked what could be done," Hodorowicz testified. "He [Kretske] said he'd have to see. A few days later he met me in the loop and said he could fix the case for $800. I gave him the money."

Both Freed at Hearing.

Records show that the charges against both defendahts in this case were dismissed by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker because the agents who made the seizure had a warrant for a still next door and not for the place where Pete Hodorowicz and Dowiat were found. It was brought out yesterday that the defendant Glasser, who represented the government before the commissioner, did not attempt to explain the proximity of the two stills.

"Who did you understand would get the $800?" asked Prosecutor Martin Ward.

"He said he'd give part of it to 'Red,'" replied the witness.

"Who did that mean?" Judge Stone inquired.

"Why, Glasser, of course," Hodorowicz said.

The second case which Hodorowicz said he paid to have fixed concerned a still at 6945 Stony Island avenue which was raided in December, 1937. Elmer Swanson and Christ Della Rocco were the alleged operators arrested by the federal agents.

Charges Second "Fix" Deal.

The witness, who knew Swanson, said he again contacted Kretske. Hodorowicz said the latter asked for $500 for the "fix."

Arrangements were made at the Hodorowicz hardware store with both Swanson and Rocco present, Hodorowicz said. Kretske agreed to accept $500, guaranteeing results, he charged.

"We discussed the chances of probation or a fine," the witness said. "Kretske said: 'Wel, anyway, no one will get a jail sentence.' I paid him the money a few days later after getting it from the Swede [Swanson]."

Hodorowicz then testified that in May the next year he was informed by Kretske that he was in danger of being indicted in another liquor case.

"You're in a jam and it'll cost $1,000 to square things," he quoted Kretske.

Hodorowicz said he refused to pay that sum and exactly one month later he was indicted.

Told "Heat's on Glasser."

"I went to see Kretske right away," he said. "He told me: 'Frank, there's an awful lot of heat but we'll try all the angles. There's an agent here from Washington who's got Glasser over a barrel and he can't do anything."

The case was tried early last year and Hodorowicz was convicted. His application for probation is still pending.

"When you went to see Kretske, did you hire him as your lawyer?" asked the court.

"O, no," Hodorowicz replied. "I just wanted to see that no one went to jail."

"How did you find him?" asked Prosecutor Ward.

"I have his card. I still have it."

Produces Defendant's Card.

The witness fished in his pocket and produced a handful of business cards which he thumbed over rapidly. "Here it is," he said after a few moments, holding a card up so all in the courtroom could see.

Earlier Hodorowicz's nephew, Dowiat, had testified. He was an unwilling witness who was admonished by the court to answer the prosecutor's questions less evasively. Commissioner Walker also was on the stand, spending about two hours identifying records from his files on cases which, the government charges, were fixed by the defendants.

Ex-Convict Seized in Theft of $18,000 in Art Objects

James J. Banks, 35 years old, an ex-convict, was fond of antique vases, oriental rugs, statuary, and valuable paintings. He worked for Robert E. Baxter, a dealer in antiques at 505 North State street. Last March Baxter discovered that $18,253 worth of his stock had disappeared. Likewise Banks. Detective Anthony Bradtke of the state's attorney's police traced Banks to Brooklyn and returned him to Chicago yesterday to face theft charges.

2 YOUNG BANDITS CAPTURED AFTER FLEEING HOLDUP

George Orpheus, 18 years old, and Peter Skippet, 19, both probationers, were arrested yesterday after they attempted to rob a gasoline station at 5810 Normal avenue. The attendant, Edward Hall, called for help when two patrons' drove into the station during the holdup. The bandits fled in their car, followed by the two patrons, who picked up Policeman John Ternes at 51st and Halsted streets. The fugitives abandoned their car and Ternes followed them on foot. Meanwhile the driver of the other pursuing car notified the detective bureau. Sergt. Florian Smuczynski found Orpheus' abandoned car and arrested him at his home, 3620 Parnell avenue. Orpheus named Skippet and the police arrested him at 3345 Emerald avenue.

Woman Toy Pistol Bandit Faces Grand Jury Action

Miss Sandra Auerbach, 20 years old, who was seized last Saturday by a storekeeper whom she attempted to rob with a toy pistol, was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bond yesterday by Judge Joseph Drucker in Felony court on charges of robbery and assault to rob. She confessed three other holdups in addition to that in which she was captured by Israel Hakalmazian, owner of a grocery at 1635 West 63d street.

PROBE NEW RULE FAVORING PATENT GARAGE DESIGN

Aldermen Hear Objections to Code Regulation.

Ald. James J. McDermott [4th] yesterday ordered an investigation into a provision of the new building code which specifies the construction of ramps in public garages. As chairman of a joint subcommittee of the council building code and traffic committees he heard arguments that the provision forces garage owners to use a patented garage design to obtain efficient construction.

The subcommittee met on the recommendation of Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th] that the ramp provisions be stricken out. L. E. Russell, engineer for the traffic committee, told McDermott's subcommittee that before the new code was passed there were no code restrictions on the angles of ramps in garages.

20 Per Cent Grade Used.

"Richard Schmidt, the building commissioner, agreed with garage owners that a 20 per cent grade should be the maximum, and most garages were constructed to that specification," Russell said.

"The new code," he continued, "specifies that if the rise of the ramp from floor to floor is more than six feet the maximum ramp grade is to be 12½ per cent. It then says a grade of 16 2-3 per cent can be used if the rise is six feet or less."

A 20 per cent grade would mean a rise of one foot for every five horizontal feet. A 12½ per cent grade is a rise of one foot to eight horizontal feet and a 16 2-3 per cent grade is one foot to six horizontal feet.

Want Shortest Possible Ramp.

"The garage owner wants the shortest ramp possible so he has more space in which to park cars," Russell said. "The average distance from floor to floor in a garage is about 12 feet, of which eight feet is clearance and the remainder steel beams and flooring. The six foot rise can only be used by staggering half of the floor area of the garage so that one-half is offset six feet from the other half. The way staggered floor garages are planned the efficient ramp from level to level is 36 feet, which creates a grade of 16 2-3 per cent."

Russell said patents on the staggered level design are owned by the Ramp Corporation of New York. McDermott said the committee will ask the patent office at Washington for information about the rights of the New York company. Russell also objected to the code provision that garages of more than 2,000 square feet in area must have two ramps.

WITNESS IN BERWYN TRIAL STICKS TO HER CHECK DEAL STORY

Mrs. Rosalyn Nye Hitzeman was under cross-examination by the defense all yesterday in the trial of Ernest W. Mau, treasurer of Berwyn, and Matthew Berg, former treasurer. But the questioning of the attorneys failed to bring any change in her story.

Mrs. Hitzeman is the state's star witness against the two men, who are charged with embezzling $3,726 from the Berwyn special assessment fund. She was formerly Mau's secretary.

Mrs. Hitzeman told the jury in Judge William J. Lindsay's court last Wednesday that she cashed a check for the $3,726 at the request of the defendants and received $50 from each of them for doing so. She said she cashed the check as a favor.

ROBBED OF $53 IN ALLEY.

Whole Countryside Treks to Old Town.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

TOLUCA, Mexico, Feb. 9 [By Mail]. It is market day in Toluca. Which means that the nerve center of this splendid old town is, for the time being, one great conglomeration of sights and smells.

There are similar days held weekly, or semi-weekly, thruout Mexico. But no where else, perhaps, is there such a variety of offerings.

Fish, flesh, and fowl; pottery, baskets, and sarapes of a hundred hues; cheeses, peppers, and dessicated oddments of a hundred odors—all are gathered in the pavilion and in the bazaar that overflows into the surrounding plazas and cobblestoned streets.

Outdoor Department Store.

It is a State street department store moved outdoors, with a touch of Chinatown, Maxwell street, and the stock yards thrown in. You can buy a burro for six or seven pesos. What to do with him after you get him is a problem so far unsolved by the tourists from the other side of the Rio Grande.

Our drive from Mexico City to the Toluca valley led us thru a mountain pass 11,000 feet high. We passed fields of maguey cactus and forests of pine. As the highway approached the city it became crowded with human beasts of burden. Indians, their backs bent nearly double, were carrying their home-made goods to Toluca, there to sell them for a song. In the marshy fields other Indians were gathering reeds for the weaving of baskets that will be sold on some future market day. In the villages the pieces of pottery and the products of wool were being fashioned just as they were centuries ago.

City at Foot of Volcano.

The city lies at the foot of the imposing 14,900 foot Volcano of Toluca. It was there long before the arrival of the Spaniards, but it was only a village then. It was not until 1533, when Cortez came along with a grant from Emperor Charles V., that it was made into a city.

Today it is known chiefly for its baskets, the vivid colorings of which embellish the figures of men, horses, and roosters. The colors are singularly like those employed by the ancient Egyptians. Experts say this probably is because the two races went to similar sources for their dyes.

A two hour drive from Toluca takes one to the snow-topped Pico del Aguila and Pico del Fraile and to the Laker of the Sun and the Moon. In this area are caught some of the world's finest salmon.

Retreat Long Abandoned.

Also nearby is the Desert of the Lions. Like the guinea pig, which is neither a pig nor a native of Guinea, this area of pine woods apparently has no connection with its name. The paradox is because a family named Leones [Lions in our language] came to the district in the seventeenth century and founded a Carmelite retreat so far from the centers of population that solitude was assured. Whereupon the wilderness was called a desert.

The retreat is no longer inaccessible. Travelers go there to see its secluded, walled gardens and its whispering chapel. The monks abandoned it long ago.

After inspecting the cloisters, aqueduct, and cells, visitors are guided to Santo Desierto's chapel, a room 15 feet square. Two persons go to opposite corners, face away from each other, and start whispering. One's whisper is heard by the other—but by no one else in the room.

The explanation? One theory is that in this way the good friars were enabled to make their confessions without disclosing their identities.

St. Augustine to Mark Its 375th Anniversary

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 13 [Special].—This year marks the 375th anniversary of the nation's oldest permanent white settlement here, and many events are planned in celebration. The Federated Garden Clubs are arranging a "Day in Old Spain" for March 7 and at the St. Augustine Country club the National Championship of Golf Club Champions' tournament is now under way.

Seek to Cultivate Citrus Plants in North Carolina

Southport, N. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—Two carloads of semi-tropical plants and shrubs have arrived here for planting at Orton Plantation and Baldhead Island, off the coast. Orange, lemon, and other citrus fruit trees will be set out on Baldhead and will constitute the first effort at commercial citrus cultivation in North Carolina. This locality has the highest mean temperature in the state.

Pre-Revolution Mansion Becomes Public Shrine

Halifax, N. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—Halifax House, the historic mansion wherein North Carolina's first state constitution was written on April 12, 1776, was opened on Feb. 2 as a public shrine. The house has been restored. In it 139 delegates adopted the "Halifax Resolves," first official action by any colony against Great Britain prior to the revolution.

What is the best time to visit Rio de Janeiro? What are the principal things to see there? R. K. M.

The rainy season there lasts from the first of December to the end of May. The best season for tourists, therefore, is from the first of June to the end of November. However, Rio has a delightful climate the year round. The average temperature is 74 degrees, with little variation from month to month. Bathing at Copacabana beach is good at nearly all times. The principal places to visit are 2,300 foot Mount Corcovado, with the statue of Christ the Redeemer on its summit; Sugar Loaf mountain, the Tijuca forest, the various beaches, and Avenida Rio Branco.

In THE TRIBUNE the other day I read an article about the exceptional fishing on the Gulf of California near Guaymas, Mexico. What is the best season there? L. R. E.

Nov. 1 to July 31.

I have been told of a curio shop, somewhere in Texas, that has a remarkable collection of animal horns. Can you tell me where it is? D. S.

Undoubtedly you refer to the Buckhorn shop in San Antonio. Included in its exhibits are a 78 point deer head and a mounted Texas longhorn steer with horns measuring 8 feet from tip to tip.

In the Guadalupe mountains of New Mexico. The giant pinnacles, sweeping drapes, and weird replicas of lily pads, totem poles, statues, and frozen waterfalls—all carved by nature from limestone—are among the main sights. The largest chamber is a thousand feet wide and more than three-quarters of a mile long. The elevator lifts visitors from the underground palaces to the surface—a rise of 750 feet—in 62 seconds. Largest caves ever discovered, the Carlsbad caverns are under the control of the national park service. The temperature in them remains constant at 56 degrees, winter and summer.

CARNIVAL MEANS HOT TIME IN OLD TOWN OF HAVANA

Celebration Will Reach Peak Saturday.

HAVANA, Feb. 13 [Special].—Havana is now in the midst of its annual carnival, the high peak of the city's gayety being reached next Saturday, when traditional "comparsas"—groups of masquerading celebrants—scamper thru its streets in a wild welcome to the six weeks' festival.

Their appearance is the signal for one of the gayest moments of the carnival. The fantastically costumed members of the "comparsas" announce their coming to the waiting crowds with the beating of drums and the clattering of maracas. Led by huge giants waving grotesque lanterns, they parade thru the city, serenading crowded balconies and staging impromptu dances.

Characters from Fairyland.

Gargantuas caper with gnomes; pierrettes link hands with hobgoblins and, all in all, they manage to look like so many characters who have escaped from a book of fairy tales.

Amusing features of the feverish caperings of the "comparsas" are the concerts and tableaux they enact before the surging carnival crowds. Playing weird collections of instruments, they present a musical répertoire, embracing anything from the folksongs of Cuba to the most frenzied of rhumbas.

Everything Is Impromptu.

The tableaux they stage, all of them inspired on the spot, are equally as amusing as the concerts and invariably win from the crowds shouts of applause.

After their first appearance on Feb. 17 the "comparsas" are a weekly feature until the carnival's close March 17.

FLORIDA ISLAND ABOUNDS WITH HISTORIC LORE

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 13 [Special].—Picturesque Fort George Island, at the mouth of the St. Johns river near here, thrills many a visitor in this sunny vacationland with its scenic beauty and historic lore.

Ruins of an ancient house and slave cabins built of "tabby" oyster shell rock recall the early colonial days when most of the island was a huge plantation operated by a slave trader. Later the island was headquarters for the abortive Patriots' Rebellion, when north Florida colonists sought to wrest control from the Spanish lords.

Victoria, B. C., Prepares for Winter Golf Meet

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—In many parts of Canada hockey is in full swing and ski meets fill the calendar, but Victoria is planning its 12th Empress Winter golf meet. Players from all parts of western Canada and the Pacific northwest will meet in the tournament March 3 to 9 on the Royal Colwood course.

SportsEventsOpen in March at Southern Pines, N. C.

Southern Pines, N. C., Feb. 13 [Special].—An active spring will open here in March. Starting with a woman's putting contest March 2, early events include an 18 hole sweepstakes handicap, a gymkhana March 8, tennis tournaments March 11, and the sweepstakes race March 16. The twelfth annual women's mid-south golf tournament will be March 18-20.

SIGHTS OF HAITI NOW CAN BE SEEN ON SHORT CRUISE

Offers Two Days, One Night Ashore.

Exotic Haiti may now be visited on a short cruise. Two daylight days and a night in a hotel ashore are included.

Port au Prince, nestling against a background of giant purple mountains, looms into view with theatrical suddenness, its red tiled roofs and colored walls shimmering in the tropical sun, when the ship docks. Diving boys paddling crude canoes and rafts make their appearance as the boat enters the harbor. For a few dimes they plunge from their places, pursuing the coins thru the clear water and grabbing them before they touch bottom.

Elegant Native Belles.

Visitors to Port au Prince invariably exclaim over the native belles who walk with a queenly elegance that is the admiration of painters and sculptors. Street vendors balance on their heads immense bundles or baskets of fruit, fish and other merchandise which they peddle with sing-song cries.

Other natives may be seen puffing contentedly on pipes as they ride their patient burros with a load of vegetables or fruit.

The shops of the town, especially those along the Rue du Quai, offer good hunting for the souvenir collector. He can bargain for mahogany or lignum vitae trays, coffee trays, canes, silver earrings and bracelets made of hammered coins, and sisal pocked-books, bags, slippers, mats and baskets.

Fine Embroidery in Demand.

Fine embroidery, scarves, table cloths and napkins are much in demand. Voodoo drums made of goat skin stretched across hollowed-out tree trunks are also popular.

HAWAII VISITORS SEE YOUNG, OLD VOLCANIC ISLES

Volcanic islands in the process of aging can be seen by any visitor to Hawaii. The islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui, Kauai, Molokai, Lanai, Niihau, and Kahoolawe are all of volcanic origin. Those at the westerly end of the group are the oldest and those at the easterly the youngest.

This difference in age accounts for the difference in appearance as they are viewed from offshore. Hawaii is the youngest and is still building up with active volcanoes, while Kauai is the oldest island and is lush with tropical vegetation.

BOOKS

How Good Is Your Memory? A Record of Decade Just Past Offers Sure Way to Find Out

"Since Yesterday," by Frederick Lewis Allen. [Harpers, $3.] Published last Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The author of "Only Yesterday," that kaleidoscopic panorama of the immediate post-first-world-war America, here brings his chronicle up to date with the record of America in the decade from Sept. 3, 1929, the day that the stock market quotations reached an all-time high, to Sept. 3, 1939, the day that England and France declared war on Nazi Germany.

If you think that your memory is good, here is the material for a quiz that will probably take you down good and plenty. You'll be surprised that it was only 10 years ago that the great prohibition experiment was breeding pirates in rum runners, murderers in bootleggers, and the greatest number of both female and male sots in our history; that "popular sport" was something the ordinary man looked at but didn't often indulge in; that the candid camera and its offspring, the picture magazines and pages of news photographs in the papers, and home movies were practically nonexistent; that the average radio cost $135; that there was still a question whether the "talkies" would ever become feasible; that there was no C. I. O.; that governmental regulation of private affairs or business was almost undreamed of.

Frederick L. Allen.

You also have probably forgotten (if you ever really knew) the whole tragedy of the depression, the decade's horrors of floods and dust bowl storms and hurricanes, the incredible phenomena of the jitterbugs, and a thousand other manifestations of the decade's nervousness.

In these pages Mr. Allen marshals them all before you, but in less detail and in more general classifications than he did in "Only Yesterday." That book was more photographic, this book more philosophical. Here the historian deduces as well as records. In that sense "Since Yesterday" is a less fascinating book than was its predecessor, for Mr. Allen is more brilliant as recorder than as interpreter.

Besides, the job of interpreting the same period was done magnificently less than a year ago by Charles and Mary Beard in "America in Midpassage," and readers have not yet forgotten that.

However, "Since Yesterday" is a book that you won't want to miss. For you'll find such keen phrases as "the New Deal honeymoon" pointing up the startling statistics while the whole panorama of America during the last decade is reeled minutely before your eyes.

A Good Humored Story

"Uncle Snowball," by Frances Frost. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published last Thursday.

Uncle Snowball, 60-odd as this novel opens, was almost literally blown into the Heyward family in a mountain blizzard 18 years before. Then there were only two Heywards, William and Nancy.

No such meager number peoples the pages of this happy year's chronicle. Here there are eight Heyward sprigs basking in the sunshine of Uncle Snowball's and their parents' understanding love, undeterred by grandma's acidulousness. Life on a farm was never lived more happily nor more vividly than the young Heywards live it in these pages. No children in fiction have had fewer inhibitions. None have been more attractively natural.

Uncle Snowball is officially the Heywards' "hired man" but during his 18 years with them he has grown into a personification of Santa Claus. It is to Uncle Snowball that the children go first in trouble and he watches over William and Nancy as tenderly as he does over their offspring. Uncle Snowball goes away every year to some far place when the crops are in. And Uncle Snowball likes his snifter of whisky regularly and often. But those two idiosyncrasies bother no one except grandma.

Skilfully Written Novel

"On a Darkling Plain," by Wallace Stegner. [Harcourt Brace, $2.] Published last Thursday.

Contrasted with the boisterous excitements of "Uncle Snowball" is this tale of a young Canadian soldier who takes up a homestead claim in the wilds of Saskatchewan, not because he wants to be a farmer but because the war has driven him to a frantic search for peace.

Gassed, wounded, sick to death of man's inhumanity to his fellow men, he appears at a village on the plains equipped only with a knapsack and a well filled pocketbook to start a new life. He will have none of even a three year old town's civilizations. Scorning a horse, he tramps the 45 miles to his claim. Five miles away are his nearest neighbors, the Sundstroms—father, mother, and 17 year old daughter.

Inevitably love comes—a gently peaceful tenderness, warm and beautiful like the glowing sun as it sets on the plain. Then sharply and suddenly trouble blots out the sun. The influenza epidemic of 1918 touches even the farthest spots, coming to the "darkling plain, swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight."

One of the most poignant descriptions you ever read of man's helplessness in the face of the terror of plague is written in the final chapters of this book, when the Sundstroms, their macabre visitor, and young Vickers go into town to fight the epidemic. In the simplest possible words—as in the all of the last of the book—Mr. Stegner tells of days and nights of horror—and of courage.

Winners of 1939 Booksellers' Awards

A Weird, Lonely Island Is Setting for Bizarre Tale

"Dildo Cay," by Nelson Hayes. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

A barren island in the Atlantic, 75 miles from the nearest civilization, 600 miles toward the horizon from Great Bahama, is the setting for a tale of menacing passion with the mysterious title of "Dildo Cay."

Not a tree grew on the infinitesimal desert in the vast ocean. Hot sun did the island's work—changed vats of sea water into dense brine and then into salt. For 11 generations Ainsworths had lived on Dildo Cay, a lone white family among 200 black natives. Their wives were chosen for strength and the hardihood to stand isolation—seldom for love.

As it had been with his forefathers, it was with Adrian Ainsworth. Dildo Cay was his first love, and, until fate thrust Carol violently into his life, he did not know any other, altho he had married and was to become a father as the book opens.

Violence marks the first pages—the mysterious death of Adrian's father, murdered, so his mother insisted, by the natives. After her husband's death she refused to permit Adrian to live as the sole white male on the island, and thru her machinations there came Delbridge, who was weak where he should have been strong, iron-willed where gentleness was the only possible weapon. His arrival on the island set off a series of emotional explosions, like a bunch of firecrackers igniting one from another.

Authors and Their Work

Christopher Morley, author of the leading fictional best seller, "Kitty Foyle" [Lippincott, $2.50], sent Ben Abramson an amusing present for the opening of his new Michigan avenue bookshop last Saturday. It was a message that he was autographing the 100,000th copy of "Kitty Foyle," sizzling off the press, to his old friend with appropriate sentiments. James Branch Cabell whose "Hamlet Had an Uncle" [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50], is just out, also sent a handsome epistolary tribute.

Hitler Speaks in 'The Voice of Destruction'

BY TOM MOORE.

The traditional characterizations of Adolf Hitler as the despot, the mystic, the cynic, the fanatic, and the genius are once more reaffirmed in "The Voice of Destruction," by Hermann Rauschning. The author hit the literary jackpot with his "The Revolution of Nihilism" last year. That volume, with the rather self-explanatory title, was a best seller.

Rauschning concerns himself here with the years 1932 to 1935, when he was a member of the Nazi hierarchy entrusted with the development of Danzig, and when Hitler was just asserting himself as creator of a resurrected Germany. The author espoused a policy of moderation in his work as a Nazi official. Such an outlook was anathema to Hitler and his cohorts, so Rauschning went the way of all dissenters—out. This should be kept in mind in an assessment of the book's genuine value.

The volume is comprised principally of direct quotations from conversations which the author had with Hitler during their association. Hitler, of course, does most of the talking. A few of the Fuehrer's remarks, as delivered to Rauschning, follow:

"I have no scruples. I will use whatever weapons I require."

"National socialism alone is destined to liberate the American people from their ruling clique and give them back the means of becoming a great nation."

"Compared with the British and French, the Americans behaved like clumsy boys [in the world war]. The American is no soldier."

"I have no conscience. My conscience is Adolf Hitler."

"Today there is no such thing as an island. I shall land on the shores of Britain."

"We [the German people] are God's people."

Such pronouncements flow from the Fuehrer's tongue in endless profusion. They impart to "The Voice of Destruction" the readability which is its most valuable attribute. In other ways it appears hastily written, perhaps with the intention of jumping on the literary snowball that made "The Revolution of Nihilism" a profitable enterprise.

Outstanding 1939 Books Chosen in Nation-Wide Poll

"Wind, Sand, and Stars," by Antoine de Saint Exupery [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75], has been selected by the American Booksellers' association as its favorite nonfiction of 1939. John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath" [Viking, $2.75] was voted the favorite fiction of last year. Chosen as 1939's "discovery" [the most deserving book which failed to receive adequate sales and recognition] was "Ararat," by Elgin Grosseclose [Carrick & Evans, $2.50], and as the year's most original book, Dalton Trumbo's novel, "Johnny Got His Gun" [Lippincott, $2.50].

These national book awards are the most interesting prize choices of the year, altho they carry no cash award and only a bronze paper weight as tangible prize, for they are the result of a poll of the hundreds of booksellers all over the country.

This year for the first time the public was admitted to the celebration of the announcement of the awards, which was held at a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Astor in New York City.

Recent Additions Made to Wealth of Lincoln Books

A volume edited by Philip Van Doren Stern, The Life and Writings of Abraham Lincoln [Random House, $3.75], is the largest single collection in print of Lincoln papers and the only one completely annotated with notes for the guidance of the general reader. It is rich as source material.

Life on the Circuit with Lincoln, by Henry Clay Whitney [Caxton, $5], is a new edition of a standard work, edited by Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Illinois State Historical society. Abraham Lincoln Sees Peoria, by Ernest E. East [Record Publishing Co.], gives an historical and pictorial record of 17 visits made by Lincoln to Peoria from 1832 to 1858.

THE Inside Story OF THE MEN BEHIND THE WAR

JOSEPH STALIN — "Probably the most powerful single human being in the world," says Gunther, explaining how he is different from the other dictators.
ADOLPH HITLER — Began his political career as a spy for the Reichswehr . . . that's only one of the bits which make the sections about him so interesting.
NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN — "As British as beef," says Gunther, explaining how — in spite of bitter opposition — he has continued to be supported by the British public.
BENITO MUSSOLINI — He fears most an early death, since most of his family have died at his present age. He was once in the pay of the French Government.
EDOUARD DALADIER — Nicknamed "the Bull," "the Inscrutable," "the Taciturn," — a stubborn man of the people, slow-witted, honorable.
WINSTON CHURCHILL — Man of many talents who, it is believed, will end by being the controlling figure in British conduct of the war—as Lloyd George was in the last.
KYOSTI KALLIO — Finland's first peasant-born President. Says "Finland cannot be conquered." Has two sons at the front. He is regarded as the father of his country.

He is always saying apologetically:

"I just can't find any time to read books!"

Yet... IF HE SPENT (ON AN AVERAGE) ONLY 30 MINUTES A DAY—BEFORE BEDTIME, OR WHILE TRAVELLING TO OR FROM WORK, OR IN OTHER LEISURE MOMENTS—HE COULD EASILY READ EVERY BEST-SELLER DURING THE YEAR, AND A GREAT DEAL MORE!

AN average of only half an hour a day would have enabled you to read, within the past few months, every one of these widely-discussed new books:

KITTY FOYLE by Christopher Morley
ESCAPE by Ethel Vance
THE NAZARENE by Sholem Asch
MOMENT IN PEKING by Lin Yutang
THE GRAPES OF WRATH by John Steinbeck
THE YEARLING by Marjorie K. Rawlings
COUNTRY LAWYER by Bellamy Partridge
INSIDE ASIA by John Gunther
NOT PEACE BUT A SWORD by Vincent Sheean
WIND, SAND AND STARS by Antoine de Saint Exupéry
DAYS OF OUR YEARS by Pierre van Paassen

—or any other new books you may have been particularly anxious to read.

The books listed above are among the leaders on all best-seller lists. It is an interesting fact that seven of them were Book-of-the-Month Club choices.

Over 250,000 book-reading families—persons like yourself—have found a subscription to the Book-of-the-Month Club by far the most effectual way to keep themselves from missing the new books they are really interested in.

You are not obliged, as a member of the Club, to take the book-of-the-month its judges choose. Nor are you obliged to buy one book every month from the Club.

You receive a carefully written report about the book-of-the-month in advance of its publication. If it is a book you really want, you let it come to you. If not, you merely sign and mail a slip, saying, "Don't want it."

Scores of other recommendations are made to help you choose among all new books with discrimination. If you want to buy one of these from the Club, you can get it by merely asking for it.

In addition, there is a great money-saving. Time and again our judges' choices are books you find yourself buying anyway. For every two books-of-the-month you buy you receive, free, one of our book-dividends.

So many of the Club's members ordinarily want the book-of-the-month that an enormous edition can be printed. The saving on this quantity-production enables the Club to buy the right to print other fine library volumes. These are then manufactured and distributed free among the Club's members—one for every two books-of-the-month you buy. For every $1 you spend for a book-of-the-month you actually receive about 75¢ back in the form of free books, figured at retail value.

You pay no yearly sum to belong to the Book-of-the-Month Club. You pay nothing, except for the books you buy. Your only obligation is to agree to buy four books-of-the-month a year from the Club.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Cream put up in capsules has been talked about for rather a long time. Now it's here.

Instead of dipping your fingers into a jar, from which they emerge all gooey under the nails, you merely snip the end off a capsule and squeeze out the cream. It's fun. And more than fun for the business girl or the woman who is indulging in a quick cleanup away from her own boudoir. It's darned efficient.

There are three creams in this new form. One is that standby, the cleanser. This is in white capsules. Another in fat little round capsules tinted coral pink, is a honey colored cream for the treatment of dry skin. The third, in a capsule of turquoise blue, is a cream designed to arrest the problem of oily skin. Each capsule contains precisely enough for one application. When you've squeezed out the contents you throw the little container away as casually as you would a burnt match.

These are handy for traveling. They come 30 to the box and it's no problem at all to carry one or two in your purse when you set out on a full day's trip. They'll take a great deal of punishment without breaking; in fact you have to snip them with a scissors or prick them with something sharp to make the cream ooze out.

The creams are pleasant and pure, and we thought the one for dry skin something rather special. Its concentrated oils do a good job of soothing and softening. The whole idea of cream in such a convenient form is a good one for the woman whose skin needs frequent daily creaming, especially during the cold weather.

Vatican Takes New Step for Beatification of American Woman

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13 (AP).—The congregation of rites, meeting today in the presence of Pope Pius, approved a decree for the beatification of Mother Philippine Rose Duchesne. The beatification ceremonies are set for next June.

With four sisters of the Society of the Sacred Heart, Mother Duchesne settled in 1818 at St. Charles, Mo., then a shanty village, and opened a school. From there she pushed by oxcart almost to the Rocky mountains, establishing schools and convents. In her travels she tended the ill and injured and some of her cures were considered acts of divine intervention. Mother Duchesne died at St. Charles in 1852.

The first American citizen beatified by the Roman Catholic church was Mother Cabrini, who was given this first step toward sainthood on Nov. 13.

Costume Type Makeup Vital to Your Chic

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Cosmetics are a costume accent as important as a pair of green gloves or a red flower with a black dress," according to one of the leading cosmeticians who recently arranged a "makeup accent" for a fashion show.

According to our authority, there are two kinds of makeup for every woman—natural and costume.

Natural, of course, is the makeup which matches and deepens a woman's own color tones and she wears it with all of her normal colors. Costume makeup makes it possible for a gray-haired woman to wear brown, a blonde to wear beige, a brunette to wear yellow or a redhead to indulge in red. All colors which are ordinarily unflattering to type are included in costume makeup possibilities.

At the style showing an attractive young matron with blue-gray hair wore a deep, purple-blue, draped evening gown with cerise detail on the shoulder. To accent this costume, the cosmetician suggested a rich, wine red color for lipstick and rouge and blue eye shadow. Young gray-haired women, she says, always should wear vivid colors accented with high colors, but if they have a passion for brown or beige, it should be highlighted with a bright color and a soft, clear red costume makeup plan followed.

A lovely blonde at the showing glowed in a green ombre chiffon evening frock. For her was chosen a brilliant red lipstick and green eyeshadow. Blondes, says our informant, need costume makeup at night because their light-colored hair is not in sufficient contrast to their skins.

Indispensable Spring Suit

WOMAN'S AND MISS' SUIT.

The traditional spring "uniform," the indispensable suit, appears today in a brand new guise, with Valentine day pockets if you wish them! The skirt of this costume, which makes up as well in plain woolens as it does in tweeds, is a simple flared model that is a snap to keep in press. You're allowed latitude in the jacket styling, as the sketches illustrate. The neckline may be high and collared, or V with revers. There may be buttons or slide fastener down the front, and pockets or not, as you wish.

Both the hat styles may be made with pattern No. 2506, available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 3007 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1⅞ yards of 54 inch material for jacket; 1¾ yards for skirt.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the spring Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Busoni's Work Gains in Favor on 2d Hearing

BY EDWARD BARRY.

In Orchestra hall yesterday the Busoni piano concerto was presented by the same forces which gave it its first Chicago performance earlier in the season—Egon Petri, Frederick Stock, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and a male chorus from the Apollo Musical club.

This massive work yielded more of its secrets on second hearing than on first. The orderly magnificence of its thought and splendor—the somewhat somber splendor — of its surfaces seemed to fit together and to form an expressive musical whole even more perfectly than before.

Also one came to feel more deeply the grandeur of the piece's general structural scheme. The three profound slow movements were punctuated by the pezzo giocoso and by the Italian episode as a discourse on the nature of the world and of man might be punctuated by snatches of grave laughter.

The Young American Artists series, which was quite an institution back in the days of Jessie B. Hall, has been revived under Charline Marmein's management. The first of this cycle of debut recitals—a cycle which is expected to run thru the late winter and early spring—was given in Curtiss hall last night by Caroline Haas, soprano, and Duilio Pucci, tenor.

Both artists offered lyric songs and operatic excerpts and both made a good impression by reason of the sincerity of their performance. There their similarity ended. Both their virtues and thier faults were entirely individual.

Miss Haas sang with great strength and brilliance, soaring up the scale to high fortes without so much as a tremor. This agility and evenness compensated for a slight hardness of voice quality, for a tenseness which prevented a natural musical flow, and for the lack of a true pianissimo.

Mr. Pucci displayed in soft passages a beautiful voice quality of the floating, finely textured type. Also he seemed to have that natural musical talent which results in just the right nuances of color and tempo. Yet as soon as volume increased even a little his quality became rough. With a further increase, and with an intensification of the song's emotional character, his singing became definitely unmusical. There was so much nuance, so violent a treatment of phrasings, that the general impression came to be one of undisciplined vigor.

Robert MacDonald played excellent accompaniments, helping his singers over difficult spots and keeping the whole performance alive and musical.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

As a rule there is nothing timid about experts when it comes to doubling for penalties. In fact, some of them will admit that they use "hair-line doubles" to a dangerous degree. But this applies almost exclusively to less-than-slam contracts. Differing from average players, who double slams on the specious notion that "12 or 13 tricks are hard to make," experts are extremely chary of doubling a voluntary bid in the rarefied altitudes.

Their caution is usually based on the reasoning that when the opponents voluntarily bid a slam they know pretty well what they are doing. In today's hand imagine the embarrassment not only of the declarer's team but of the defenders, as well, when a grand slam contract went down five tricks without a double!

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	6 clubs	Pass
7 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously, the North player was not an expert. His bidding was of the kangaroo variety, the seven club bid being particularly bad, considering all of his previous leaping.

West selected the ten of hearts as the most strategic opening lead. Dummy's ace won and the king of trumps was laid down, followed by the jack. When East showed out the declarer had a vision of what was likely to happen. He won with the club ace and finessed against the diamond king. East gobbled up this trick and returned a low heart. Declarer ruffed and West dropped his king. The ace of diamonds blocked the suit. Declarer led to it, but could return to his own hand only with another ruff. Now when he led a third round of diamonds West ruffed with the club eight and picked up the one remaining trump in each hand. After that declarer's own hand was dead and dummy could take only the ace and king of spades.

The net result was a five trick penalty! And the amusing part was that neither East nor West could have doubled the contract with any degree of assurance!

As a matter of fact, declarer would have saved a trick by properly leading the five of clubs from dummy instead of the jack. With the latter card left intact, on the third lead of diamonds West would have been forced to trump in with his good queen of clubs and to return a trump in order to stop dummy's jack and declarer's ten from being used separately as ruffing cards.

How to Handle the Child Who Seems Nervous

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We were talking about four different children whose parents constantly thought of them or spoke of them as being nervous, yet who were not all really in a nervous condition.

There was Marie who "couldn't keep still a minute," and Sonny who didn't "want his light put out or his bedroom door shut," and Barbara who couldn't eat her breakfast on school days; and last, Christine who constantly made spasmodic muscular movements.

Of these four we decided that the first two weren't actually nervous, the third was nervous due to a new situation, and the fourth was definitely in a nervous state.

Having decided that, the next step is to see what might be done about each one.

If your child is like Marie "who can't keep still a minute" try these remedies: See that she has the opportunity for lots of play and games in the fresh air; at home provide her with toys and craft occupations and let her help about the house. Also with this sort of child, intervals of quiet occupation and rest periods should be arranged.

If your child is like Sonny, don't ridicule him, or be Spartan about turning out lights and shutting doors against his entreaties. Instead, try to find out what bothers him, change his furniture about perhaps, be reassuring, leave a low light burning and his door open, with you in the next room.

If your little girl is like Barbara in her first term at school, replan her morning to allow plenty of time and go see the teacher.

And if the description of Christine fits your child, or if some other marked nervous symptoms exist, a visit to the doctor should be your first step. His advice for treatment will probably cover the physical angle and go into possible emotional causes, too, so needing much help from you.

"Special Care for the Young Child" is a leaflet of interest to parents and teachers. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Beach Cabins Gain Favor at Florida Clubs

BY JUDITH CASS.

TRAINS and airplanes going west and south are filled with Chicagoans seeking the sun. A letter from a visitor to Florida brings a description of a popular gathering place on Florida's west coast, the Carlouel Yacht club at Clearwater beach. The club is a center of activity for that section of the country.

The unusual name comes from the first names of the wives of the three men who organized the club, Garrett Hobart of Paterson, N. J.; Theron Palmer of Erie, Pa., and Paul Randolph of Clearwater. Mrs. Hobart is named Caroline; Mrs. Palmer, Louise, and Mrs. Randolph, Eleanor.

Quite a community has grown up around the iclub and many who have large houses in Clearwater, Belleair or Dunedin have beach houses in the yacht club enclosure. These little houses are fully equipped for sleeping and cooking and entertaining, and are about as cunning playhouses as could be imagined, our correspondent writes.

Some are large enough for regular housekeeping, and the James Meloys of Chicago have one of these for the winter. Cheerio, their little place is called, and it is a rendezvous for the gay young people of the community. Mr. Meloy is chairman of the tennis committee of the yacht club.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Vox Populi

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 13.—"My Dear Poltroon: In your column of recent date you wrote a long article about the affinity that seems to exist between Hollywood and the medical profession and then proceeded to cite some of the great performances of current memory—Edward Robinson as Dr. Ehrlich, Paul Muni as the doctor in 'We Are Not Alone,' Lew Ayres as Dr. Kildare, and Spencer Tracy in almost anything. For some reason that is obscure to me, you deliberately omitted my name from the medical hall of fame.

"If you will just prod that curly little head of yours, old boy, you will undoubtedly recall that I, too, played a doctor on the screen. He was Dr. Hugo Z. Hackenbush in 'A Day at the Races.' I will admit that this is rather an odd name for a picture about medicine, but nevertheless my performance evoked the huzzas and applause of Dr. Leo Fishbien, the American Medical association, and the manufacturers of oxygen tents.

"I won't bore you with the story of the picture, which bored me, but in the second reel I proved, among other things, that the accelerated release of atomic energy would heat up the uranium specimen. In reel 3, I showed that the Steinbach rejuvenation treatment, as a hormone injection, had been used in 1832 by an old settler who was looking for a short cut to the living room, and in the fifth reel, it was my application of hot massages that restored the hero to convalescence and permitted M-G-M to finish the picture.

"For your information and for the doctored records, I was the first physician to isolate vitamins A to K. A few years later, hounded by an angry mob of skeptics who accused me of witchcraft, I flatly predicted that some day vitamins would run all the way from A to R, and might even live in the suburbs and own their own houses if they caught the FHA napping.

"In real 8, I lanced a leech, or vice versa, regained the respect of the entire hospital staff, unearthed the murderer and married the ingénue. I think you get the idea, Sullivan. All I ask is an immediate retraction with the usual legal threats. Sincerely, Groucho Marx, M. D."

"My dear Mr. Sullivan: My heart is broken to think you—of all people—whose column I eagerly read and swear by—you should think I was miscast—and badly miscast in 'Grapes of Wrath.' However, I was pleased as I could be that you said that nevertheless I had given a grand performance.

"Of course, you read the book, but you must have forgotten Mr. Steinbeck's description of Ma Joad. He describes me really, except, that I cannot say my hips are broad from child bearing. Something else, I know not what, did that. What I will do is to read that part of your column in which you say that I gave a grand performance, and stop there. Sincerely, Jane Darwell."

"Dear Ed: Maybe your Irish movie actor friends out in Hollywood would be interested to know about the prediction the Irish once made. After the battle of the Boyne, in 1690, when James II. was defeated by William III., the sages predicted: 'When palm and shamrock meet, Ireland will be free.' This means that when Palm Sunday and St. Patrick's day are one and the same, there will be no foreign foot on the green sod of Ireland. And that coincidence occurs on the 17th of March this year. Leon Arnold Muller, Chicago."

"Dear Mr. Sullivan: Relative to your criticism that Jane Darwell was miscast in 'Grapes of Wrath' because she was so plump, may I please quote from pages 99 and 100 of the book itself: 'Tom stood looking in. Ma was heavy but not fat; thick with child bearing and work; her strong, broad, bare feet; strong, freckled arms; her hands were chubby and delicate, like those of a plump little girl; her full face was not soft,' et cetera. May I also point out that starvation does not necessarily mean emaciation. Quite often poverty diets of potatoes, rice, spaghetti, pork, and bread produce an unhealthy obesity. Most sincerely, [Mrs.] Estelle L. Gellis [a Brooklyn school teacher reader]."

Your correspondent reiterates his contention: That he never has seen a starving person who was plump. . . . When you emphasize starvation with tremendous nervous worry, the net result is close kin to emaciation. . . . And the grapes of critical wrath are distilled in this column against all and sundry who insist that plumpness and starvation go hand in hand. . . . I don't believe it.

Look Hungry?

[Acme Photo.]

Warns Women That War Propagandist Can Use the Newsreels

"Propaganda can be both good and bad," said Clarence Woodrow Sorenson, an Englishman, in an illustrated talk before members of the Woman's Athletic club yesterday. However, it would seem that most propaganda, intentionally or otherwise, must fall in the second category.

Even newsreels, said Mr. Sorenson, are unreliable. He himself has had the experience of seeing his own newsreels after they had been "processed," and of realizing that the addition of a voice, the concentration upon one phase and the deletion of another had changed the spirit and meaning of the picture.

War propaganda follows a definite routine, appealing to the emotion and the reason of the public, said Mr. Sorenson. He showed slides of posters which he said had been stolen from the United States war department and distributed. "Neighbor, we have a job to do again" is a sample of the propaganda America will have should it be forced into war. The war department has had the cartoons made up as a measure of preparedness.

Mr. Sorenson ended his talk with the caution: "Listen to both sides, but judge for yourself."

Incident.

A young couple recently came to the desk of the Joliet public library, Anne C. Wilkerson bulletins, and handed the clerk a book that had been badly damaged. Their dog had chewed it, they explained, and they offered to pay for a new copy. The librarian looked at the title. It was How to Train Your Dog.

The Valentine brain teaser with the correct words, each spelled with the same six letters, inserted:

I did design that Valentine,
I signed it with my name.
It sings of how my heart is singed
In love's consuming flame.
Ah, cruel fair, she deigns no glance

—Evanston News-Index.

In the Morning Mail.

Dear Miss Provines: You cannot possibly know the disappointment that overwhelms a working girl when she turns to her favorite column only to find therein naught but brain teasers and little poems to fill in if she can. I have one of those pedestrian minds that cannot enjoy filling in a poem, especially in the light of rosy fingered dawn.

This morning a gal leered at me and said, "I don't like you," and after a moment's hesitation added, "and I don't like June Provines any more, either." . . . After you have finished throwing bait to the brilliant folk who like to fill in poems, do you suppose we could have some more swell quips?

Sincerely yours,
Skilly Waugh.

• • •

Good quips, dear Skilly, don't grow on bushes. The only one to come to mind at the moment is perhaps a little feeble. Ann Eden, who plays the covered wagon lady in Abe Lincoln in Illinois, sitting with Mrs. Ray Bolger, Ernest Byfield, and Paul Draper, was asked how long the play would run. Miss Eden said she hoped to be in Hawaii by July.

"Then I suppose it will be Abe Lincoln in Honolulu," said one of the group.

Good Morning!

Nick Carter that slick, fictional sleuth, beloved by several generations of boys, comes alive ingratiatingly in the talkies in the person of Walter Pidgeon.

In this entertaining little whodunnit—it's only an hour long—Carter pits his razor edged brain against the somewhat duller ones of foreign agents who are engaged in stealing plans from a plane factory. Does he get his man? [Or men?] [Or women?]

What do you think, Boys?

-o-

As you have gathered, no doubt, the subject matter is topical. It is delightfully presented. A good story can fall flat if either told by a tiresome person or subjected to awkward direction for the screen. "Nick Carter, Master Detective" really hasn't so much to offer in the way of originality but the casual, naturalness of the acting, the easy writing and delivery of dialog, the hundred and one little adept touches that went into its making, keep you both charmed and agog.

-o-

Mr. Pidgeon is—at the moment—my idea of what a master mind SHOULD be. He—to quote him—is, as Carter, "from the McGonigal school . . . McGonigal was a flatfoot I used to work under in New York and he said to me: 'Don't be spouting theories, Nick, until you get your man. They sound better, then . . .'"

See you tomorrow.

The Girl in the Shadows

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage to Michael, Cynthia is wrongly sentenced to prison, the scapegoat of Rory Clarke. Michael knows nothing about the sentence, as Cynthia has given the name of Clara Brown when arrested as Clarke's accomplice in a roadhouse robbery and murder. At the prison Cynthia's childhood friend, Bessie Stockley, is wardress and exchanges places with her so she can marry Michael without telling him of her disgrace. After the honeymoon Cynthia persuades Michael to return to his job in Malta without her and she returns to prison. She discovers she is going to have a baby and breaks prison. Explaining her absence as a lapse of memory, she goes to stay with her husband's mother and sister, Marion, at Cloutleigh. Rory Clarke blackmails Cynthia, and Scotland Yard in their search for Clarke get suspicious of Cynthia. Escorted by Sir William, a family friend, she attempts to fly to Malta to join Michael but is arrested at the airport. Her marriage date, when she was supposed to be in prison, clears her. She goes on to Malta. Bessie applies for a job from Marion, and detectives question her. Bessie gets frightened and cables a warning to Cynthia. Marion checks up and makes Bessie explain everything. Michael finds Bessie's message and realizes Cynthia has lied, but she begs him to trust her. Marion is questioned by detectives and sees a way to shift the danger from Michael by admitting she knew Clarke and saying he was trying to blackmail her. She refuses to identify Clara Brown, and detectives decide to watch Marion in hopes of getting Clarke. While Marion is staying in Cynthia's apartment in London, Clarke attempts to blackmail her.

INSTALMENT XXXIII.

THE LADY AND THE CROOK.

A clamorous noise cut across Marion's words. At the door there came a determined ringing and knocking. Clarke whipped round, showing a revolver, and Marion caught at the back of a chair. Both of them at once accepted the fact that it was the police who stood at the door.

The insistent knocking stopped. The police were waiting for an answer. In that moment of silence Marion, for the first time in her life, felt a most definitly warm admiration for a man. She knew she was feeling it and was utterly ashamed that the man should be Rory Clarke, a particularly low kind of murderer.

"Miss Alloway." It was the unexpected formality that startled her imagination. "Miss Alloway, I don't want to be hanged. And I can only be hanged once. Remember that, won't you! My position would be none the worse if I were to kill you now, and it might be a great deal better."

If he had blustered or struck here, it would have seemed natural. But his drawing room-like calm fascinatd her, serpent-wise.

The letter flap was lifted and a voice called thru it:

"Open the door, Clarke. You can't get away—we have men on the fire escape and the place is surrounded."

"Okay," returned Clarke.

"And if you hurt that lady, we'll hurt you on the way to the station."

"I shan't hurt her if she does what she's told."

During this back-chat with the police, he had not moved his eyes from Marion. She was staring back at him, utterly certain that he would kill her if she disobeyed him—still feeling that strange horrible fascination.

"Come here." There was no menace in his voice; his eyes held only a cold self-confidence.

He touched her arm with his fingers; gently, almost deferentially, he led her to the front door of the flat.

"Turn round, please. Press your back against the door. Stay here. You understand?"

"Yes," she murmured, and stared at the revolver in his right hand. But it was not the revolver that frightened her. It was fear of herself for weakly admiring the cool courage of a murderer.

"If you boys break the door down you'll probably kill Miss Alloway," shouted Clarke.

"Thanks. You're being very useful. Keep it up," he said to Marion, and with a casual nod turned from her. She thought that he was about to try the fire escape, in spite of the police warning. But instead he strolled into the bedroom, leaving the door ajar.

Again she was startled. There was no possible escape thru the bedroom. The window opened over a sheer drop of two stories and the chimney was only a gas flue. There came to her the strange thought that he intended to kill himself. That was why he was not hurrying; he knew that escape was hopeless.

"What's he doing now, Miss Alloway?"

"I don't know."

"Can you see him?"

"No," she answered literally. "He went into the bedroom. The door is ajar. He can hear me speaking."

Then from behind the bedroom door came Clarke's voice.

"Tell them all you like, dear. But remember not to move, won't you?"

"He spoke to me then," said Marion tonelessly. "If I move from the door he will shoot me."

"All right! You stay where you are, Miss Alloway. Don't take any risks."

The flap closed. She remained standing by the door, feeling as if she had been standing there for hours, that she would stand there for the rest of her life. But the miniature grandfather in the hall kept her aware of the passage of real time. She watched the jerky little second hand, knew that it had not gone a complete round before there was a splintering crash at the end of the corridor as the wooden door giving on to the fire escape was broken in. She saw a man's head at floor level, a revolver held in front of him.

With the first crash the door of the bedroom had been shut. She heard Clarke lock it on the inside, heard him push the bed against it.

"He has locked the door of the bedroom," she reported.

The detective sprang into the corridor, followed by another.

"Into the bathroom, Miss Alloway—get in the bath and lie as flat as you can." As she obeyed him she saw the detective try the latch of the outer door, then unfasten the bolts which Clarke had secured before surprising her in the sitting room.

"Keep out of line of that door," he ordered, then himself approached it. Pressing against the wall, he extended one hand and rapped.

"Clarke! . . . Clarke, what's the good of a shoot-up. You know we've got you. Have a heart, man."

There came no answer.

"This window opens on to the other side of the building, doesn't it—must do," said Stevens with some anxiety. "He may be doing a drain pipe. Never thought of that."

He wheeled on a subordinate. "Get down as quickly as you can and tell those other two to get off the fire escape and watch that bedroom window. He may try a jump or anything."

Stevens waited 45 seconds—time enough for the warning to be given to the men below to change positions. Then:

"Give me that ax," he ordered.

Mr. Heddleton, who lived in the flat above, was an elderly stockbroker with a very small and dwindling practice. He and his wife were just sitting down to the high tea which she had prepared in the kitchenette.

"You'd like your tea strong tonight, I expect, Herbert," she said as she poured out his tea. She said it every evening but he only liked her the better for it. "I'll let it stand for a few minutes—O, dear! Something's fallen down in the bedroom. I wonder what it can be."

"Nerves I expect, dear."

"No. Herbert ——"

It was the alarm in her voice that sent him hurrying into the bedroom. He switched on the light and faced a disheveled young woman.

"May I ask what you are doing here, madam, and how you got in?"

"Shut up!" The "young woman" amazingly pointed a revolver at him and in a second frightened glance Mr. Heddleton perceived that it was not a young woman at all, but a young man very incompletely attired as a woman.

"Anybody else in this flat?" demanded Clarke.

"Only my wife."

"Take me to her. Quick!"

spending the winter. They have a bungalow on the grounds of the Fenway hotel. Mr. Smith, who just has returned south from a trip to Chicago, and his wife expect their daughters, Mrs. George S. Chappell Jr. and Mrs. Scott Bromwell of Lake Forest, to join them in March from Sea Island, Ga., where they are enjoying a midwinter holiday.

Mrs. William A. Alexander is a Chicagoan who has a residence in Belleair. She is one of those who have been going to this old resort for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Rush Hussey are visiting her now.

Belleair is not as old a place as Clearwater, for the former was started in 1895 by Henry B. Plant of New York when Clearwater ran up the price of the land he wanted to purchase. He came a bit south and bought all of the land that now includes the town of Belleair and the grounds of the Belleview Biltmore hotel. Earlier, in about 1887, Plant had built the mammoth Tampa Bay hotel, now the home of Tampa university.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Elliott are expected to arrive at the Belleview Biltmore today. Their son and his wife, the F. Osborne Elliotts, will join them next Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Liddle and the Harvey A. Murrells are others who will be arriving there this week.

Ira Nelson Morris spent several days in Belleair en route to other Florida resorts. The Robert S. Ritchies are expected there on the 22d. Kimball Salisbury will join the Chicago colony at the Belleview Biltmore on the 24th.

Heads Convention

[Koehne Photo.]

Miss Winifred Weedman, 1528 Morse avenue, is general chairman for the XI province meeting of Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. The convention will be held at the Congress hotel Saturday and Sunday. Miss Marion C. Geldrich is chairman of the convention dance.

Miss Georganne Rundall Will Become Bride.

Romantic news is especially interesting on St. Valentine's day. Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Rundall of Evanston chose today to announce the engagement of their daughter, Georganne, to John Alden Sears of Beloit, Wis. Their friends will receive invitations today to meet Miss Rundall and Mr. Sears between 4 and 6 o'clock on Sunday, Feb. 25, at the Glen View club.

Miss Rundall, a graduate of the Roycemore school, was graduated with honors from Northwestern university. She spent the following year at the Sorbonne in Paris and at the University of Grenoble. Since her return she has been connected with the public relations department of Northwestern university. She is treasurer of the junior board of the Northwestern University settlement.

Mr. Sears is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Sears of Seattle, Wash., and a grandson of Joseph Sears, who founded the village of Kenilworth. He is a graduate of Leland Stanford university. The wedding will take place in the early fall. Mr. Sears and his bride will live in Beloit, where he is engaged in business.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Weeks, of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy De Forest Weeks, to Clayton Mark III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Mark Jr., also of Evanston. The announcement was made at an at-home Mr. and Mrs. Weeks gave to welcome back from their honeymoon their other daughter and her bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bevan Jones Jr. [Betsey Alden Weeks], who were married on Feb. 3.

Harvey Woodruff Hunsberger Is Born in Evanston.

A boy who will celebrate his birthday on Lincoln's birthday is Harvey Woodruff Hunsberger, who was born on Monday at the Evanston hospital. The baby is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hunsberger [Alberta Woodruff] and was named for his maternal grandfather, the late Harvey T. Woodruff.

Sara Royall Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott Stewart of New York and granddaughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Wright Stewart of Chicago, was born on Feb. 4. The baby is the fifth in the family to be named after a colonial Virginian ancestor.

Tonight's Palm Beach party at the Lake Shore Athletic club is to have a Valentine theme. The series of Palm Beach Nights will be continued thru March 13.

Italian meat and noodle loaf in tomorrow's dinner menu takes the place of meat and potatoes. It contains ground round steak, noodles, cheese, tomato soup, and seasonings, a hearty enough combination. Frozen fruit salad is its perfect complement.

Italian Meat and Noodle Loaf.
[Eight servings.]

1 onion, finely chopped
2 green peppers, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or olive oil
1 pound ground round steak
3 cups cooked noodles
1 can concentrated tomato soup
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ pound package American cheese

Brown onion and peppers in butter or oil. Add meat and cook until well browned. Add noodles [which have been boiled in salted water], soup, salt, and pepper. Press cheese thru a coarse sieve. It should not have been chilled or it won't take readily to sieving. Add half the cheese to the meat and noodle mixture. Pack in a greased loaf pan. Sprinkle the rest of the cheese over the top of the loaf. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for half an hour until brown.

Frozen Fruit Salad.
[Serves six.]

1 orange, peeled and cut in pieces
2 slices pineapple, cut in pieces
¼ cup Royal Anne cherries, seeded
1 banana, sliced or diced
2 canned pear halves, cut in pieces
¼ cup chopped blanched almonds
¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries
¼ cup boiled salad dressing
½ cup cream, whipped

Combine fruits and nuts. Add mayonnaise and whipped cream. Freeze in refrigerator tray until firm. Slice and serve on lettuce or other greens, with or without dressing.

A simpler fruit salad than this one, in case you don't want to open so many cans of fruit, is based on one can of mixed salad fruits. Drain them [but save the juice for another dish] and cut fine. Combine with half a cup of salad dressing and half a cup of cream, whipped. Freeze until firm.

Cranberry spice cake is made by a new recipe which is destined to become a popular one. The cake is moist, spicy, and delicious. Canned cranberry sauce, available the year around, is used to make it.

Cranberry Sauce Spice Cake.

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ cup shortening
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup milk
1 cup canned cranberry sauce
1 cup seedless raisins

Sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt, and spices together three or four times. Cream shortening and sugar together thoroly. Beat in the cranberry sauce. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating batter smooth after each addition. Add raisins last. Spread batter in a greased bread pan and bake in a 325 degree oven for about 45 minutes.

Tips on cooking carrots and cauliflower for tomorrow's dinner: Steam the carrots whole or slice them and cook uncovered in a small amount of boiling salted water, letting the water cook off as they become tender. A tiny pinch of sugar seems to add to their flavor. Boil the cauliflower in a rather large amount of salted water and only until tender. Have the hot white sauce waiting in the top of a double boiler.

BEAUTY ANSWERS
BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

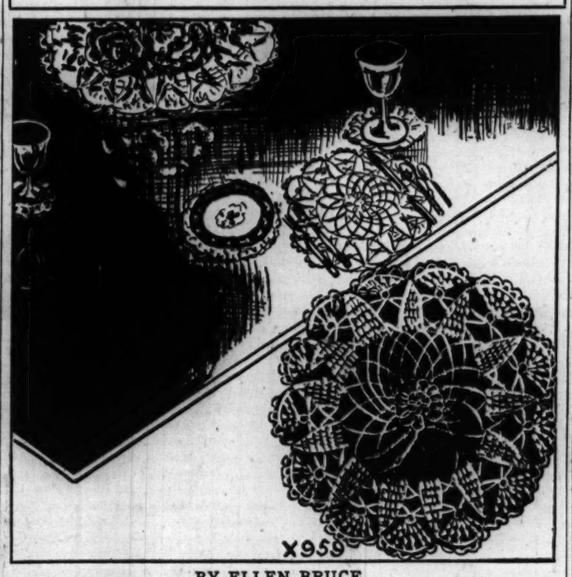
Hints on Eyeglass Choice.

L. J.: Don't wear lenses that "cut into" the nose and cheeks, or your face will appear heavier. As you have a rachel complexion, wear yellow gold metal frames.

Double Chin? Try This.

Nina: One approved method for correcting a double chin is to grease the palms and press firmly into the flesh as you rub from base of throat up and out along jaw line.

Fan, Cone, and Mesh Doily



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Every bride loves to display exquisite luncheon sets made and given to her by a doting aunt, mother, or grandmother. Linens are beautiful, but it is with special pride that crocheted doilies and luncheon sets are brought forth. The unusual crochet pattern in today's doily is a combination of fan, cone, and mesh designs created of white mercerized crochet cotton. When it is finished it measures approximately 9½ inches across and is particularly suitable for snacks served at the bridge table.

For instructions in crocheting the fan, cone, and mesh doily, No. X-959, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

This Wife May Be a Victim of Imagination

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Here's my story. I met a young man five years ago and soon afterward he asked me to marry him. I did, altho I did not love him at the time. But after four and a half years of marriage my trouble is that I am too much in love with him now. He says he loves me in his own way, but to me it seems a very crude way. He is everything a wife could ask for in generosity. He is a good provider, wants a good home himself, wants me tc have good clothes, but it seems to me that he stopped loving me on the death of our twin sons. He finds time for every one and everything else but me.

"Kindly don't get me wrong. I am not the romantic type, but I would be happy if he would make love to me just once in a while. He claims he is too tired for the mushy business of kissing and hugging. But if we go to a party I notice that he thinks nothing of taking a girl off in the corner and kissing her. Maybe I wouldn't have minded it before I found out how much I loved him after all. And I have tried so hard to be the loving, loyal wife. ANGELA L."

Are you sure that you are not letting the death of your babies affect your own behavior? True, that was a bitter loss to you both and one in which you have our deep sympathy, but sometimes a loss like that makes a woman supersenstive and unhappy. Then, she misjudges other's actions. Perhaps she may even become too possessive about her husband, too demanding of him, may we say. The love that she craves be expressed in word and deed might be closed off to her by her now repetitious pleas for it.

We think it would be better to accept the fact that the man loves you; that you're lucky to have one with his good, generous qualities; and that, perhaps, something has gone out of you with that loss of yours that makes you less appealing. We are only guessing, of course, that it is extra babying, extra attention you crave now. Are we right or are we wrong?

A FRIEND IN NEED
BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Woman Needs a Warm Coat.

Mr. K., who has been ill and unemployable for several years, recently was released from a veterans' hospital and he and his wife now are on relief. They live in a small and poor district just north and west of the city. Mrs. K. is being treated at an eye clinic for poor vision, but has been unable to attend recently because she lacks a warm coat. If any reader has a coat, size 20, it will be greatly appreciated. However, their funds are too low to permit carfare, so we hope that if one is available it can be mailed.

Willing Helpers.

The Willing Helpers for Crippled Children will hear Dr. Kate H. Kohn speak on "The Human Heart and How to Take Care of It" at 1 o'clock today at the Spalding school, 1628 Washington boulevard. A chorus of seventh and eighth graders, all crippled, will sing.

The White Hats Bring Promise of Springtime

BY REA SEEGER.

Never a spring—without a regular blizzard of white, crisp, sharp hats that are small, feminine, and with wings of birds, feathers, bows, or flowers.

Turbans, pill boxes, shaflow brimmed sailors, and the exotic swathed headlines of fabrics all are snowy white with the dark contrast usually a navy blue, tobacco brown, or leaf green veil. These colors are much more flattering than a trying inky black and are shades that are definitely fresh and springlike.

Also with each spring comes a wide assortment of tricky, inexpensive outfits for the shoppers with little money to spend, but with lots of appreciation of high fashion . . . this week it is dots, small, precise white dots against such flattering background colors as rose coral, almond green, navy, a star sapphire blue, and a copper. The outfits consist of a 10 gored skirt, lumberjack jacket, a hat that winds most becomingly around the skull, and a matching bag.

The skirt and jacket are priced separately, each with a mark around $3. The hat is yours for a dollar bill, the bag priced like the skirt, and you can mix, match, or contrast in any way you wish. The navy blue skirt contrasts the red coral top or the lighter shades of blue. Slick finds for the dark wool coat as a midseason pickup.

New, witty lapel pins also come with every spring. Already taking the town are the spike pins used either thru the lapel or in the knots of the wrap-around hats. The new arrivals have simulated jewel tops. Funny animals, flowers flashing with jewels, salt spoons in sterling silver, locket hearts attached with a bow knot pin, miniature scimitars, jumping jacks, and almost anything you ever dreamed about now comes in gleaming decorative metal for fun in your jacket lapel.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Boston, 10; Detroit, 3.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 13 (AP).—The Boston Bruins' shots were few but accurate tonight and they swamped Detroit's pugnacious Red Wings, 10 to 3, to move into a first place tie with the New York Rangers in the National Hockey league.

When the teams weren't scoring they were fighting in one of the most riotous contests in Boston Garden this season. A crowd of 9,524 saw Referee Mickey Ion impose 16 penalties, including five majors, as an aftermath of three fights, one of them involving a spectator.

Wings Can't Keep Up.

Every Bruin except Mel Hill collected a point, Herb Cain leading the rout with two goals and two assists. Roy Conacher had two goals and an assist.

Johnny Grosso opened the Detroit scoring in the first period and Connie Brown and Ebbie Goodfellow also drove pucks thru Goalie Frankie Brimsek, but the Wings couldn't match the high powered Bruin offensive.

Goodfellow started the fisticuffing by threatening his former teammate, Cooney Weiland, now the Bruins' coach, when he was penalized for high-sticking early in the game. As he started for Weiland, Art Ross Jr., son of the Bruins' manager, who was seated two rows behind the penalty box, intervened and swapped punches with the husky Detroit defenseman.

Grosso Fined $25.

Five minute penalties were imposed on Hill, Orlando, Grosso and Des Smith for participating in the other two bouts. Grosso also drew a $25 fine for leaving the Detroit bench when Goodfellow and young Ross came to grips. Lineups:

The Snowman.

Our snowman is a charming blend
Of dignity and careless grace,
His pompous presence in the yard
Makes people pause before our place.

The children fashioned him with care,
A task that proved but jolly sport;
There's no doubt but that he adds
Distinction of a certain sort.

A stovepipe hat, sans top, he wears,
Rare relic of a bygone day,
Then to belie his seeming caste,
He smokes a common pipe of clay.

With nonchalance he sports a cane
That well befits a man of snow,
An icicle of gleaming length
That from the corner eaves hung low.

He loves frigid wintry days
And glories in them one by one,
Now fears the fateful day when he
Shall be laid low by yonder sun.

The Duke and me went down to the oyster supper at the church last night. Had a right fine party there. Bunch of city folks stopped in on their way to the Cozy Corner. There were four doctors, five lawyers, two dentists, and three fellows who are making a living. The Duke fell right in with 'em. He's a corker, The Duke. "See where that Browder feller was mighty jubilant over that four year sentence," he sez. "Bet the chair would have killed him." The Duke's a card. Soon found me calling her "Shorty."

Of coquettish patter
Was about a drink quite porty;
So we strolled afar

LANDIS GIVES IN; BASEBALL FARM CLUBS SURVIVE

Commissioner Agrees to Compromise.

Bellealr, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis and a group of owners and officials of both major leagues met in a dramatic emergency session today and reached a compromise on the baseball farm system that cleared the atmosphere for the time being, at least.

Landis backed down slightly from the stern and unyielding attitude which recently has thrown club officials into a turmoil, and the officials met him half way. The clubs will go right on having their farm systems, but Landis came out of the meeting satisfied that he had done something toward protecting minor league players.

Majors, Minors to Vote.

Those who participated in the noisy meeting included Ford Frick, president of the National league; Will Harridge, president of the American league; Clark Griffith of Washington, Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals, Bob Quinn of the Boston Bees, General Manager Eddie Collins of the Boston Red Sox, General Manager Larry MacPhail of Brooklyn, and W. G. Bramham, minor league commissioner.

They agreed to put to a vote of the major and minor leagues an amendment to rule 11 to read as follows:

"A player reacquired by the same club or system shall, so far as rule 11 is concerned, be credited with having been under minor league optional assignment for the intervening period; provided that if reacquired by a major league club, that club shall be charged with one season of major league optional service and the balance of the player's minor league service shall be charged as minor league optional service.

May Suspend Two Amendments.

"A player acquired from a lower club of the same ownership or control shall, for the purposes of this rule, be regarded as reacquired."

Landis agreed that, if the amendment is adopted, he will suspend paragraphs three and five and his bulletin of Jan. 15 pending subsequent consideration of general revision of baseball administrative rules.

Landis would not comment upon the amendment, but he appeared well enough pleased.

The committee knocked the sacrifice fly out of the book.

Hereafter when a batter hits a fly to score a teammate from third base he will be charged with a time at bat.

New York, Feb. 13.—Seven Chicago dogs stood among the winners tonight as the judges finished selecting the best representative of each of the 89 breeds entered in the 64th annual Westminster Kennel clubs show. They are survivors of a field of 2,738 dogs who paraded in Madison Square Garden.

Five Chicago braces [two dogs of a breed] survived the competition of the last two days.

The climax of the show will come tomorrow night with the crowning of a new king [or queen] to succeed Ferry von Rauhfelsen, Dobermann Pinscher of Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge of Madison, N. J., who is not entered this year.

Champion's Son Wins.

Chicago dogs, who took four best of breed honors today, figured in two upsets and in another instance carried on proud family tradition.

A champion's son, Ch. Hertzville Headstudy, brought Premier Collie honors to C. J. Cassleman and Thomas M. Halpin, of Chicago. Entered in the special class, this beautiful tri-color swept past Southport Sceptre of Bellhaen, owned by Florence B. Ilch or Red Bank, N. J., best of winners, and Lound Bluepeter of Torreya kennels, Clifton Corners, N. Y., best of smooth coated collies.

Headstudy's daddy, Ch. Hertzville Headstone, was one of the greatest show collies and sire of champions every known. He was best of breed, best in working dog group, and narrowly missed best of show honors here two years ago. His son, Headstudy, has been best in show his last three shows, his latest victory being in the Western Specialty Clubs association event in Chicago in November.

Another Chicago Victory.

Other prizes for Classleman-Halpin collies today were second in puppy dogs for Hertzville Headplay, first in open dog competition for Hertzville Hannibal, and first in American bred bitches for Hertzville Blue Heaven.

Altho disappointed in failure of his fine Welsh terriers to win, Harold Florsheim of Chicago, had the satis-

Sports Fans Get a Break at Ice Revue

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Once in a while the sports fans get a break, such as when an ice show comes to town. It allows you to get away for the moment from Dizzy Dean, the next opponent for Joe Louis and the latest 300 game in bowling, for something as uplifting as the skating production known as the European ice revue that started a five night series last night in Chicago Stadium.

At the finish, the assembled 7,500 couldn't even complain: "What, no Mickey mouse!" Mickey was there as early as the first scene. And there was a Donald Duck, too.

It was that kind of a show, moving as fast as a Golden Gloves production, and with as much variety as amateur fighters have styles. It's one of those shows akin to an athletic event where you can't pick out a star at the finish. Every one delivers in the clinch. Flashy skaters clad in beautiful costumes cut the ice with almost unbelievable rhythm. Clowns bump into the wooden barrier at the end of the rink with all the abandon of Eddie Shore in a hockey game. Altogether it was a pleasing hodge-podge of ice entertainment with a chang of pace that permitted no boredom on the part of the audience.

The show was almost two hours old before Audrey Peppe of New York, member of the last two United States Olympic skating teams, made her appearance. The tiny brunette from New York is one of the three Americans in the show and her appearance climaxed the girly part of the show.

The Three Bruises, a comedy trio, made their first appearance with Jeff Stevens, as a ring master, cracking the whip at Monty Stott, the front end of Stalebiscuit, a dilapidated brown and white hoss that looked like it might have run in the first Kentucky Derby, and Sid Spalding, who provided the rear end. Later they picked up a fourth member, Buster Grace, and came out dressed as cherwomen with mops and pails after being introduced as the "Four Glamor Girls." And after using their mops in a hockey game with a feathered hat as the puck, they finally became glamorous, the highlight of the glamor part coming when one of WEIGHT LIFTER READY, BUT HIS RIVAL'S A. W. O. L.

Jack McNeil, 1923 Garfield boulevard, who is an amateur weight lifter, last night qualified for tonight's north side novice finals in Loyola university gymnasium by winning on default from James Chizek, Catholic Youth organization lightweight.

McNeil, a sophomore at Lindblom High school, can lift 225 pounds off the floor and has raised 160 pounds over his head. Jack's brother, Dan, who is 23 years old and weighs 190 pounds, is a member of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. weight lifting club.

Andrew Herstel, C. Y. O. bantamweight, can thank spectators in Loyola gym that Leonard Dybas, Polish Roman Catholic union representative, didn't knock him out in their bout last night.

After the match Dybas, who won a three round decision, said: "I didn't score a knockout because every one was laughing at me."

Henry Nichols Jr., C. Y. O. bantamweight, was a proud little fellow after he had survived last night's second round bouts. Reason for the jubilation: His father, an attorney, was in the audience when he scored a one round technical knockout over William Hearn of Northwest gymnasium.

George Sauter, dean at Holy Name Tech school in Lockport, brought in 11 students, five of whom boxed last night.

Flyweight qualifying matches tonight will include those between Condoloridia Gallardis and Bob Martin and Eddie Riordan and Jimmy Hansen. All are members of the C. Y. O.

Nick Scialaba, 1931 International Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, seconded Eddie Cullerton, middleweight, 6415 North Claremont avenue, to a victory in three rounds over Romeo Barclay, mustached novice of 924 Castlewood terrace.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The north side Golden Gloves novice tournament will end tonight with an action-packed session in Loyola gymnasium. The boys who survived last night's bouts will be ready for even greater efforts as they near the windup of the first stage of their campaign.

The close of the sectional novice events will clear the way for the struggle which will answer this question: Who is Chicago's greatest amateur boxer in each weight division? This matter will be decided in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, which will be held in the Coliseum Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week.

Top Notchers Getting Ready.

In gymnasiums thruout the city, open division boxers are slugging their sparring partners with an inflexible determination as they prepare for this rigorous test of skill and fighting spirit. All of the important athletic organizations have entered the very best representatives they can muster. Club rivalries are forgotten as the boys look forward to the task of meeting the best performers in this fight-minded city.

The boxing fans have suddenly realized that this tournament is less than a week away if one may judge by the rush for tickets reported in the Tribune Public Service offices. These are located at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower lobby.

Recognize These Names?

A glance at the list of entries in the Coliseum tournament explains this bustle for seats. Among the contestants are many of those seasoned fighters who performed spectacularly in Golden Gloves tournaments of the past. Hard-hitting Al Noto will be in there trying again for the fly-weight title he missed by a narrow margin last year. Willie Moon, whose shifty footwork and lashing left made him one of the most dangerous fighters in the 1939 tournament, means business as he takes a shot at the bantamweight title. These boys and other C. Y. O. champions are working daily under Coaches Paddy Kane and Dick Fitzpatrick in preparation for the toughest assignment they've yet faced.

Homer Williams Back.

The fans will be eager for another look at Homer Williams, whose method of incessant attack has made him highly popular with Golden Gloves crowds. Hezie Williams, who took the light heavyweight championship in the recent Illinois Athletic club tournament, is training with other Savoy A. C. fighters under Eddie Nichols.

This will be the kind of competition the novice survivors will be up against if they decide to continue their campaign. Two in each weight division are eligible to go to the Coliseum from the north, west and south sectional events.

Tonight, therefore, will be the last chance for Chicago boxing fans to see the novices in the ring against opponents of their own class. This type of fighting has an appeal all its own, judging by the applause which the crowd poured upon the boys who took part in last night's bouts in Loyola gymnasium.

Cullerton's Fast Finish Wins.

Edward Cullerton, a De Paul university athlete, drew powerful cheers from an enthusiastic contingent of followers as he won a cleverly paced bout with Romeo Barclay, a tall colored boy. Barclay used his height to good advantage, but Cullerton made a strong finish to earn the decision.

Odell McLenion of the Sovay A. C. showed considerable punching ability in stopping Dodd Purgett of the C. O. in the final round.

The program ended in a flurry of knockouts, George Werbe stopping Edgar Hansen in the first round and Leo High school's heavyweight basketball team last night continued its march toward the south division championship of the Catholic league by defeating Mount Carmel, 24 to 15, in the Leo gymnasium. It was Leo's eighth consecutive victory. The sectional leaders led, 15 to 9, at the half.

Bill Hunt, forward, and Stan Patrick, tall center, paced Leo's attack. Hunt contributed four baskets and three free throws and Patrick added three field goals and one free toss. It was Mount Carmel's sixth defeat in seven games.

Leo Lights Triumph.

Leo's lightweight quintet made it a perfect evening by scoring a last minute victory over Mount Carmel, 34 to 32. A basket by Henry Baronowski in the final seconds gave Leo its seventh triumph in eight games and sent the team into first place. Mount Carmel now occupies second place with six victories and one setback.

St. George's heavyweights maintained second place in the north section race, defeating St. Mel, 37 to 33. Fenwick won from Loyola, 31 to 26, and De Pau triumphed over Joliet, 26 to 22, in other contests.

TIOGA LEADS IN MIAMI-NASSAU SAILING RACE

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Tioga, largest of 13 yachts in the Miami-to-Nassau sailing race, led the way around Great Isaac light tonight as the fleet completed the first leg of the 184 mile journey across the Gulf stream.

Tioga rounded the light at 6:20 p. m. [eastern standard time], 16 minutes ahead of Wakiva, the second largest. Robert W. Johnson's trimly rigged yawl Good News from the New York Yacht club reached the marker, 60 miles from the starting point, only two minutes behind Wakiva.

ELMHURST CLUB DENIES SNITE HAS TAKEN CONTROL

President Says Members Still Are Owners.

Members of the Elmhurst Country club were assured last evening by their president, Lynn S. Broaddus, that there has been no change in the ownership or operation of the organization. Despite announcements to the contrary, Broaddus said, the 200 members of the club are still its owners, and Fred B. Snite, head of the Local Loan corporation, has not acquired control.

Broaddus said that Snite has submitted to the officials of the club a proposal thru which he would acquire title to the club and would spend a large sum of money improving the clubhouse, grounds and facilities. The proposal has not yet been submitted to the members, but they will have an opportunity to decide for themselves whether the terms are acceptable at a meeting to be held next week, he stated.

Seeks to Break Agreement.

"Fred B. Snite has not acquired control of the Elmhurst club," said Broaddus. "Snite has entered suit in the Du Page county court attempting to break a creditors' agreement entered into on Dec. 19, 1933, between the Elmhurst Country club and creditors and bondholders of the club. Snite contends he is not a party to the agreement and the club contends he is.

"After filing suit Snite has presented to the officers and directors of the club a proposal for acquiring control and development of the club. This proposal has not been acted upon by the membership and is as yet an undecided matter.

Snite Controls $22,000.

"Snite controls $22,000 worth of creditors' indebtedness and bonds. The balance of the indebtedness and control of the indebtedness is under the option of myself personally.

"In his proposal Snite offers a plan whereby present members of the club will become charter members with certain advantages in dues for the first five years. Also he proposes certain improvements. This, however, is a membership problem upon which no decision has been reached at the present time."

Would Take Mortgage.

Broaddus explained that at present members of the club hold equities in the 200 acres of land and the improvements on the club property along Wooddale road between Grand avenue and Irving Park road northwest of Elmhurst. If Snite's proposal is accepted the members will turn over their equities to him. He also is to accept the club's mortgage and debts which amount approximately to $100,000.

John Murphy, personal representative to Snite, who made the proposal in the latter's name to the club members, said yesterday that so far as he knows the deal has not been accepted. He said he understood the club members are to vote on the proposition next week.

Practical Prize List Is Lure for Tribune Casters

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen who take part in the dry fly event which opens The Tribune casting tournament at the International amphitheater Saturday evening will be shooting for merchandise prizes which can be used on fishing trips.

The winner of the dry fly contest will receive a high grade tapered fly line. Second prize is a fine fly rod reel valued at $5.50, and the third high scorer will win a half dozen trout bugs.

The tournament will be held during the second annual International Outdoor Sportsmen's show which opens at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. One or more Tribune casting events will be held on each of the nine days of the show, with fishing equipment valued at more than $150 going to the winners. There will be events for club members, women, junior casters, and unattached anglers.

This Sunday, all casters who want to try their luck at Skish [formerly called Fish-O] will be called into action at 2:30 p. m. The casting clubs of Chicago have their competition Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings.

Most of the features which attracted 287,000 spectators to the amphitheater last year will be repeated at this year's sportsman's show, according to show managers. In addition to the casting contests, the program includes indoor ski jumping, wood chopping contests, log rolling, canoe titling, and an Indian powwow which will bring together members of several tribes.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Detroit, 63; Indianapolis, 40.

The Chicago Bruins, still in the running for a playoff berth in the western division of the National Basketball league, will try to improve their chances tonight when they face the Akron Goodyears in the 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

Jake Nagode.

St. James and St. Louis, leading teams of the Polish Roman Catholic Church league, will meet in an 8 o'clock opener. St. James leads the league with 11 straight victories and St. Louis is the runner-up with 1 defeat in 11 starts.

A Big Game for Bruins.

In third place at present, a triumph tonight for the Bruins will lift them into a tie with Oshkosh for second place. If that should come to pass it will make a scramble the rest of the way for the first two positions in the division which are the qualifying spots for the playoffs.

In fact, the Bruins may profit immensely within the next few days because Oshkosh and Sheboygan will meet each other tomorrow and Saturday. Sheboygan leads the division with 13 victories and 9 defeats.

The Bruins will be without the services of Eddie Oram, fine defensive player, who was injured 10 days ago. However, they are heartened by the improved work of Bob MacLeod.

Akron Shifts Lineup.

Akron will start a slightly different lineup than the last time it was here. Jake Nagode, former Northwestern star, and Gene Anderson will be at guard. Nagode played only a few minutes as a sub the last time and Anderson wasn't acquired until recently. Ben Stephens, of course, still is the team's top scorer, ranking second in the league with 237 points in 22 games. Tonight's lineups:

Gloves Stars Prepare for City Tourney

As the Chicago fighters intensify their preparations, action goes on apace in the 43 centers where newspapers are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the presentation of Golden Gloves preliminaries. Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Danville, Ill., and Burlington, Ia., will pick their champions tonight.

Meanwhile, other strong centers will be nearing the end of their tournaments. Semi-finals will be held tonight in Memphis, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Rockford, Ill.; St. Louis, Mo.; Nashville, Tenn.; Lafayette, Ind., and Evansville, Ind.

The winners in the 43 out of town centers, which draw boxers from 23 states, will converge upon Chicago for the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium on Feb. 26, 27, and 28. In that event, the Chicago champions who emerge from the Coliseum bouts will try their strength against the invaders.

KIEFER BREAKS 3 MARKS; TOWERS SWIMMERS WIN

Adolph Kiefer rebroke three of his many world backstroke records last night during the course of a dual swimming meet in which the Chicago Towers club defeated Whiting Community center, 58 to 7, in the Towers club pool.

Kiefer thrashed the 880 yards in 11 minutes 4 seconds against the old mark of 11:31.2, took 32.9 seconds off his 1,000 yard mark in a 12:34.5 effort, and shaved .3 of a second from the 50 yard standard with a :26.9 performance. Kiefer also was a member of the Towers 150 yard medley relay trio which cracked the 1:19.6 record held by Harvard university. The time was 1:18.2. Other members of the team were Otto Jaretz and Al Jacobson.

The smartly drilled Towers water ballet turned in another of its smooth efforts to take this competition ahead of Whiting, Mundelein college, Wright Junior, and Blackhawk Park, which finished in that order.

The Monarch, shipped here from England the day after the Athenia was sunk, had been highly favored after beating Brutus for best of breed in a show here Sunday. He is owned by Hinson Stiles of New York.

Named successor to Ch. Ferry V. Rauhfelsen as top Dobermann was sleek Sieg Von Glenhugel, C. D., owned by John T. Brueggemann, of Winnetka. The fourth Chicagoan to be judged best of breed today was Owen A. West's beautiful German shepherd, Ch. Afra V. Hoheluft.

Also elevated to best of breed from Chicago kennels were Francis M. Gunn's Staffordshire terrier, Sox of Chicago; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Morse's Irish wolfhound, Moran of Outborough; and Stuyvesant Peabody's Toy-Manchester terrier, Ch. Countess of Carrman.

Peabody Chihuahuas Win.

Mrs. Peabody's Chihuahuas, Garrett's Playboy and Ida's Gameta Paqueta, stand as best of breed brace.

The Peabody's also picked up a ribbon with Balleymooney Princess Mona, first in open competition for miniature Pinscher bitches. She lost later, with top breed honors going to Ch. Netchen V. Gretelheim, owned by Mrs. Frederick A. Doll of Union, N. J.

Other Chicago braces going into tomorrow's finals are Zephyr of Breeze and Dunoon Thistledonn, Mrs. Janet Henneberry's English Springer spaniels; Ch. Boynehouse Brutus and Adoration Alden, Florsheim and Mr. and Mrs. Orrin H. Baker; and Blackwatch of Longview and Ch. Sallu O'Shea Oriskany, the Baker-Florsheim Blue Kerry terriers.

As he profited by the airedale upset, Florsheim suffered from fully as much a surprise when his recently imported Penhill Perfect—a pert beauty who captured the gallery—did no better than third in the Welsh terrier open competition for bitches.

Johnson Dogs Win.

Cancellation of A. B. C. Meet Is Threatened

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 13 (AP).—Argument over concession privileges and prior contracts at the State Fair Coliseum in Detroit brought a threat tonight from the American Bowling congress to cancel its 40th annual tournament scheduled to open there on March 7.

Following several hours of debate on the matter the executive committee of the board of state fair managers recessed tonight until Wednesday morning when a compromise is expected to be discussed.

Declare Contract Canceled.

The argument started when the fair board's executive committee informed bowling officials that a contract given them almost a year ago was null and void and that the concession right would be given to a Detroit firm under terms of a more recent contract.

Frank G. Mitzel, Detroit member of the A. B. C. executive committee and manager of the tournament, appeared before the board's executive committee tonight and declared that the tournament would be canceled unless the original agreement was carried out.

HOLDOUTS PLEAD AGAIN, BUT FAIL TO MOVE WRIGLEY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With the one and only Diz Dean safely out of the way temporarily, P. K. Wrigley, Cub owner, yesterday searched his correspondence and discovered three of his four other contract balkers were waiting on him for action.

But the kind of action they have demanded, and probably feel they'll get from an employer who always has been a soft touch in the past, appears improbable.

Argument's Grow Weaker.

The latest communique from the Cub executive, copies of which were started on their way last night to three of the dissenters, revealed Wrigley in the rôle of a fellow who isn't going to be pushed around. The new plank in the Wrigley platform calls for new, young faces in the lineup. And if the old fellows want to stay away and give the freshmen an opportunity it will be O. K.

The letters Wrigley answered yesterday were just another series on a subject seven weeks old. When Stan Hack, Augie Galan, Clay Bryant, Hank Leiber, and the effervescent Dean received their contracts they filed complaints, Wrigley asked them to provide good, sensible, logical arguments to support their pleas for higher pay than offered. Since then the letter writing has been flourishing on a wholesale scale but the arguments are growing weaker.

Time Ripe for Showdown.

The three who answered the Wrigley letters of a week ago were Bryant, Hack and Leiber. According to Wrigley the responses didn't carry enough magic to open his pocket book.

"Now is as good a time as any," continued the Cub owner, "to see if we can't get a little young blood into the lineup. We finished fourth last year and that makes it look as if there is room for improvement."

SHANAHAN WIDOW UPHELD IN FIGHT FOR HIS ESTATE

Deathbed Marriage Valid, Supreme Court Rules.

A decision which in effect upholds the right of Mrs. Helen Troesch Shanahan to the $850,000 estate of her husband, David E. Shanahan, was handed down yesterday by the Illinois Supreme court.

Mrs. Helen Shanahan.

The court affirmed a verdict of the Cook county Circuit court, which declared valid the deathbed marriage of Shanahan, one time speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, and Miss Troesch, who was his secretary for many years.

Shanahan died Oct. 18, 1936. He had married Miss Troesch 13 days previously and on the day of the marriage had signed a will making her heiress to virtually all his estate.

Cousins Contest Will.

The Misses Mary and Margaret Flynn of 5135 Kenwood avenue, cousins of Shanahan, sought to have both the will and the marriage invalidated on the ground Shanahan was unduly influenced and was not in full possession of his faculties.

In November, 1937, a jury disagreed on these points after a trial that lasted three weeks. A year later the matter was argued before Judge George W. Bristow of Paris, Ill., sitting in the Circuit court, without a jury. By agreement of counsel, the validity of the marriage was the only point questioned, and it was indicated that the Flynn sisters, who had been left 80 per cent of Shanahan's wealth in a previous will, would not contest further if they lost on this point.

In his decision Judge Bristow asserted there was ample evidence to show that Shanahan, who was 74 years old, was mentally competent at the time of his marriage.

Court Takes Same View.

"We never will know what was in the mind of David Shanahan at the time of the marriage and the making of the last will, but judging him as other human beings we may be reasonably certain that he was prompted not only by his affection for Helen Shanahan but also by what he may have considered the betrayal of his interests by other persons in whom he had placed great trust."

POLICEMEN GIVEN INSTRUCTION IN 1ST AID METHODS

Simplified first aid methods that are expected to save hundreds of lives in Chicago were being demonstrated yesterday to 70 picked members of the Chicago police department. The instruction, to last a month, is under the direction of the first aid division of the American Red Cross, with classes in the central police headquarters.

Stanching of wounds was the chief technique taught yesterday. The three man lift, used to move a victim of bone fractures without aggravating the injury was another lesson. A third example of first aid was the method of reviving persons who have fainted.

When the policemen have completed their training, they will be qualified to teach their methods to fellow policemen in their stations and divisions.

CHEFS TURN OUT WORKS OF ART IN SUGAR AND WAX

A whitely glistening Westminster abbey with luminous windows and organ pealing inside, a filigree Eiffel tower, and an 11 foot wedding cake as beflowered and lacy as an old-fashioned Valentine were among the sugar-pun fancies displayed by Chicago chefs yesterday at the Fifth Salon of Culinary Art and the National Food Cookery and Allied Trades' exposition in the coliseum, Wabash avenue and 15th street.

The show is presented by the Chefs of Cuisine association and the International Cooks' Association of Chicago, under the management of local 88 of the Cooks and Pastry Cooks' union. It will continue thru Saturday, with daily culinary demonstrations.

Interest yesterday was centered on elaborate decorative exhibits. Several of the leading chefs abandoned sugar this season to work in tallow.

IT ALL CAME OUT IN WASH: NURSE MOST FORGETFUL

Who is it forgets to take the fountain pen out of the clothes sent to the laundry? The absent-minded professor? Not at all. It's that model of efficiency, the nurse, according to the American Institute of Laundering at Joliet. The institute reported yesterday that the nurse is the "forgettingest person" with whom they deal. Pens, pencils, thermometers, watches, and jewelry are always being found in the pockets of the nurses' uniforms.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets, was in Chicago for a few hours yesterday. He stopped on his way from Callander, Ont., to Minneapolis, Minn., where he is to deliver a lecture to a women's organization.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Advice to Counsel

ORGANIZE DRIVE FOR AVONDALE EXPRESS ROUTE

50 Groups Object to Depressed Road.

Fifty northwest side civic organizations will start a campaign today for signatures on petitions urging the county board to give serious study to their request for an elevated superhighway on Avondale avenue abutting the North Western railroad tracks.

The petitions, which are to be delivered to the county commissioners in a few days, are planned as an attack on the recent proposal of county engineers to construct a depressed type superhighway parallel with Elston and Clybourn avenues as a northwest superhighway.

Minority Report Filed.

The county engineers' proposal recently was accepted and recommended to the county board by a majority of the members of a committee representing the Association of Commerce, Chicago Regional Plan association, and the Chicago Motor club. The northwest side organizations voted to start the petition campaign after they were informed that Charles M. Hayes, Chicago Motor club president, made a minority report to the commissioners favoring the Avondale route. The organizations are members of the northwest area council of the Chicago Motor club.

"For more than a decade we have been advocating that an elevated highway be constructed in Avondale avenue," the petition states. "The Chicago Motor club points out in its minority report that the majority of the citizens would rather drive along an elevated highway and see the city than be blinded in a depressed highway; in addition the Elston-Clybourn route would create a Chinese wall across the northwest section of the city."

Difficulty Can Be Overcome.

At a meeting of the Northwest area council, held Monday in the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st] said that county engineers can overcome any difficulty which may be experienced in planning ramps for the proposed Avondale route if they will give the subject sufficient study.

John H. Kerr, chairman of the northwest area council said 10,000 signatures will be obtained on the petitions. The cost of either proposed northwest superhighway is estimated at approximately $40,000,000.

Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the council traffic committee, said yesterday his committee will meet Friday to consider the comprehensive city superhighway program. The program was submitted to the council by the traffic committee last October, following which public hearings were held. Since then the program has been revised. It is expected to go to the council for passage on Feb. 21.

HARDING ESTATE SUED FOR $25,000 UNDER DRAM LAW

A claim for $25,000, based on the dram shop act, was filed in Probate court yesterday against the estate of George F. Harding, former Republican leader. The plaintiff is James Blackman, colored, 3100 Ellis avenue. Blackman, thru Attorney Robert E. Dowling, alleges he was stabbed in a brawl Jan. 27, 1939, in a tavern on land owned by Harding at 3101 Cottage Grove avenue. Suits were filed in Superior court against Harding, the tavern owner, Al Messer, and the Calumet Distilleriers corporation.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP).—Backwaters of the Allegheny river, bottled up by an ice gorge 12 miles long and 30 feet high in some spots, hurled huge chunks of ice onto the main street of Parker, 60 miles upstream, and then began to recede slowly tonight. At its crest of 23 feet, three feet above flood stage, the river flowed two feet deep over the main street.

DR. R. KRONFELD IS FOUND DEAD IN LOYOLA LAB

Dr. Rudolf Kronfeld, 39 years old, professor of dental histology and pathology at the Loyola university college of dental surgery, was found dead yesterday on the floor of the college laboratory at 1757 Harrison street. The exact cause of death was not determined.

The discovery was made by Dr. Gerald Reed, a dentist, who was returning from work. He said that Dr. Kronfeld recently had complained of ill health. Dr. Jerry Kearns, coroner's physician, made a partial chemical analysis and reported traces of a strong poison in the vital organs. He said it would be several days before the analysis is complete.

Dr. Kronfeld was a native of Austria and was educated in Vienna. He came to America in 1929 and had been identified with Loyola since 1930. He had published several works on dentistry. Surviving is his wife, Margarett. The residence is at 190 East Chestnut street.

N. Y. LEGISLATORS PONDER WAYS TO SOLVE TAX SNARL

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13 [Special].—Their ears still ringing from more than 12 hours of oratory, legislators today sought ways to meet conflicting demands of thousands of citizens who came to Albany yesterday to demand elimination of a proposed 15 million dollar income tax boost included in Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's $396,700,000 budget for 1940. In the crowd of 8,000 who descended on the state capital were many others, principally teachers, who demanded that there be no cut in appropriations for state services.

Party leaders were considering another conference with Gov. Lehman to discuss how the income tax increase can be eliminated. There were predictions tonight that the income tax boost would be killed.

Senator Joe R. Hanley, Republican majority leader, announced he will call a conference of Republican senators Tuesday to consider a new plan of action.

FARLEY ASSISTS AT MARK TWAIN STAMP FESTIVAL

Hannibal Celebrates at First Sale.

Hannibal, Mo., Feb. 13 (AP).—Mark Twain, whose literary works are on the bookshelves of the nation, today joined the Presidents and other famous Americans who have been honored by a stamp.

A 10 cent memorial issue, commemorating the author who spent his boyhood in Hannibal and made the river town immortal in his books, went on sale for the first time amid ceremonies in which Postmaster General James A. Farley participated. The first sheet of 70 stamps was sold by Farley to Morris Anderson, chairman of the Municipal Mark Twain board which supervises the boyhood home of Mark Twain and the Mark Twain museum. The stamps will become a permanent museum exhibit.

First Stamp on Valentine.

A gigantic valentine, measuring 34 by 25 inches and 4 inches thick, was the first piece of mail to bear the new stamp—$30 worth. Signed by thousands of citizens of Hannibal and illustrated with scenes made famous by Mark Twain, the valentine was sent air mail to President Roosevelt.

The postmaster general turned mail clerk to inaugurate the first day sales. With a hand stamp, he canceled the valentine for his "boss"—President Roosevelt.

More than $21,000 worth of the memorial stamps were sold today for a new first day record on a 10 cent issue.

Explains Present Series.

Farley spoke briefly to a crowd of about 500 persons in front of the Hannibal postoffice. He said he felt American authors had been too long neglected as subjects for stamps and added it was eminently fitting to honor Mark Twain, "who is read by every boy and girl in the country and is one of the favorites of the American people."

The new Mark Twain commemorative stamp doesn't commemorate "Mark Twain" at all. The stamp bears the name of Samuel L. Clemens, altho most of the world knows him best by his pen name, "Mark Twain" under which he wrote "Huckleberry Finn," "Tom Sawyer" and the rest of his books. It is brown in color.

BLAZE FIREMEN IGNORED CLAIMS ANOTHER LIFE

The second victim of a fire which North Chicago firemen refused to fight last Saturday died yesterday in St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan. She was Rita Mae Pinkard, 11 years old. The first victim was Ella Mayfield, 3, who was burned to death in her home at 1836 Dickey avenue, a block west of North Chicago. Both were colored.

Three colored men were on the coroner's jury of six which inquired into the deaths at Waukegan yesterday. The jurors found that the North Chicago fire department failed to give aid because of a council order issued after the residents of the unincorporated district west of the city had voted against paying for fire protection.

The jurors were told that the hero of the fire was Romeo Nixon, 26 years old, a colored man living opposite the building that burned. He carried the Pinkard girl and a brother and sister of the Mayfield girl from the flaming building.

Ottawa, Oont., Feb. 13 (AP).—The body of Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's governor general, was brought back to a sorrowing capital today for a state funeral tomorrow. A special funeral train, draped in purple, brought the flag-bedecked casket from Montreal, where Lord Tweedsmuir had been taken in a futile attempt to save his life after he had suffered a brain concussion in a fall a week ago today. He died Sunday.

Leading government officials and members of the diplomatic corps, including the new United States minister, James H. R. Cromwell, met the train here. The coffin was taken to the center of the senate chamber where it will remain until the funeral.

ORLANDO KEITH, RAIL EQUIPMENT OFFICIAL, IS DEAD

Orlando S. Keith, widely known in the railway equipment industry, died last night of a heart attack while riding on a street car at Wabash avenue and Congress street. He was 73 years old and lived at 7321 Ridgeland avenue.

Mr. Keith went to work for the Illinois Central railroad as a messenger boy in 1885. In 1910, while superintendent of transportation, he resigned to head his own firm, the Keith Car company, manufacturers of railway equipment. In 1928 he became president of the Chicago Tank Car company. After this company went out of existence he became Chicago representative of the Shippers' Car Line corporation of New York City, the position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Keith was a member of the Union League and the Illinois Athletic clubs. His widow, Mabel, survives.

ILLINOIS' FLOW OF OIL RISES TO ALL TIME PEAK

Nears Oklahoma's Output Volume.

Illinois oil production last week made another lively spurt to a new all-time weekly record as oil flowed in greater quantities from the deep-lying Devonian limestone in the Lake Centralia-Salem field.

Output jumped an average of 13,717 barrels daily to 387,017 barrels daily for the week ended Feb. 10, the Oil and Gas Journal reported. This brought Illinois production to only 44,343 barrels daily below Oklahoma's output, bearing out recent predictions that Illinois may soon surpass Oklahoma as the nation's third largest oil producing state.

Records Tumble Weekly.

Less than a month ago, in the week ended Jan. 20, Illinois output reached a record average of 366,931 barrels daily. In the week ended Feb. 3 another record of 373,300 barrels daily was established. Last week's production in turn broke that record.

The spectacular rise of the state in the oil production industry is indicated by a comparison of Illinois and Oklahoma output in the week ended Feb. 11, 1939—a year ago. Then Illinois produced an average of 149,867 barrels daily, or far less than half as much as was produced last week. Oklahoma produced 433,200 barrels daily a year ago, or slightly more than the 431,350 barrel average for last week. Illinois, now the fourth largest producer, was in fifth place a year ago.

Production in the Salem field accounted for most of the increase in Illinois, jumping from the field's record of 229,300 barrels daily in the Feb. 3 week to a new peak of 237,009 barrels last week.

Nine Dry Holes Drilled.

Of 59 wells completed in Illinois last week, 50 were oil producers and 9 were dry holes. This brought to 421 the number of wells completed in the state this year, against 447 in the comparable 1939 period. The falling off in drilling operations was due to the fact that boring a well to the Devonian pay requires more time than drilling to the shallower pool previously developed, and also requires a larger capital outlay.

Production last week in the entire nation gained 170,961 barrels daily to 3,682,914. Texas, the No. 1 producer, accounted for 118,945 barrels of the increase as that state's production climbed to 1,357,432 barrels daily.

Cassidy Acts to Halt Coal Price Boosts

Declaring that Illinois coal consumers face a $2,103,916 boost in their annual coal bill, John E. Cassidy, Illinois attorney general, announced yesterday that he is acting to block the increase which would be made under the price fixing scheme set up in the bituminous coal act.

Attorney General Cassidy.

Cassidy said he has forwarded a brief to the bituminous coal division of the department of the interior at Washington, D. C., asking that the proposed $1.8320 per ton minimum price for area No. 2 [Illinois, Indiana, western Kentucky, and Iowa] be rejected and that the minimum be established at not more than $1.7622 per ton.

Cassidy sent the brief to the board of examiners for the coal division who are about to submit their report on coal prices. He asked them to reject the $1.8320 a ton minimum which was recommended by the coal division's marketing section.

Based On Production Cost.

The proposed minimum prices are weighted average prices assertedly based on cost of production. The theory is that the prices charged consumers by the coal producers should return to the producers at least the cost of production.

Cassidy's brief states that under the provisions of the bituminous coal act the minimum price per ton should approximate the weighted average of the total cost of production. The brief maintains that the minimum price proposed by the marketing section is approximately 7 cents a ton higher than the weighted average cost for area No. 2, while the increase over the weighted average cost of production for no other area is more than 3.6 cents a ton.

Cassidy asserts that Illinois producers will be placed in a disadvantageous competitive in relation to eastern producers in area No. 1 because of the advantage in favor of that area of almost 6 per cent.

Study of Prices Made.

Cassidy recalls that the state intervened in the coal price proceedings on Sept. 29, 1939, at the request of Gov. Horner. After the intervention a study of the coal proceedings was made by Cassidy and Dr. Walter Voskuil, mineral economist for the Illinois Geological survey and a coal authority. In this study it was developed that in the opinion of the Illinois authorities the minimum price should be not in excess of $1.7622, and that if the minimum is set at $1.8320 Illinois coal consumers will be burdened with a $2,103,916 addition to their annual coal bill.

In the intervention petition filed last September Cassidy asked the bituminous coal division to fix minimum prices "which shall be just and equitable and not discriminatory between districts, producers, and consumers."

Third Effort to Fix Prices.

The present attempt to fix coal prices is the third. The first failed when the NRA was declared unconstitutional. The second failed when, as a result of nation-wide protests, the old bituminous coal commission withdrew its scheduled prices.

Testimony totaling about 25,000 pages was taken in the present action. The bituminous coal division of the department of the interior took over the government's price fixing attempts when the coal commission was abolished by President Roosevelt and its duties were transferred to the department of the interior.

Starch Does Its Bit Conserving Coal Supplies

New York, Feb. 13.—Starch is helping conserve the coal supply of the United States.

Herbert Hoover Jr. explains industrial "miracle machine."

The use of potato starch, cornstarch, and white flour to recover coal broken into fine particles in mining was described to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers today by John W. Finch, director of the United States bureau of mines.

Starch is one of the newer substances used in the flotation process, which Finch said helped recover 50 million tons of bituminous coal annually.

In flotation the coal is dumped into a heavy liquid of water and other ingredients. Rock and other impurities either sink or rise to the surface. The result is separation and recovery of the coal.

Starches Aid in Recovery.

The starches, however, are added for a different purpose. They cause the coal particles to clump together so that they are more easily recovered.

Herbert Hoover Jr. and a group of co-workers reported a new kind of industrial miracle machine, which can detect gas at the earth's surface which tells of an oil field far below, or blow a whistle and stop an oil refinery process when its gases happen to mix wrong.

The apparatus is a mass spectograph, an instrument which pure scientists invented about a decade ago to weigh atoms. As adapted by young Hoover's group in the United Geophysical company of Pasadena, Cal., this instrument will detect all the different gases in a drop smaller than the head of a pin.

Many Other Industrial Uses.

The mass spectograph has many other potential industrial uses.

A new use for chip diamonds was reported by W. C. Weslow of the Carboloy company, Detroit, Mich. It has been customary to set fair sized diamonds in the cutting edges of drills for boring thru hard rock. By the new method, chip diamonds are mixed with powdered metals, heated, and pressed into the shape of cutting bits. The resulting metal is full of diamond sand. This, Weslow said, makes a very good cutting tool.

GENERAL MOTORS, 4 UNIONS PAVE WAY FOR LABOR BOARD VOTE

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 13 (AP).—Representatives of four unions and the General Motors corporation signed an agreement tonight which paves the way for the calling of National Labor Relations board elections in 59 corporation plants to determine collective bargaining agents for 125,000 workers.

Signing of the agreement and filing the stipulation of terms with Horace A. Ruckel, NLRB trial examiner, cut short an NLRB hearing which otherwise would have been in lengthy session here taking testimony from the groups involved. The case now goes to Washington and if the labor board finds the hearing record acceptable it may direct that the elections be held early in the spring.

The agreement was signed by A. F. Power, representing the General Motors corporation; Maurice Sugar and Ernest Goodman, attorneys for the United Automobile Workers [C. I. O.], and Henry Kaiser, attorney for the United Automobile Workers [A. F. of L.] and for the Pattern Workers League of North America [A. F. of L.] and for the International Asosciation of Machinists affiliated with the National Die Sinkers [A. F. of L.].

MILLION RAISED FOR BROADCAST MUSIC PROJECT

More than a million dollars has been raised by the broadcasting industry for the organization of a new unit to be known as Broadcast Music, Inc., Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, announced yesterday. Broadcast Music, Inc., was organized to provide a library of music and to develop new sources of music for the broadcasting industry.

It was developed, Miller said, because broadcasters up to now have had only one major source for the performing rights of music — the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, better known as ASCAP. ASCAP for many years has dominated the field in licensing music for performance. Up to now $1,140,375 has been raised by NAB for Broadcast Music, Inc., in stock subscriptions from 246 stations, Miller stated.

Licensing of music for public performances will start April 1, Miller said. Broadcast Music is to publish new music, issue old arrangements and build a catalog of music for licensees.

OFFICE MACHINE MAKERS DISPLAY NEWEST WARES

Half a million dollars' worth of business machines went on display at the Palmer House yesterday as the Office Management Association of Chicago opened a four day exhibit.

Fifty or more exhibitors, representing major manufacturers of the United States, spread their wares over every available inch of space in the hotel's exhibition hall. Association officials said 12 exhibitors were turned away because all the space had been taken.

Eggs Tumble 5½ Cents in Cash Market

Egg dealers' attempts to dispose of supplies yesterday caused the widest break in wholesale cash egg prices in four years in the Chicago market. Prices crashed as much as 5½ cents a dozen.

The extreme decline was recorded by both extra firsts and current receipts, which dropped to 21 cents and 19½ cents a dozen, respectively.

The attempts of dealers to sell supplies were credited to the belief that receipts of fresh eggs will increase rapidly from now on. A sharp pickup in receipts yesterday and the milder weather which indicated heavier production accelerated the heavy selling.

Fresh Graded Firsts Drop.

In the Chicago Mercantile Exchange futures market, February fresh graded firsts dropped more than a cent, then rallied feebly to finish 0.9 cent a dozen lower. October refrigerator standards, less likely to be affected by immediate production prospects, lost only 0.15 cent.

The department of agriculture issued a report showing that abnormally cold weather in January reduced egg production. It said also that storage stocks of shell eggs on Feb. 1 were only 117,000 cases, 56 per cent lighter than normal and 115,000 cases smaller than on Jan. 1.

The break in eggs carried over into the butter market, which already was burdened by accumulations of fresh supplies. Cash butter prices dropped 1 cent a pound on all grades.

Butter Futures Decline.

Butter futures closed 0.45 to 0.80 cent a pound lower, with storage standards for delivery this month declining the larger fraction. The contract closed at 28.30 cents a pound.

The report of the department of agriculture showed that stocks of creamery butter shrank at a faster than normal rate, dropping 26,275,000 pounds during January to 29,187,000 pounds at the end of the month. This was the smallest end of January reserve supply since 1936.

BUILDING PLANS OF GOVERNMENT TERMED FAILURE

Despite hundreds of millions of dollars spent by the federal government in an effort to stimulate construction, the building industry is still on a level about as low as that in any preceding depression. This statement was made last night by Roy Wenzlick, St. Louis realty authority, at a banquet in the Palmer House, sponsored by the Chicago Building congress.

Elmer C. Jensen, president of the building congress, said that Chicago's efforts to solve its blighted area problem last year thru Public Service Housing corporation legislation was watched by the entire nation. Altho the measure was passed by the senate, it was withdrawn in the house after a filibuster.

Other speakers included Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Reuben Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

AM. TELEPHONE 1939 PROFIT UP TO $172,586,529

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, the world's largest public utility enterprise, yesterday reported to the Federal Communications commission that it had net income in 1939 of $172,586,529, compared with $152,428,028 in 1938.

The company, which with its subsidiaries owns and operates the Bell telephone system in the United States, also reported its December net income was $46,673,429, against $39,857,122 in December, 1938. The monthly earnings reports do not reflect the rate of earnings for the company, because dividends received from subsidiary and other companies are not accrued in monthly accounts, but are added as other income at the ends of the quarters.

Steel Maker's Earnings Soar.

Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, the nation's fourth largest steel corporation, reported net income of $3,188,944 in 1939, compared with net loss of $5,879,958 in 1938. The larger part of the earnings was made in the final 1939 quarter, when net income was $2,907,755, against a loss of $1,129,856 in the corresponding 1938 quarter. The 1939 earnings equaled $5.43 a share on the preferred stock, which is $42 a share in arrears.

Coca-Cola International corporation, holding company which owns large blocks of Coca-Cola company's stock, reported 1939 net income of $8,022,926, or $38.92 a share, against $7,363,846, or $35 a share, in 1938.

Continental Steel corporation reported a net profit for 1939 of $1,208,199, equal to $5.28 a common share and the largest in the company's history. In 1938 net income was $632,865, or $2.32 a common share.

Taxes $3.94 a Share.

Total taxes in 1939 were approximately $791,000, D. A. Williams, president, told stockholders of the steel company. This amount was equal to $3.94 a common share. In 1938 total taxes were $490,000, or $2.44 a common share.

Liquid Carbonic corporation reported for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1939, a net loss of $143,928, against loss of $297,282 in the corresponding quarter of the preceding year. W. K. McIntosh, chairman, said that sales in the 1939 quarter, the first in the company's fiscal year, were 15 per cent larger than in the 1938 quarter.

The company's backlog of unfilled orders on Feb. 1 totaled $2,100,000, an increase of 57 per cent over a year ago, McIntosh said. The company manufactures carbonic gas, soda fountain equipment, and related products.

Chicago Railway Equipment company, manufacturer of railroad appliances, reported for 1939 net income of $243,680, equal to $1.25 a common share. In 1938 the company had net loss of $61,758.

SUN LIFE ASSETS RISE 39 MILLIONS TO SET RECORD

Assets of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada rose 39 million dollars in 1939 to an all time peak of 914 million dollars, Arthur B. Wood, president, reported yesterday at the annual meeting of the company's stockholders in Montreal.

The company paid out about 30 million dollars in benefits to policyholders in the United States last year. Payments to policyholders in Canada, Great Britain, and the United States totaled 90 million dollars.

New insurance written in 1939 amounted to 194 million dollars, and there was outstanding 2 billion 938 million dollars of life insurance at the end of the year.

The company maintains perpetual trusts in this country for the protection of United States policyholders and policies are issued in American currency.

Push Chicago's Fight to Retain N. Y. Stock List

On the eve of today's meeting of New York Stock exchange governors, the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday issued a statement asserting that relations between securities markets "cannot be viewed from a competitive standpoint without endangering the welfare of the business."

Arthur M. Betts.

The statement, made to members by Arthur M. Betts, chairman, was viewed in financial circles as a second warning to the New York exchange not to trample the rights of the smaller exchanges to which it has lost business.

A New York exchange committee has been studying the problem created by dual, or two market, listing of securities, and may report to the governors today.

Most Originate in Chicago.

Betts said that most of the Chicago exchange's dually listed issues were listed in Chicago prior to being listed in New York. Chicago's optional odd lot system handled 1,600,000 shares in lots of less than 100 each last year, he said.

He added that Chicago odd lot dealers and specialists in dually listed issues supplied a volume of more than 800,000 shares to the New York exchange in 1939.

"Dual listing of stocks of large corporations broadens the investment and trading interest," Betts said. "Increased volume for both exchanges is created by our members. The generally beneficial results justify our exchange in encouraging all corporations listed with us also to list on the New York exchange when they attain sufficient size and national importance."

Cites Intricate Wire System.

He stated that the intricate market machinery requires wire connections to correspondents and brokerage branches thruout the country, and that stock exchange memberships are "an integral part of this system."

"The relations between exchanges in different cities have been harmonious," he concluded. "They cannot be viewed from a competitive standpoint without impairing the efficiency of the service rendered customers and without endangering the welfare of the business as a whole."

Three weeks ago Betts issued what was then considered a veiled warning to the New York exchange, in which he said that "we are confident no hasty or ill-advised action will be taken to interfere with the functioning of the smaller exchanges."

The "big board" earlier had noted a "shift in securities business away from New York" to the 18 smaller markets thruout the country. It was thought some action might be taken to regain the business and that this action might have an adverse effect on the smaller exchanges.

FIELD'S INCOME SETS PEAK FOR LAST 10 YEARS

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Earnings of Marshall Field & Co. last year were the best since 1929, Frederick D. Corley, president, informed stockhlders yesterday.

Every division of the company operated at a profit. Net profit from all sources amounted to $4,636,558, an increase of $1,144,320 over the preceding year. It was the highest level of earnings reached by the company since 1929 when net profit was $9,219,000.

Merchandise sales of the company in 1939 rose to $84,029,380 from the preceding year's total of $79,648,166.

Transactions Set Record.

President Corley said that the number of sales transactions handling by the company's retail stores in the Chicago area in December were the largest in history. The manufacturing division, he said, closed the year with unfilled orders 41 per cent larger than a year earlier.

President Corley's comments on the business outlook were restrained.

"We are hopeful," he said, "that the currently held belief that consumer purchasing power will continue at a high level thruout 1940 proves to be an accurate one. It will be our aim to prevent undue increases in the price levels of retail merchandise, which would have the effect of diminishing the ability of the public to purchase consumers' goods."

The retail branch of the business was the principal source of earnings for the company. The company no longer operates a wholesale business which in former years accounted for a substantial part of its total business.

All Divisions Earn More.

	1939.	1938.	Increase.
Retail	$5,320,933	$3,940,099	$1,380,834
M'fact'ing	725,319	138,165	587,154
Real estate	385,806	309,968	175,838

The 1939 net earnings amounted to $1.92 a share on 1,943,763 shares of common stock after provision for dividends on the present preferred stock. The 1938 earnings of $3,492,238, figured on the same basis for purpose of comparison, amounted to $1.33 a share.

Under a financial reorganization completed in 1939 the company effected a reduction in preferred stock from $28,722,500 to $15,000,000 and in-

WHEAT WEAKENS ON FARM SELLING AFTER UPSWING

Dry and warm weather in the west and southwest and a forecast holding out no hope of precipitation during the next three days led to commission house and local buying of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade early yesterday. May advanced around ½ cent and sold at 1.00⅛ at one time, but the market weakened later in the session on reports that farmers had resumed selling grain stored for government loans.

Closing trades on wheat futures were ¼ to ⅝ cents lower, with May declining most. Commission houses reported an increase in public interest in the July and September deliveries because of the approach of the crop scare season in the southwest.

Corn and other grains held within narrow price limits with corn and oats closing unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Rye finished ⅛ to ¼ cent lower and soy beans declined 1 cent a bushel.

CHECK VOLUME TOPS LAST YEAR BY 15 PER CENT

Checks written against individual accounts in 159 banks in 41 leading clearing house cities of the 7th federal reserve district during the week ended Feb. 7 increased 15 per cent over the volume for the corresponding week of 1939, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. The total, however, was 8 per cent below that of the preceding week.

Debits [checks written] aggregated $1,146,877,000, compared with $1,246,611,000 in the preceding week and $997,236,000 a year ago.

Chicago banks showed debits of $635,222,000, against $686,781,000 in the preceding week and $562,468,000 a year ago.

ECONOMIC GROUP BACKS PRINCIPLE OF TRADE PACTS

The National Economic league yesterday announced that its national council, an elected body which is questioned on various matters by the league, has voted 88 per cent in favor of the principle of the reciprocal trade agreements. Business executives constitute the league membership. The vote represented the returns from 400 ballots cast to Jan. 31.

Only 54 per cent of the votes, however, favored continuing the authority of the President to make the trade treaties effective by proclamation, without submitting them to the senate. The members were 66 per cent in favor of fixing tariff rates by negotiating agreements with specific foreign countries, against 25 per cent for fixing rates by administrative inquiry of the tariff commission.

Sixty-six per cent favored utilizing the President's power to adjust tariff rates by 50 per cent upward or downward solely by means of trade agreements, and only 5 per cent wanted that power used to prevent discrimination.

Peoples National Bank and Trust Pays $164,488

Depositors of the Peoples National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago will receive another 5 per cent repayment aggregating $164,488, George D. Crowley, receiver, announced yesterday. This will bring total repayments to depositors of the closed bank to 63 per cent.

New York Stocks.

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Stocks lumbered through an indecisive session today with market leaders generally neglected in favor of specialties. The list pointed moderately upward in the forenoon, as bright sales and earnings statements buoyed individual issues. Buying power in most cases was unimpressive, however, and early gains of fractions to a point or so were erased in many instances at the close.

Transfers amounted to 582,180 shares, against 1,099,140 last Friday, when the direction was upward.

Studebaker and Loft were relatively strong performers, both touching new 1939-'40 highs. The former benefitted by the best January sales since 1923, the aggregate exceeding the 1939 month by 80 per cent. Loft, principal owner of Pepsi-Cola stock, was again responsive to profits prospects for the latter.

Martin-Parry made a new year's high, but finished unchanged. Modest advances were retained by Crown Cork, International Mercantile, Marine, Chrysler, National Steel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United States Gypsum, Union Carbide, American Can, Phelps Dodge, Union Pacific, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Texas Corporation.

Aviations such as Douglas and United Aircraft dropped a point or so. Pan American Airways lost 2. United States Steel gave ground. Among other losers were Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Anaconda, American Telephone, New York Central, American Smelting, and Goodyear.

New York Bonds.

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—A wave of buying boosted foreign dollar bonds today, some for gains of 1 to 5 points. The rise started with an upturn in the 6 per cent loans of the Republic of Colombia following week-end announcement of intention to resume interest payments.

The news seemed to give the market ideas other settlements might be worked out for defaulted foreign loans. Estonia Republic 7s of 1967 jumped 5 points. Closing 1 to about 3 higher were Australia 5s of 1957, Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s, Finland 6s, Panama 5s of 1963, Rio Grande do Sul 8s, and Buenos Aires 4½s of 1977.

Chicago Stocks.

Three issues set new 1940 highs on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Gains and losses were about evenly divided thruout the list, however. Trading continued light.

Fractional gains carried Central and South West prior lien, Kentucky Utility preferred, and Southwest Gas and Electric to their best prices of the year. Commonwealth Edison lost ¾ at 32¾. Asbestos Manufacturing, Marshall Field, Bendix, Fuller Manufacturing, and Aetna Ball Bearing turned slightly higher.

Bank Stocks.

Harris Trust and Savings bank stock declined 3 points yesterday, closing at 295 bid. First National and Chicago Title and Trust shares lost 1 point each. Other issues finished unchanged in light trading.

MORTALITY DATA OUTMODED, SAYS INSURANCE HEAD

Policy Rates Higher than Necessary, He Asserts.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13 (AP).—The head of one of the nation's largest life insurance companies recommended today that an attempt be made to modernize the 60 year old mortality statistics on which life insurance premium rates are based. He said the figures should "reflect more accurately present day conditions."

John A. Stevenson.

John A. Stevenson, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, Philadelphia, made the suggestion in a statement to the press supplementing testimony before the monopoly committee.

We Live Longer Now.

Because the average American lives longer than he did when the tables were computed, his testimony showed, amounts collected for mortality have been considerably in excess of those needed to meet death claims in recent years.

A committee computation placed at $3,566,942,000 the amount which the 26 largest legal reserve life insurance companies gained from this source in the decade 1929-'38. Stevenson said, however, that the mortality table made little difference because the excess was returned to policyholders in dividends, except in cases where policies lapsed before holders were entitled to dividends.

Urges Coöperative Action.

"Personally," he said in his statement, "I am in favor of coöperation between the life insurance companies and the state insurance departments to determine the propriety of adopting a modern experience table as to the mortality factor in life insurance premiums."

Stevenson testified that size had little to do with the quality of service given by a life insurance company. He said the main factor is the quality of management.

Ernest Howe, chief financial adviser for the insurance section of the Securities and Exchange commission, told the committee that the accounting methods of the 26 companies studied by the SEC made it difficult to compare assets, liabilities, income, and other factors.

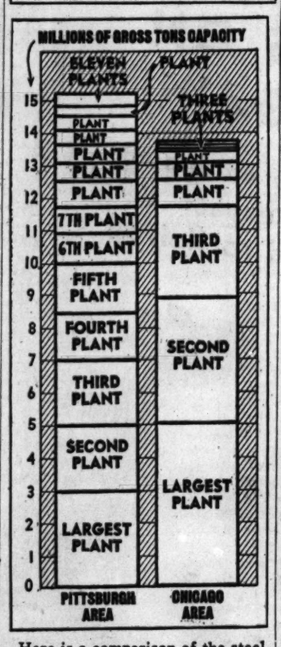
BUSINESS BITS

John M. Carmody, federal works agency administrator, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Palmer House today on "Should Business Men Be Interested in Public Works?"

Clarence A. Bettman, member of the brokerage firm of Connell & Bettman, has been reëlected chairman of the board of governors of the New York Curb exchange. Jess W. Sweetser, United States amateur golf champion in 1922, who heads his own firm, was named a class B governor.

Chicago—Steel City



Here is a comparison of the steel-making capacities of Chicago and Pittsburgh areas. Three Chicago plants produce as much as Pittsburgh's seven largest mills.

CHICAGO'S STEEL CAPACITY CLOSE TO PITTSURGH'S

Nine steel mills in the Chicago area have a total annual ingot capacity that lacks only about 1,000,000 tons equaling the annual capacity of 24 mills in the Pittsburgh region, according to disclosures in a study made by the industrial department of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Chicago's nine mills have a capacity of almost 14,000,000 tons a year compared with 15,000,000 tons for the Pittsburgh region.

The Chicago area's largest mill, located in Gary, has an annual capacity equal to that of Pittsburgh's two largest mills. Three Chicago mills have an output equal to the seven largest mills in Pittsburgh.

The value of Chicago's steel and rolling mill products in 1929 was $506,000,000 and in 1937 it was $548,000,000 according to the federal census. In 1937 Chicago production was 79 per cent of the Pittsburgh volume and in 1929 it was 42 per cent.

COURSE OF STOCK MARKET INSTRUCTION

(Not an Advisory Service)

APPEALS especially to those who are in search of a definite market policy founded on straight thinking and steady progress rather than sporadic get-rich-quick ventures.

Particularly can this Instruction aid those who find the news confusing, or who wish to avoid the hazard of basing their commitments on the opinions of others. Thus, in November, when the steel industry was operating at capacity and the earning outlook was most favorable, Wyckoff Associates were lecturing to students on the technical weakness of steel issues and warning of their probable decline.

To become a really successful investor or trader calls for training similar to that required in preparing for any well-paying profession. A foundation must first be laid along proven, practical lines.

The function of the Wyckoff Institution is to give you this training; to help you to become a fully qualified investor or trader, never asking anyone's opinion or advice, but able to rely fully on your own judgment. Why not decide NOW to place your trading and investing operations on a more constructive basis with the aid of this Instruction? Come with all the doubts you choose; we will be glad to present the facts and prove that it can and should help you to do a better job.

TREASURY CALLS BONDS IN DEFICIT FINANCING STEP

BY JOHN FISHER.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The treasury today prepared for further financing of the New Deal deficit by calling for redemption the 353 million dollars in 3⅜ per cent treasury bonds of 1940-'43 now outstanding.

An announcement from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that "it is probable that prior to the redemption date holders of these bonds may be offered the privilege of exchanging them for other interest bearing obligations of the United States."

It is considered likely that the treasury will make a refunding offer rather than face the burden of paying out cash for the redemption. The Roosevelt financing policy has consistently been one of renewing and expanding the federal debt rather than reducing it.

Details to Be Told Later.

The treasury said that full information regarding the presentation and surrender of the bonds will be made available later. Because the bonds are called for redemption June 15, 1940, the treasury will have ample time to decide on terms of refinancing. Calling of the 3⅜ per cent bonds leaves only one other maturity in this fiscal year, 738 millions in 1½ per cent notes due June 15.

Since 1933 the treasury has paid off only about 7 per cent of the maturing obligations, and these represented only holdings where the investors preferred cash to more government obligations. The great majority of investors in government bonds had no other place for their money, because investment in private equities was discouraged by the New Deal's easy money policy and high taxes. Government issues remained tax exempt.

Debt Nearly Doubled.

As a result of constant refunding and additional financing to meet a string of deficits, the public debt has been nearly doubled under the present administration, amounting to 42 billion 242 million dollars in the latest treasury statement, that of Feb. 10.

The deficit for the year to date is 2 billion 441 million dollars, an increase of 402 millions over the deficit for the corresponding period of last year.

CORN LOAN RECIPIENT FEARS GOVERNMENT FARM DICTATORSHIP

New York, Feb. 13 [Special].—One of the large individual beneficiaries of the government's corn loan program declared today at a meeting of the Farm Club of New York that artificial price fixing will eventually lead to a general collapse of prices and may bring a strict government autocracy over farmers.

Harper Sibley.

Harper Sibley, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said he recently received a government check for $80,000 for grain sealed in his granaries and held off the market.

"Eventually," he said, "when the government can no longer hold this corn, it will flood the market. The inevitable result will be a collapse of prices."

The loans are being made at rates in excess of world market prices. As a result vast quantities of cotton as well as corn are backed up in warehouses. If this surplus should suddenly be released on the market, the economic chaos that would follow might force the government to take dictatorial measures to reëstablish normal conditions, Sibley warned.

HALF OF STOCK TRADERS FAVOR OUTSIDE CONTROL

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—About half of 1,000 customers of New York Stock exchange firms whose views were solicited on many phases of stock exchange work favor some form of government regulation of exchange activities, the exchange announced today in releasing results of a survey.

About 56 per cent of them believe brokerage business standards are on a par with those of the average business institution.

More than 64 per cent thought brokerage commissions should cover all charges involved in buying and selling stocks and opposed separate service charges.

LARD HOLDINGS CLIMB TO NEW PEAK FOR FEB. 1

Up 39 Million Pounds in Month to 201 Million.

Another large accumulation of lard in cold storage houses in the United States in the month of January was reported yesterday by the department of agriculture. Holdings as of Feb. 1 totaled 201,822,000 pounds, the largest on record for that date.

Holdings showed an increase of 39,717,000 pounds over the Jan. 1 stocks. They were 69,744,000 above the Feb. 1 holdings last year, an increase of 52 per cent, and were 81,368,000 pounds, or 67 per cent, above the 1935-'39 five year average. This record accumulation is attributed partly to the fact that hog slaughtering this winter has been in large volume, with hogs running heavier than usual.

Lard Output Boosted.

Until the last few weeks the corn-hog price ratio had been favorable to feeding corn liberally. Consequently, most of last spring's crop, which comprised the bulk of the winter's receipts, were well finished, and the crop carried much more lard than usual. There has been some gain in sales of lard abroad compared with recent years, but the increase in exports has not been sufficient to offset the increase in production.

Pork stocks also gained during January. The Feb. 1 holdings totaled 587,708,000 pounds, the largest since June, 1937. These stocks compared with 469,459,000 pounds Jan. 1 and with 526,411,000 a year ago. The five year average was 584,598,000. Altho there was a seasonal increase during January, current pork stocks are relatively small, considering the increased production, market experts point out.

Less Pork Being Stored.

While January production of pork ran about 45 per cent above the average for the last five years, the accumulated total on hand at the end of January was less than 1 per cent above the five year average. This substantiates earlier reports that packers are storing a smaller percentage of pork than usual this year.

Stocks of beef increased from 76,974,000 pounds Jan. 1 to 78,543,000 pounds Feb. 1. These were the largest beef stocks since June, 1937. They compared with 53,126,000 pounds a year ago and a five year average of 104,991,000.

Lamb and mutton in storage totaled 4,277,000 pounds Feb. 1, compared with 4,803,000 Jan. 1, and 2,925,000 a year ago. The five year average stands at 4,671,000.

creased the common to 1,943,763 shares. Fixed charges were also cut by the purchase of the land on which the company's retail store and annex are situated.

The amount saved in ground rental is being used to pay off the mortgage on the land. Under the schedule of payments the mortgage will be extinguished in 20 years.

Mart Operations Gain.

President Corley said that the operating results of the Merchandise Mart were the most satisfactory since the building was opened. At the end of 1939 it was 82 per cent rented, compared with 80 per cent a year earlier. The mart was chiefly responsible for the increased earnings from real estate operations. Other real estate includes the Field Annex and miscellaneous properties.

The company paid $313,737 in 1939 to the estate of James O. McKinsey, who was chairman of the company at the time of his death. The payment cleared up the remainder due the estate under the terms of the employment contract Mr. McKinsey had with the company. Objections to the payment made by minority stockholders were overruled by the courts.

BOOTSTRAP LOGIC OF U. S. DEFICIT SPENDING LASHED

Hinders Recovery, Bank Conference Is Told.

New York, Feb. 13 [Special].—The logic behind the Roosevelt administration's policy of continuous deficit spending is "in the same class with theories of perpetual motion and lifting oneself by the bootstraps," Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance at Princeton university, said today.

Dr. Harley L. Lutz.

Addressing the annual midwinter trust conference of the American Bankers' association, attended by 600 to 700 bankers from all parts of the nation, Lutz assailed what he termed avoidance of any material moves toward balancing the federal budget. He assailed such a governmental policy as unsound and as an obstacle to normal business recovery.

Criticizes Budget Juggling.

Financial institutions particularly will suffer from the continuous building up of debt, Lutz said. He described the jump in the national debt from $16,000,000,000 to $45,000,000,000 during the Roosevelt administration as "a process which will subject us to a degree of governmental interference with and manipulation of the money market that will have serious repercussions on business."

Begin Educational Campaign.

Robert M. Hanes, Winston-Salem, president of the bankers' association, outlined for the trust division delegates an educational campaign which the association, he said, is inaugurating to acquaint the public with functions and responsibilities of banking.

The financing of the educational campaign will be accomplished, he said, by levying a fee of $8 for each $1,000,000 of the total assets of member banks.

ENGLAND HOLDS POSITION AS OUR BEST CUSTOMER

Canada Ranks Second in 1939 Foreign Trade.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13 (AP).—The United Kingdom again was the best customer of the United States in 1939.

The commerce department, in a geographical analysis of last year's foreign trade, placed the United Kingdom's purchases at $505,227,000, which was less than in 1938. Canada, as usual, was second with $493,450,000; Japan third with $231,405,000, France fourth with $181,825,000, and the Philippine Islands fifth with $100,108,000.

Canadian Shipments Largest.

Canada again was the leading supplier of products to the United States, shipping in goods totaling $340,066,000. The next four sources of imports were: Japan, $161,196,000; United Kingdom, $149,669,000; British Malaya, $148,965,000, and the Philippine Islands, $91,92?,000.

Towards the end of the year, foreign trade was affected by the war, cutting off exports to Germany, increasing airplane shipments to France, and generally boosting sales to Canada, Latin America, and Asia.

UNITED STATES STEEL REPORTS SHIPMENT DROP

January steel shipments by the United States Steel corporation subsidiaries, as reported yesterday, reflect the decline this year in the operating rate for the steel industry. The total for January was 1,145,592 net tons, a decrease of 298,377 tons from the December total of 1,443,969 tons. However, last month's volume represented an increase of 274,726 tons over the January, 1939, total of 870,866 net tons.

A net ton is 2,000 pounds. Hitherto shipments have been reported in gross tons [2,240 pounds] but hereafter they will be reported in net tons.

December, 1939, shipments were the largest with but two exceptions since the spring of 1937, when they amounted to 1,563,113 tons in March and 1,485,231 tons in April, respectively. The sharp drop in January reflected the decline in orders from customers.

"PSST! JANET'S ON THE CARPET AGAIN!"

If the outgoing mail isn't up to par, check the machines before you check up on the operators. Also, if important papers have a habit of getting lost, maybe there isn't enough space to file them properly.

The Typewriters and Supplies and the Office Furniture and Devices columns in the Tribune want ad section are helpful sources of ideas to step up the efficiency of your staff. There you will find many bargains to fill your office needs in equipment and supplies. Review these offers in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

"ARE YOU AN ELECTRIC IRONER, MOMMY?"

SHE is and she isn't. The modern way to iron large flat pieces would take only a fraction of the time and energy she is using now.

If you have hesitated over buying an ironer, a washing machine, a vacuum cleaner or any other modern household appliance, review the offers of good used equipment in the Household Appliances column.

"I CAN'T WAIT TO TELL BILL THE NEWS!"

"He'll be surprised that I've found an apartment so soon."

YOUR most comprehensive guide to apartments is the Tribune want ad section. Because the Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, no worthwhile apartment value is likely to escape your notice in these columns.

Review the Apartments to Rent columns. There, grouped by locations and numbers of rooms, are descriptions of attractive apartments throughout Chicago and suburbs.

By making up a list of the ones you want to see, you can save the time and energy you would otherwise waste inspecting places which could not possibly interest you. Consult the Apartments to Rent columns in the Tribune want ad section for the apartment you want at the rental you wish to pay.

JUST LIKE ONE OF THE FAMILY

● When you bring a good dog, cat or other pet into the household it isn't long before it becomes just like another member of the family. In the Dogs, Cats and Pets column of the Tribune want ad section you can find a wide choice of pets attractively priced for your selection. Let these offers help you find the ideal type of pet for your home.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

98 MILLION ISSUE OF BRIDGE BONDS PUT ON MARKET

Triborough Authority in Refunding Move.

One of the largest public offerings in recent years will be made today when $98,500,000 of term and serial refunding bonds of the Triborough Bridge authority of New York are formally placed on the market by a banking syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co.

It was reported yesterday that the bonds will command substantial premiums over the offering price of 102¼. A large part of the bonds will be taken by banks.

The offering will involve three separate issues, including $50,000,000 of term bonds running for 40 years and carrying a coupon of 3¼ per cent, priced at 102¼; $40,000,000 of 3s due serially from 1953 to 1975 to be offered at prices to yield 2.55 to 3 per cent according to maturity, and $8,500,000 of 2¾ per cent serial bonds, due 1945 to 1952, priced to yield 1.50 to 2.50 per cent.

Part to Be New Money.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to refund approximately $71,000,000 of outstanding bonds, consisting of $53,000,000 of Triborough Bridge authority securities and $18,000,000 of New York City Parkway authority issues, both of which are callable at 105 on April 1, 1942. The remainder will be used to provide new money for the bridge authority.

Holders of the bonds to be refunded will be given the privilege of exchanging their holdings for the new issue. With 100 per cent exchange there would be only about $30,000,000 of the new bonds available for buyers.

Offer Utility Issues.

Southwestern Gas and Electric company last night announced public offering today of $16,000,000 of the company's first mortgage bonds—series A, 3¼ per cent, due Feb. 1, 1970.

The company said it would offer concurrently 75,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock to holders of its outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock under an exchange plan. Also, the announcement said, the Middle West corporation of which Southwestern is a subsidiary, has subscribed to this common stock, not to exceed 71,000 shares, as the company may be permitted by the Securities and Exchange commission to issue for $1,300,000.

The bonds are priced at 103, while the public offering price of the stock is $103 per share.

Proceeds for Refunding.

Proceeds, with treasury funds, will be used to retire $16,000,000 of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds due in 1960 at a premium of 4 per cent, and $8,834,600 par amount of 7 per cent preferred stock at a premium of 7 per cent.

Offering is being made by Barney Johnson & Co. of $700,000 of 4½ per Securities Acceptance corporation, Omaha, Neb., automobile financing company, at 100. Proceeds will be used to redeem the outstanding 5 per cent debentures and to increase working capital.

CONSOLIDATED DEARBORN.

What has happened to the Manhattan-Dearborn formerly listed on the Chicago Stock exchange?—F. G.

Answer: Manhattan-Dearborn corporation has been merged with its subsidiary, the Lawbeck corporation, into a new firm, the Consolidated Dearborn corporation. As a result of the consolidation, the Chicago Stock exchange suspended from trading on Dec. 28 the preferred stock of Lawbeck and on Dec. 30 the common stock of Manhattan-Dearborn.

The Lawbeck corporation under the terms of the merger received for its assets $3,907,200 in registered debentures and 97,680 shares of common stock of Consolidated Dearborn. This exchange would allow the distribution of $100 in debentures and 2½ shares of common stock of the new company for each share of Lawbeck 6 per cent preferred stock.

Stockholders of Manhattan-Dearborn would receive in exchange for each common share held one share of Consolidated Dearborn common stock.

The consolidation of the companies culminated from the efforts of the Manhattan-Dearborn management to revise or eliminate the guarantee by the parent company of dividends on the Lawbeck preferred stock. The requirement of meeting the guaranteed dividends had proved burdensome to Manhattan-Dearborn, which had a balance sheet deficit last Nov. 1 of more than 5 million dollars. The parent company showed a net loss in each year since 1929 except in 1936.

Manhattan-Dearborn was incorporated in 1929 as an investment company dealing primarily in real estate and securities. The Lawbeck corporation, its subsidiary, owned real estate securities, and hotel and apartment building properties acquired thru the foreclosure of loans.

Among the properties in which Lawbeck had an interest [now transferred to Consolidated Dearborn] were the Hotel Carlyle, New York City; Raymond-Commerce building, Newark, N. J.; Bellaire apartments, San Francisco, Cal.; Bay Cities building, Santa Monica, Cal.; Hotel President, Palo Alto, Cal., and the Jackson-Franklin building, Chicago.

Capitalization of the Consolidated Dearborn corporation will consist of $3,907,200 in 15 year debentures and 377,084 shares of $1 par common stock. The debentures will mature Nov. 1, 1954, and interest will be at 3 per cent a year for the first five years, 3½ per cent for the second five years, and 4 per cent thereafter to maturity.
